GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

PLANTING THE WINDOW BOXES.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Gardening Correspondent says:—

Gay but tender things of the Geranium, Marguerite, Calceolaria and blue Lobelia tribe, if not actually nipped by frost, that worn and weary look they now show induces us to part with them without compunction, and supplant them by really hardy subjects to greet us 'mong the flowers that bloom in the spring. In the always trying position and limited root room imposed by the boxes, we still employ a good layer of rough manure at the bottom, and, failing that, a complement of the now plentiful dead leaves.

GRASS RUNS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

The greatest danger is when the fowls are confined in very small runs or those that have no grass, but when the runs are large and are of grass the difficulty is not nearly so great. As long as the grass can be kept in a good growing condition the soil will not be so liable to become foul, because the growing grass will absorb much of the manure; but the danger is, if there are more fowls kept than the land will carry, the grass is eaten up and the run becomes bare, so that, there being nothing to absorb the manure, the land becomes foul and poisonous. It is sometimes asked how many fowls may be allowed on a certain sized piece of ground, but it is difficult to say, because the answer depends upon so many conditions—the breed of fowls, the sort of soil, the shape of the run and the way the run is laid out. When it is found that the grass is growing too long, then more birds may be kept; but if it is becoming bare and scratched up in spots, there are too many fowls.

DUBLIN COMMISSIONERS' SCHEME FOR QUAY AREA.

At the meeting of the Dublin City Commissioners last Saturday a report was received from Dr. Dwyer recommending that, with a view to the provision of much-needed housing accommodation in the neighbourhood of the quays, all necessary steps should be taken to acquire compulsorily property at the rear of Sir John Rogerson's quay, with an approximate area of 3 acres 2 roods 19 perches 15 yards, for the erection thereon of 200 flats four storeys high, comprising 120 two-room, 40 three-room, and 40 four-room flats. The estimated cost of the scheme was £105,250.

The report was adopted.

A letter from the Electricity Supply Board conveyed the sanction of the Board to the excess expenditure of £49,462 already incurred in respect of the Dublin Corporation electricity undertaking, and to the estimated additional expenditure of £22,268 for ordinary extension work for the period 30th June to 30th September, 1928.

FAIRVIEW CHANGES.

Mr. G. J. Sherlock, Town Clerk, wrote suggesting a revision of the boundaries of the polling districts in the Clontarf West Ward, and the appointment of a new polling station therefor. COUNTY DONEGAL ARRESTS.

Four men were brought before a special Court at Burtonport, and remanded on bail to the next District Court at Dungloe. It is alleged that they took part in a quarrel in a house where a "wake" was being held, when a man named Tom M'Auley was assaulted.

"Mother says I catch cold on purpose—

"But I don't. It's just that I don't mind colds like I used to when I had to swallow something bitter every time. Now I know Mother will just rub on Vick brand Vapour-Rub and put me right in a jiffy."

Not quite Joyce's words but, according to her mother, that is how she feels.

Children never object to this simple treatment.

Thousands prefer this modern vaporising salve because it checks colds overnight without "dosing". Rubbed on throat and chest, it acts in two ways.

Like a vapour-lamp, it gives off healing vapours which loosen the phlegm and clear the head. Like a poultice, it "draws out" all tightness and pain and helps the inhaled vapours to relieve the congestion. Just as good for adults, too.

Regular size now only 2/-, half-size 1/3, at all chemists'.

GETTING FITTED.

IN TWO CHAPTERS.

It was my first experience, and it happened years ago in Grafton street. I was a schoolgirl at the time. How many years ago I will not record, because a celebrated man of letters says that a woman that will tell her age will tell anything. That must be a secret even from myself. I will not put it down in my diary.

My sister was going to be fitted. She was years older than I—a tall, stately person; she might be called "une elegante." I had come out from school for the day, and had agreed to endure the fitting business on condition I had unlimited cream cakes afterwards at tea.

I was a wild and untidy girl, with long arms and legs that were always in everybody's way. I remember how I followed my sister awkwardly through the shop, glancing impatiently at gloves, handkerchiefs and stockings—I had no use for them.

Presently we arrived at a room decorated in the Adam's style. On the floor was a soft, enticing carpet. Over the archway hung a cream curtain, and on the walls were coloured reproductions of those ladies whose beauty enhanced the glory, and made more bitter the downfall of the French monarchy. A beautiful engraving hung over the fireplace: "Les Hazards Heureux d'Escarpolette," with the inscription beneath: "De Launay, Graveur du Roi."

The engraving represents a lady in a swing—a pretty Court lady, who plays at being a shepherdess. Swinging gaily in the garden, she might be taken as a symbol for all those joyous creatures that wandered through the leafy paths of Versailles, with their Queen, to the Trianon. Swains and shepherdesses made merry; rustic youths, with the high-sounding names of de Vaudreuil and D'Artois, and shepherdesses who bore the names of de Polignac and de Lamballe, until the cry went out that the Bastille had fallen and another de Launay's head was carried on a pike through the streets of Paris.

As we sat in this room a mannequin appeared, glided in through the cream curtain, took a few steps in a fitful dance, and was gone.

Then, as now, draperies were worn, and folds of gleaming satin twisted delicately at the heel as if with a life or their own. It was all so different from my own idea of being fitted. Tea time was passing, but I sat silent. I looked critically for the first time at my school frock. There was a split on the seam of the left side—I hastily sat on it.

Was this, then, how clothes had their beginning? Here under the old French pictures and the carved garlands of flowers, with their knots tied au Louis XV., they seemed under a spell.

Shortly afterwards I left Ireland. I spent several years in Munich and some months in Paris.

One day I found myself back in Dublin again. It was raining. I met a friend in Grafton street, and we had tea, and then we went to select her new evening frock together. I sat down in the room in which she was to be fitted. I know I wore that air of peculiar patience of those who are assisting at the making of another's frock. Suddenly, I saw something familiar in the room. I jumped up and looked closer. It was "Les Hazards Heureux. . . ." The memories of that other afternoon filtered into my mind. Just then the heavy cream curtain was pushed aside, and a charming young woman entered.

I watched all her graceful movements until the time came for my fat friend to force herself into some gossamer draperies. Then I watched the young woman outside—here was one that might have won a prize at the Artists' Festival in Munich, and there was another who might have led a Court dance.

It is true that the whole of civilisation might be summed up in a single gesture—a feminine gesture.

My friend was tiresome. Frock after frock dangled before her. Time after time the cream curtain swung back and the dark girl moved about in green and peach colour; and the fair one, with a grace that made one sad, lifted an arm or bent a knee in dusky silver and black.

Outside it was still raining. People hurried along. They nearly all wore the same hat—yes, I mean that, the same hat; it is turned up at the back—that they wore years before, and they wore tweed coats.

I looked back towards the lighted shop. "If ever," I said to my friend, "I have ten pounds to spend I will spend it there."

Autumn Hats.

Advance Models for Riviera Season.

A view of the new autumn millinery reveals a number of cloche models with widish brims flaring out from the face. There are also to be seen a number of beret forms and some close, brimless models. Fine supple felt, velours felt, and long pile, hatter's plush are used in a great many forms.

The advance models for the Riviera season are already being shown. These are in various straws and in many delicate pastel colourings. Some are large, some are medium, some are small, and the straws most liked seem to be Milan, crochet-straw and Bankok.

Trimming is often accomplished, where felt hats are concerned, with incrustations of a felt lighter in tone than the hat itself. The forms of these incrustations emphasise the curved line. Brims often ripple. Crowns are round and not too deep, so that flared brims do not eclipse the eyes.

A narrow band of moire braid is a finish to this patterned Chiffon Velvet Toque, with the front slightly shaped after Russian fashion.

There is only one mention in Holy Writ of the word hats—it occurs in Daniel 3 v. 21, in our translation, though the margin's states it may mean turbans. In any case it was a covering for the head, and although at the present day children and lads and lasses seem to enjoy doing without it, it must be admitted that for both men and women hats are an important adjunct to their appearance. In fact some modestes consider it the most important.

Hats play a leading part in polite society, and their use varies in different countries, and has varied in fashion. Mr. Pepys, in September, 1664, declared he got a severe cold because he took off his hat at dinner, and a nobleman long ago deplored a falling-off in good manners, mentioning as an example, that he never kept his hat on before those older than himself, except at dinner. Cardinals wear red hats, and we have heard of the Cap of Liberty. Hats have been made of all kinds of material. The straw hat industry was a flourishing one long ago, and has been partly revived of late.

To women the choice of a hat is generally a lengthy business and a milliner's shop or wareroom is one when patience (with a capital P) must be in evidence on the part of the seller, to say nothing of tact and wisdom in directing the taste and choice of the customer. Dublin is well supplied with hats of every sort and at every price.

Hints for the Housewife.

The Care of Furniture.

A section of housewifery that often receives less attention than it should is the care and cleaning of furniture.

Often a dusting and surface rubbing is all the attention that is given to upholstered pieces, and a rubbing with furniture cream is considered all that is necessary for polished tables, sideboards, etc. Such care may make the surface look all right, but it is not enough to really keep it in good condition.

"Fixed" cushions and padded chairs need frequent cleaning. It is not enough to rub over the surface with a cloth; this only removes the dust, while the grit and dirt are pressed further into the interior every time the furniture is used. This deeply embedded dirt and grit is not only unhealthy, but is also destructive, as the grit cuts into the fibres of the material and gradually weakens it. The crevices and dark corners of well-padded chairs also make ideal "nurseries" for moths.

The only satisfactory method of cleaning upholstered furniture is by the use of the vacuum cleaner. Nothing but strong suction will persuade the deeply-embedded dust to come to the surface and be removed. No dirt can, however, withstand the suction power of a good cleaner. Special tools are used on the cleaner to get into crevices and down the sides of chairs and couches.

Loose covers, if of cretonne, can be washed at home quite satisfactorily if bran water is used. To make this tie a pint of bran loosely in a muslin bag, and cover with two quarts of cold water. Let this simmer on the stove for half-an-hour, then add a third of it to the washing water and a third to each of two rinsing waters.

The bran cleanses, revives the colour, and slightly stiffens.

Chintz can also be home-cleaned without much trouble. Spread a large bath towel over the table and place the chintz upon it. Have ready a bowl of hot water and several rubbers. Wring out one of the rubbers until it is nearly dry, and apply it to the chintz. Then rub some carpet soap over the damp

The Vogue of the Moment in Paris.

Popularity of Velvet.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Saturday.

It is really becoming difficult for the dressmakers to find a novel manner in which to present their collections, but a certain well-known dressmaker in the Champs Elysées, who gave a private show recently, achieved the seemingly impossible. It was called "The Day of the chic Parisienne," and showed the heroine from the time when she awoke, rubbing sleepy eyes, in the morning, to find her maid-servant beside her presenting the "beauty products" for her bath and her toilette, to the hour when she said "Good-night."

All of her clothes were charming and wearable, and her costumes for golf and travelling evoked almost as much enthusiasm as those for hunting—with a long dangerous-looking double-barrelled gun—and the magnificent toilettes for a formal dinner and the Opera. The description was called out by a young Frenchman, whose quaint English helped to banish all formality from the gathering, since it caused everyone to break into gusts of sympathetic laughter.

An armful of roses, the long stalks of which were tied with ribbons, was handed to every woman guest on her entrance.

A Distinctive Line.

A line which is distinctive and very feminine is being shown in the winter collections. Every type of costume has some distinguishing feature. The tailor suits have shoulders so wide and so square that they almost seem padded; they show a slight incurved fit at the back.

Day-time frocks are distinctly fitted into the normal waistline at the back; many combine this with a bloused back effect, the actual joining of skirt and blouse being placed high on the hips. Afternoon gowns have 'kerchief drapes in the skirts, and square skirts are sometimes hung to stand out slightly at the sides.

Evening gowns show draperies, often in the form of split tunics falling to the ankles at the sides, while the back and front of the skirts are kept rather short while they cover the knees. The double waistline theme is in evidence, though often it is marked with fitting at one point and an actual belt at the other.

Ribbon belts drawn close to the normal waistline are a novelty in trimming. Sashes tied at the front appear on a number of the evening gowns. Front belts are used on some of the coats.

Refinements of Detail.

Many refinements of details are to be noted in the fashions this season. For instance, four flounces showing the barest degree of fullness on a slightly bell-shaped skirt strike a novel note. The use of large, flat buttons in hip yokes and side closings is another. Tunics over narrower skirts take unusual lines; sometimes they drop down in points a few inches below the underskirt, giving a conservative interpretation of the uneven hemline.

Evening skirts emphasise elongation of the hem at the back. The treatment of pleats, hemline, and unobtrusive hip yokes is perfect. A number of gowns, curving down at the back and up in the front, are treated with flounce motifs cut slightly circular. An evening gown with a spirally-wrapped flounce of lace is one of the rarely beautiful models of the season.

Seasonable Fabrics.

The new fabrics include many velvets, which are used even in combination with tweeds in the street clothes: many transparent velvets and many printed velvets. In these some quite large designs appear; many show flowers at least as large as pansies. Large prints also are used in some of these new soft velvets, these prints being also seen in some taffetas and chiffon gowns, while small dots and checked print velvets are the favourite patterns for day-time.

A number of jacquered satins are shown also, one large pattern for evening being touched with a slight brocading of silver. Crêpe satin, used on its dull and its shiny side, satin used on the straight and on the cross; broadcloth, used in two directions; combinations of wool textures, with crepe-de-chine or satin of the same tone, are striking, but discreet.

Athletic Slenderness.

Athletic slenderness is the vogue to-day. All dressmakers minister to it, and try to increase it by supple optical illusions. The present day couturière can take a slim young girl, and dress her to give the appearance of a wisp, a mere wraith. She can clothe the matronly figure, and make it look positively willowy. She has a way of using the diagonal line, arrow-shaped, decorative motifs, "V" shapes and "A" shapes, pointed appliques and godets, and inverted box-pleats, which are all her own. These happy traits appear as startling advantages in the autumn and winter clothes.

At the same time, she uses colour combinations, which are rich and beautiful. An ensemble seen the other day and worn by a well-known Parisienne—a brown satin coat over an orange crêpe dress—was masterly; and an evening gown with diagonal appliqués, ranging from Mediterranean blue to "Pervanche" blue, was simply delightful.

portion. This soap not only cleanses the chintz, but prevents the colour from fading. Wring out another cloth in the water and apply it to the soapy part of the material which will then lather. Next a dry, warm cloth should be wiped over the chintz to remove the soap and to make the material partially dry. Fold each portion carefully as it is done.

When one side has been cleaned in this way, reverse the material and clean the other side in the same way.

When leather upholstery has become shabby it can be rejuvenated if treated in the following way:—

Heat half a pint of linseed oil in a tin or jar standing in a saucepan of water over the fire. Allow to cool, and then stir in the same amount of vinegar. The mixture should be sprinkled on a piece of flannel and rubbed well into the leather.

MARY GWYNNE HOWELL.

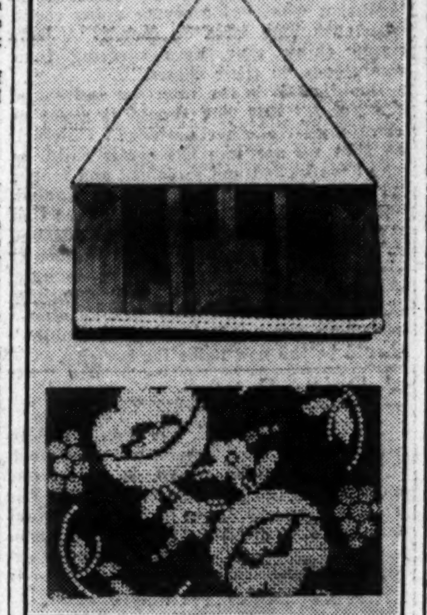

Your Correspondence.

The Importance of Good Stationery.

DEAR PAULINE,—Like many other Dubliners, I have received during the past few weeks many communications from firms (local and otherwise) inviting me to view their autumn stocks.

The outward appearance of these letters varied considerably, and I interested myself by analysing the effect of the receipt of the different grades of notepaper used. There is no doubt that money spent on good stationery is well spent. It is true that cheap paper gets there just as quickly as the first-class stuff, but somehow it fails to inspire respect, and its very appearance helps to precipitate its descent to the waste-paper basket.

I have just read a very interesting American publication on letter writing. The author lays particular stress on the advantage of appearance both in the unopened envelope and in the actual letter. With regard to the letter itself, he says "simplicity, frankness and believability are the greatest virtues any letter can have." He adds that a successful letter should pass the following tests:—"Your letter must be opened, read, understood, believed, agreed with, and acted upon"!

It is a great pity that letter writing, which is so important an asset in both the social and the business world, receives so remarkably little attention in our schoolrooms! This is, of course, not in our sphere to rectify, but at least we women can see to it that our homes are stocked with really good plain notepaper, which, when properly folded, enveloped, and delivered, will have a sufficiently attractive appearance to gain attention, whatever the contents may be!

On View.

But to get back to those invitations to view stocks. Of course, I availed myself of the opportunity, with the result that I saw some very lovely frocks and cosy, sensible coats. The frocks were mostly in tweeds and face cloths, with flat fur trimmings and very large cuffs. I did not see many capes, but one or two models had a small cape merging into the sleeves of the coat.

Some of the newest jumper suits had plain crepe de chine skirts, pleated or flared, under jumpers made of printed velvet. Velvet this season is a thing of great beauty. Its texture is so fine that it resembles the softest satin, and it figures in many of the latest evening gowns.

As regards length, we read much about longer skirts, but, generally speaking, there is no change in length for day wear. For evening gowns, however, unevenness is essential. Either you have a drapery falling low below the hem-line or else the hem-line itself dips from just below the knee until it tips the slipper, either in the centre of the back or at either or both sides. The little short, straight, even-hemmed dance frock is quite a back number.

Quite a number of evening frocks carried scarf collars. For non-dance dresses the scarf is a very comfortable addition, but it does not show to advantage in the ballroom.

Evening Bags.

Since powder puffs and "hankies" sensibly refuse to be left at home from parties or dances, evening bags are quite essential! Luckily, these dainty articles are quite easily made at home, so Miss Cleverfingers can readily have a bag to match each frock.

Silver or gold tissue bags should be kept in black paper when not in use, as they tarnish easily. If, by accident, they get a tarnished appearance they should be brushed with magnesia powder, which will quite restore their brightness.

Three-eighths of a yard of ribbon, with the same amount for lining, is all the material necessary for bag-making. So popular has this mode become that the shops actually stock special ribbon for this purpose. I have made several of both the pochette and handle variety, and will gladly help you to make one should you care to do so.

Some people who are very particular in other matters are obviously very careless about powder puffs. I know that it is very difficult to buy the tiny puffs to fit small cases unless you buy a refill at the same time. And washing puffs is not only difficult, but it is not very successful either.

I find that the best plan is to buy a sifter case which you can fill with whatever powder you favour, and, instead of bothering with a conventional puff, buy a roll of cotton wool at your chemists. It will only cost a few pence and will last for months. Each day you can pop a fresh piece of wool into your powder case, and I can promise you that you will appreciate the difference.—Yours, with love,

MARY.

BROADCASTING.

The Dublin programme to-night includes a performance of Dvorak's Symphony "From the New World"—one of the most popular symphonic works in the orchestral repertoire—to be followed by songs by Mr. P. J. Duffy and Miss Mollie Phillips, and violin solos by Mr. Leonard Hirsch, with a variety half-hour intervening in the musical programme.

Belfast is relaying the London broadcast of the ceremony of presentation of the freedom of the City of London to the retiring Archbishop of Canterbury at 12.30 to-day, and its night programme also is from London.

Available also on the 5XX wave-length, the London programme to-night includes at 8 o'clock a vaudeville programme, to which Clarice Mayne, Tommy Handley and others will contribute, with twenty minutes of the "turn" by Van and Schenk at the London Palladium.

At 9.5 p.m. 5GB will broadcast selections from popular musical comedies. Otherwise, the the B.B.C. programmes are exceptionally lacking in features of interest to-day.

SURVEYORS' INSTITUTION.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Irish Branch of the Surveyors' Institution was held last Thursday. Mr. W. Fower-Steele (Chairman) presided, and there were also present:—Messrs. Claud J. Bourchier, Vice-Chairman; Major R. G. Gethin, R. E. Maunsell, H. Morrison Wood, W. H. Hinde, C. J. Dunlop, E. J. Anthony, H. A. Vernon, Harry Franks, J. Graves Clayton, W. H. F. Verschoyle and B. J. Newcombe (Secretary).

A reception committee representative of Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State was appointed for the Institution's visit to Belfast in 1929. Mr. W. J. Ward, F.S.I., of the Valuation Department, Belfast, was co-opted a member of the Executive Committee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the Right Hon. George F. Stewart, and Mr. Robert H. R. Stewart, of Dublin, was co-opted a member of the Finance Committee.

Applications from three candidates to sit for the preliminary examination, January, 1929, and from four candidates to sit for the professional examinations in March, 1929, were approved.

Pork prices advanced 5s. to 68s. in Ballygawley market last Saturday.

COMPULSORY ENGLISH.

NORTH-WESTERN CRITICISM.

THE "TEACHER STUDENTS."

(By D. M. LARGE.)

THE would-be conversationalist at any social gathering in Ireland will do well to avoid some subjects, among which may be reckoned as equally dangerous the comparatively recent "bad times" and "compulsory Irish." Yet, although the forcible feeding of the Irish language to apparently unwilling students is not a happy subject for polite conversation, one has read and heard a good deal about it from time to time, and one has sympathised with hard-worked teachers who must spend most of their summer holiday in a city class room, listening to lectures in an unfamiliar tongue.

Speaking for myself, I have always wanted to learn Irish, provided that it might be a voluntary study, and not a compulsory one. When, during the month of August I sojourned in an Irish-speaking district on the north-west coast, I waylaid the kindly people as they went about their work, and persuaded them to repeat, over and over again, some simple phrase that might be useful to me in everyday conversation.

It is a sad commentary on our summer weather that the first phrase that seemed to leap to the minds of my various teachers as being an eminently suitable one, was, "It's a wet day"; and for long enough that was all that I needed. "Good morning; it's a wet day," would take one anywhere. After a while things looked up a bit, and I added "It's a fine day" to my repertoire, as well as two painfully acquired remarks that have proved singularly unhelpful in our own inland district—namely, "The sea is calm to-day" and "The tide is going out." Still, they made me feel that I was getting on.

FRANK SURPRISE.

Most of the people on that strip of coast spoke English. Some spoke it fluently, others haltingly, and some of the older folk spoke it not at all. According to some of our "compulsory Irish" enthusiasts, the place should have been a modern Utopia, in which everybody was fully equipped from birth for the highest places of honour. For the midland visitor it was particularly interesting to note the attitude of those native Irish speakers towards the natural gift that is theirs, and for the possession of which other Irish people strive so earnestly. The first thing that struck one was the frank surprise of all those folk that any holiday-maker should be willing to spend his or her time in "sthrivin' to learn the Gaelic." This might be explained, however, by the natural courtesy of Irish people who will always decry a gift denied to the stranger.

Considerable astonishment was expressed also concerning the "teacher students" who flock to a large Irish college a few miles away, and may be met along the narrow roads, poring over some book of grammar or conversation. In their case the cause for surprise lay in the fact that the local people could not understand what they were saying when they spoke Gaelic, although they were the more advanced Irish scholars. Stranger still was the fact, often volunteered by dissatisfied parents, that they are unable to understand the Gaelic taught to their own small children in the schools near by. As one woman described it, "I'm sayin' the Gaelic that the old neighbours talked around here, it be's gone out of fashion; for the weans is learnin' a new kind of talk altogether."

GAELIC AND "MATE."

The greatest ambition of every boy and girl in that place was to speak good English, and we heard many complaints from the grown-ups that sufficient time was not being given in the schools to the teaching of the English language. "What chance do they have when they go to Derry or Sthrabane," a man said indignantly, "or even America itself"—these three places seem to be the Meccas of the youthful pilgrimages from that tiny village—"if so be they haven't the English an' can't talk up to sthrange people? There's our Hughie would have gone to great lengths only for the way he had nothing but the Gaelic when he went first, an' God knows it kep him back, so it did. He wrote a lether here this while back. 'Let the young lads see they have the English before they go anywhere,' he says; 'for the Gaelic won't put much mate in their mouths.'"

Some of the exiles from that place have got on wonderfully well in the world, and hold high positions in our own cities and in other places across the sea, where a knowledge of Irish is equally unnecessary. Their success is universally attributed to the fact that they "had good English" before they went, and thus were enabled to "talk up to" those with whom they came in contact.

With the aid of an interpretor I conversed with one dear old woman who could not speak a word of English. "She's sayin' what, in the name of God, do you want with Gaelic when you have good English" was the translation of a long and rapid speech. "Tell her," I said, "that you must have the Irish now if you want to get on in this country"; but the old woman shook her head and spoke at great length. "She's sayin'," the interpreter summed up concisely, "that the Gaelic won't take you very far."

Airwoman's Accident.

The many Irish friends of Miss Sicele O'Brien, the noted airwoman, who met with such a serious accident in England on Saturday, will sympathise sincerely with her and her family in her misfortune. Miss O'Brien, with Lady Heath and Lady Bailey, was among the most prominent women flyers in the world, and her daring was much admired even by hardened pilots. She was the originator of London's first aerial "taxi"-service. She offered her Moth aeroplane for hire not only for short "hops," but also for air trips to any part of the world, and her enterprise was meeting with much success when her unhappy accident occurred.

MISS S. O'BRIEN.

Before she took up flying as a profession Miss O'Brien, who is a daughter of Sir Timothy O'Brien, the veteran Irish sportsman and cricketer, was herself a well-known figure in the hunting-field and on the tennis-courts in Ireland. During the war she served in France as an ambulance driver with the First Aid Nursing Yeomanry, and after the Armistice she caused something of a "sensation" in society by electing to hire out her own car to tourists in England, she herself acting as chauffeuse and mechanic.

As a member of the London Aero Club, Miss O'Brien took out her pilot's ticket almost two years ago, and won the first women's air race, the Aerial Oaks, at Bournemouth.

Three months ago she flew to Rotterdam, and at the International Light Aeroplane Meeting there she not only led the winning team, but carried off the first prize for a demonstration flight in which the "stunts" included spinning, rolling and looping. At Blackpool the other day, carrying a fifteen-year-old passenger of her own sex, Miss O'Brien won the Manchester Daily Dispatch Trophy.

In addition to her taxi-service, Miss O'Brien also went in for exhibition work and gave flying instruction.

Noblesse Oblige.

I saw a pleasant little incident in Dublin a few days ago. A British soldier in khaki uniform was walking down Grafton-street in the early afternoon, looking very smart and well turned-out. A Free State officer, also in uniform, was coming up the street, and as soon as he came abreast of the "Tommy," the latter saluted smartly. For a moment the officer seemed to be rather taken aback at this unexpected little act of courtesy, but he quickly recovered himself and returned the salute with grave precision.

Incidents of this kind are of greater value to the relations between Ireland and England than all the efforts of the politicians, and I was particularly interested to discover afterwards that the British "Tommy" was an Englishman who had married a Dublin girl during the "troubles." Truly time brings changes.

An Interesting Economy.

My reference to the trade in old horse-shoes has prompted a correspondent to tell me of a case in which scrap iron is being put to a novel use in this country.

I am told that the Kingstown Urban District Council is building a breakwater round the corner of the rubbish dump near Salthill Railway Station, and the Surveyor in charge of the work has brought his ingenuity to bear on the problem of strengthening the wall in an economical manner.

As each layer of concrete is laid it is reinforced with old iron bedsteads, bicycle frames, railings, and, in fact, any piece of old scrap metal which may be got for the trouble of collecting it off the rubbish dump.

If this is not saving the ratepayers' money, I do not know what is.

Disfigured Villages.

Motoring through the country during the past five weeks, I have noticed the rapid erection of Shannon distribution networks in the towns, and I have been struck by the unsightliness of the tarred poles and wires.

Nearer Dublin similar poles may be seen in Dalkey district. It seems a pity that the poles were not erected at the backs of the houses. I should think that a line of poles could serve two rows of houses equally well if the "lead in" were arranged at the back, and so disfigurement of the main streets would be avoided.

An Indian Decoration.

Sir Geoffrey Fitzhervey de Montmorency, K.C.I.E., K.C.V.O., C.B.E., who, I learn, has been appointed a Knight Commander of the Order of the Star of India, is the son of the late Venerable Archdeacon W. de Montmorency, of Castle Morres, Knocktopher, and was born in 1876.

Sir Geoffrey entered the Indian Civil Service in 1899, and has since held many important official positions. In 1903 he became Assistant Colonisation Officer of the Chenab Colony, and four years later became Deputy Commissioner of Lyalpur. In 1909 he returned to Chenab as Settlement Officer, and after two years was appointed Junior Secretary to the Financial Commissioner.

During the visit of the Prince of Wales to India in 1921-22 Sir Geoffrey was Chief Secretary to His Royal Highness. Subsequently he became Private Secretary to the Viceroy of India, and more recently was appointed Governor of the Punjab.

Canal Boats.

Crossing Baggot street Bridge recently, my attention was attracted by a small knot of people looking over the parapet. As I joined them, I saw that they were gazing at what is now a rare sight in Dublin—a canal boat being towed along by a horse. But during the early part of the 19th century these barges were a favourite means of conveyance for people travelling to the interior of Ireland. Old pictures in the National Gallery show them as being rather like a Noah's Ark in shape, but with an open-air deck on top of the cabin. They travelled at the reckless speed of three miles per hour, and if the passengers got tired of sitting they could get out and walk. Nevertheless, it must have been a more pleasant way of travelling than the dusty, jolting stage-coach of the period, which was the only alternative.

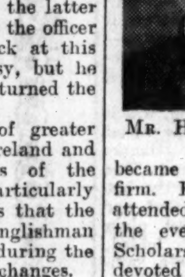

"Doleful Dublin."

Referring to your paragraph on this subject, writes a local correspondent, it is not only returning travellers who notice the sad aspect of present-day Irish folk. Time and again people have remarked to me lately on the doleful demeanour of our friends and neighbours. As one country woman expressively phrased it: "Musha, what has everyone going round with such long faces on them? A body would think they were carrying their tombstones on their chests."

Doubtless it is the after-war sadness of the world. But why should it affect us more than the other nations? Unless it be that we are like the spoilt children, who have kicked and screamed and fought for something they thought they wanted, and then, when they got it, discovered that it was not the thing they had really desired at all; or it may be the desperate difficulty and dearness of living in this country, where food and clothing (to say nothing of taxes) are more expensive than almost anywhere else. "Dear, doleful Dublin" should be the new name for our city.

A Dublin Painter.

Mr. Harry Kernoff, the young Dublin artist whose exhibitions have aroused much interest in artistic circles, is one of our most highly gifted young painters. His work is unorthodox, but he has an original mind and is quite fearless of criticism. He is a ceaseless experimenter, and is continually trying new forms of technique. One of these days he will discover himself, and then, I feel sure, Kernoff will produce a big work.

MR. H. KERNOFF.

He is only twenty-eight years of age. Born of Russian-Jewish parents, he came to Dublin from London when he was only fourteen and became apprenticed to a cabinet-making firm. He worked at his bench all day, but attended the Metropolitan School of Art in the evenings until he won the Taylor Scholarship in 1923. Since then he has devoted virtually all his time to his art. Mr. Kernoff is a member of the Dublin Painters' Group, and also of the London Faculty of Arts. He already has painted some very striking pictures, including "The Dance of Life," "War," and "The Judgment of Paris." He has had three exhibitions in Dublin, and has shown his pictures all over the British Isles. More will be heard of Mr. Kernoff.

An Irish Landowner.

Lord Garvagh, who is announced to be disposing of his estates in County Down, is the fourth holder of the title, which is taken from Garvagh, in County Londonderry.

Lord Garvagh lives at Ashby Hall, near Lincoln, and owns in all about 15,500 acres. He is the son of the third Baron, his mother being a daughter of Baron de Bretton, of Copenhagen, and he has just passed his fifti[?]h birthday. He married in 1919 the widow of Lieutenant-Colonel Dimmer, V.C., M.C.

His lordship formerly held a commission in the Highland Light Infantry, and subsequently was an officer in the Royal Flying Corps. The County Down estates compose about fifty farms in the Barony of Lower Castlereagh.

Belfast Professor's New Commentary

Professor David Smith, D.D., whose new book, "The Disciple's Commentary of the Gospels," adds another to the valuable books on religious matters he had already published, fills with distinction the Chair of New Testament Criticism at Assembly College, Belfast.

Dr. Smith, who is a native of Lanarkshire, Scotland, received his early education at the Academy at Rothesay, whence he proceeded to Glasgow University and the Free Church College.

He had a brilliant college career, being Jeffrey Medallist, Blackstone Medallist, Sandford Greek Scholar, and William Ewing Fellow, and he was elected Stevenson Scholar in 1887 as the most distinguished graduate of the year at the Free Church College.

Dr. Smith served as minister at Tulliallan and Blairgowrie befo[re] his appointment as Professor of Theology at Magee College in 1909, from which he transferred a few years ago to Belfast.

In 1911 Dr. Smith was Bruce Lecturer at Glasgow U. Free College, and in the same year was Smyth Lecturer at Magee College. He went to America in 1912 to lecture at Chicago and Pittsburg.

The best known of his books is "The Days of His Flesh," which has reached its fourteenth edition, and has been translated into several languages.

Ilnaculin and Agriculture.

Visitors to Glengarriff have a delightful surprise in store when, after rowing for a quarter of an hour from the mainland, they land on Ilnaculin. It is the residence of Mrs. Annan Bryce, and has now been open to the public for three years on payment of 2s. entrance fee. The number of visitors this year runs to three thousand, about the same as last year's total. American visitors to Glengarriff, however, are disappointed that the time allotted on the tours should be so short in Glengarriff. They all have heard of Mrs. Bryce's brother-in-law, who was Ambassador at Washington, and wrote a remarkable history of the American Constitution, and much regret was expressed that after lunch in Glengarriff they were obliged to rush away.

MRS. BRYCE.

Ilnaculin, in its display of foreign flowers and shrubs, its Italian summer house, water-lilied pond, flagged paths, terraces and statues, is certainly unique; and, although the mainland temperature is one of the warmest in Ireland, the island, on landing, seems more southerly still.

Mrs. Bryce, who had been living in Wexford before she took over Ilnaculin, was inspired by the work she saw done there by Canon Doyle to found an agricultural society in Glengarriff in 1910. She hoped to stimulate interest in the early potato market first, and later to bring about improvement in the cattle-breeding, the grading of eggs, and the raising of fruit and vegetables that might later be sold in the hotels and in the Cork market.

The climate was most propitious towards Mrs. Bryce's scheme; but, unfortunately, she did not obtain the same support in Glengarriff as she might have done from Canon Doyle. Her own island is, however, the best example of what could be done. A visitor who inquired how Mrs. Bryce got food was astonished to hear that not only was she self-supporting, but that she supplied one of the leading hotels with vegetables and milk. Thirty years ago Ilnaculin was a mass of boulders and heather.

That White Line.

The white line of the blameless pedestrian in Dublin, at least, has provided amusement. The popular pastime during the gale on Friday night last was to see if you could walk it without being blown off. In the small hours of the morning belated revellers used it to demonstrate their complete sobriety.

In a narrow lane in the heart of the city some satirist had gone to the trouble of chalking a white line down the centre of a footpath barely two feet wide.

The people in a long queue outside one of the principal picture houses on Saturday night were carefully marshalled on the wrong side of the line, with their backs to the kerb-side traffic.

The chant of the white line, as heard in various quarters, ran:

If you keep to the left, you'll be right;
If you keep to the right, you'll be left.

Tammany's Woman "Boss."

In his entourage of enthusiastic campaigners in the great struggle now in progress for the Presidency of the United States, Governor Smith has no more remarkable worker than Mrs. Belle Moskowitz. All the great daily papers from Chicago to New York which espouse the Democratic cause are loud in their praises of her great organising abilities, and the resource she has shown in winning for her chief the support of a number of anti-Tammany organs.

When "Boss" Charles I. Murphy, of Tammany, died on the eve of the Convention in Madison square Gardens, Mrs. Moskowitz stepped into his place, despite the attempts of some of the ward "pachems" to cold-shoulder her, and has since made her personality felt in all political activities in New York City and State. As head of the Publicity Committee, which is doing the principal work for the Democratic candidate, Mrs. Moskowitz has made her influence felt all over the States. Among the editors she has been unceasingly busy, and prevailed on all who were Populists or luke-warm supporters of Prohibition to throw their weight into the fight for Smith.

Censored Thoughts.

The article in your columns recently entitled "Dethroning Genius," writes a correspondent, draws a well-timed attention to the miserable attempts of cynical authors to rob us of our ideals by the cheap method of "mud-throwing." In this connection it is not surprising to recall that St. Paul met with traducers of greatness in his day, and, as an antidote to the methods of such carping critics, he writes:—"Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

Doubtless, most of those who have studied the life of this Christian pioneer have seen in the above-quoted words one of the reasons why he retained his ideals to the last, in spite of the hatred, hardship and criticism which he endured from the moment of his spiritual upheaval on the Damascus road.

QUIDNUNC.

GOODWINS LOSE THEIR TERRORS.

PLAGUE SPOT OF THE CHANNEL CONQUERED.

FEWER DISAPPEARANCES.

(By KAYE CHARTERTON.)

THE "plague spot" of the English Channel was once an apt description for the Goodwin Sands, but no longer is this applicable; for its grim mysteries are now happily few. It used to be said that the very name was suggestive of death and destruction in connection with "disasters at sea, usually the most appalling and complete; for the Goodwins rarely do their fearful work by halves."

Such things were said fifty years ago. Now the terrible character has become almost a matter of history. Thanks to invention, so much has been done with new ideas in buoys and lightships and lifeboats that to most people the Goodwins are a dread memory and no more.

Now, however, there has been a dramatic addition to the toll, and part of the mystery still remains unsolved. The lifeboats on the Kent coast received signals of an aeroplane, as well as a ship, in distress, and when they put to sea they found that a Polish cadet ship had been holed almost to her keel in a collision with a Norwegian steamer near the South Goodwins. Fortunately, all the boats had been lowered, and sixty officers and the cadets had succeeded in getting away.

The lifeboatmen, however, failed to find any trace of an aeroplane. Fishermen declared that they had seen one apparently in difficulties over the notorious sands. If it fell, it was probably swallowed up, as many good ships have been in the tragic past.

"DREADFUL SECRETS."

The worst feature in the sinister reputation of the Goodwins was that it could keep its "dreadful secrets." One of the most dramatic of these occurred on a black November morning, when people standing on the beach at Deal at nine o'clock saw a large vessel go ashore on the sands. The lifeboat was immediately launched and remained at sea for more than five hours; but the gallant men saw absolutely nothing, and did not find so much as a spar or timber of the lost ship.

Just as they were turning homewards they found an empty ship's boat adrift, but it was nameless. The vessel, with every soul on board, had gone down, leaving not a trace of name or nationality. Presumably, she was a foreigner; and, if so, she added to the shipping history of another country a story of a "ship that never returned."

There are still some foolhardy captains who will never use pilots if they can possibly help it, even when they have to navigate their vessels in strange waters and unfamiliar harbours. There are some, too, who like to boast that they would take a ship anywhere, and, although it may be something of the spirit of the old sea dogs, there are places where it is folly.

Perhaps this is the reason for the mysterious disappearance of a ship recently near the Goodwins. The captain was taking his vessel along the coast past Ramsgate when a fog was thickening, and the skipper of a Deal boat offered to pilot the vessel through for five pounds. "No, thanks; can't wait," was the captain's answer. "I've passed the worst."

That was the last seen or heard of the ship and her crew. In the night she vanished in the sands, and left no soul to tell the tale.

NAMELESS MYSTERIES.

A Channel packet boat would have been one of the nameless mysteries of the Goodwins but for the fact that some days afterwards a bit of timber from her stern, and bearing her name, was picked up. This was the sole evidence of the wreck. No signals had been heard. She had crossed from Ostend in a snow storm, and had vanished with every soul on board.

Another memorable night provided four mysteries. Three ships had shown signals of distress, but had disappeared before they could be reached. When a steam tug promptly put out in answer to the signals from one vessel, this, too, disappeared and never returned to harbour. Not a relic of these four ships was found. Such stories indicate what a wonderful work has been accomplished by the Brethren of Trinity House during the past fifty years in steadily breaking the fatal spell of the Goodwin Sands. It has been accomplished by unwearying experiment with devices for beacons and buoys; and also by well-equipped lifeboats, manned by real heroes.

All manner of humane men have brought their ingenious minds to bear in the field of invention. Indeed, one of the most notable ideas, that of floating lightships, came first from a Norfolk barber. The result is that a complete disappearance without a trace is very rare. The tragic Goodwins have lost their worst terrors.

IRISH FOLK-LORE : ITS RICH HARVEST YET UNGARNERED.

"On those old houses, if we could but read it, the history of France is chronicled," Balzac writes in "Eugenie Grandet," describing the strange hierglyphs traced on ancient house-doors in Saumur—mysterious signs, once clearly to be understood, all clues to which are forgotten now. "In such wise," he says, "would a Protestant make his confession of faith; there also would a Leaguer curse Henry IV. in graven symbols. A burgher would commemorate his civic dignities, the glory of his long-forgotten tenure of office as alderman or sheriff."

The history of our country is written for such as can read it, in many places other than history books. Further, there is a source of Irish history, yet untapped to a sufficient extent, where the record is not a written one, but is treasured in precarious fashion in the memory of men and women who are possibly incapable of writing down what they have received by word of mouth from their parents, and can only pass it on in the same manner.

This source, which we in this country have neglected to an extraordinary degree, is a fruitful one, and of rare interest—the study and careful collection of folk-lore.

Little has been done at all until recently to garner and make available the enormous harvest of folk-tales, songs, and proverbs that once existed in such profusion. The work has been left to a small band of enthusiasts, and is, moreover, for the most part what is called "a thank-you job," and not too much thanks either.

THE ONLY WAY.

In another ten years or so it will be too late to hope to add anything to the store of such material as has been collected. There is only one way to collect Irish folk-lore, and that is to get it direct from the people to whom it has been handed down from one generation to another. In Irish-speaking districts there are old people who have nearly reached the allotted span of years. With them lies the last hope of the folk-lore collector, who would make amends for the neglect of the past. In their own youth their minds were filled with these treasures of the past during the long winter evenings by the turf fire. There are winter evenings as long as ever, and there are turf fires still, but the generation that is growing up now in our cottages and cabins has no use for such simple fare. If an ancient, sitting in the chimney corner, is heard to mumble that difficult Irish word that means "folk-tale" the kitchen is cleared in double quick time.

The Folk-lore Society of Ireland is doing all it can with the limited means at its disposal to gather and make available material from all parts of the country. The Editor of the Society's journal, Mr. James Delargy, returned a short time ago from a six months' stay in Northern European countries, where he made a study of the local methods of dealing with folk-lore and utilising it for educational purposes. Among the numerous folk-lore institutes he visited are those situated at Lund, Gothenburg, Upsala, Oslo, Abo, Helsingfors, Dorpat and Copenhagen. In every one of these places he was met with queries as to what was being done in Ireland to make our folk-lore available for the Irish people. Unwillingly he had to confess that very little was being done. Continental students found it difficult to credit such a statement, as in their eyes Irish folk-lore is the most important in Europe for the purposes of comparative study, having remained freer from any outside influence than that of other countries which were more subject to Roman civilisation or to the inroads of the barbarians when they overran Europe.

EUROPEAN INTEREST.

At the Folk-lore Institute in Oslo there is a fine collection of our folk-lore made by Dr. Christiansen, who visited this country not long ago for the purpose of making a collection of all such material available in Ireland. Dr. von Sydow, who was here at the same time as Dr. Christiansen, has the finest collection of our folk-lore in private hands which exists outside of Ireland.

In Germany the study of folk-lore has been intensified since the war, and is pursued in its widest sense, as including everything that goes to make up a cultured background and a great national asset. In Saxony one folk-lore society numbers forty thousand members. There are many Germans who look to it as something from which may be built up a different Germany—perhaps, a Germany more useful to humanity. Their folk-lore atlas, which is in process of being compiled, is the biggest thing of its kind ever attempted. It is in the hands of a special department enjoying Government support, and gets considerable help from the various Churches of the country. In every training school for teachers in Germany folk-lore has been made a compulsory subject. In discussing the subject with Mr. Delargy, a highly-placed civil servant who had to do with Government grants for educational purposes debated whether, from a national view-point, folk-lore might not be held to be one of the most important subjects of all.

The motto of our Folk-lore Society is, "Colligite quae superaverunt fragmenta ne pereant," but the collectors are few, and such fragments as are not soon gathered together will certainly perish.

During the past five years Mr. Delargy has devoted his holidays to the collection of material from one parish in West Kerry, and he has not yet exhausted the store to be found there. His principal source of information is an old man of a majesty of demeanour that would grace a throne, who can speak not a word of English, or understand it. It is only from such people that folk-lore can be satisfactorily harvested. When translated into English, or any other language, it is, as is always the case with translations, shorn of much of its glamour and real significance. During a visit to a district on the Tipperary-Waterford border Mr. Delargy got a large number of folk tales from a man who stated that he had not been asked to draw on his store of such knowledge for forty years.

A REMARKABLE COLLECTION.

Last year the existence of a collection of Irish folk-lore came to light which has a strange history. In 1904 a man named Michael Timony, who had been in Australia for over twenty years, came home to Ireland and began to take a deep interest in the Gaelic League. He started to teach Irish in the west of Ireland, and during the pursuit of this hobby of his he met a man in Belmullet, from one of the islands, who aroused his interest in folk tales. He decided to collect all he could find in Mayo, and spent some time in Achill, gathering finally a supply of tales that would cost nearly four hundred pounds to print in Irish text alone. He then returned to Australia with his treasure-trove in a large box, along with a lot of books in Irish. He wandered from one gold digging to another for a long time, always accompanied by the box; then he dumped the books in charge of someone in a town in Northern Queensland, but still clung to his folk tales and traditional prayers of the mediæval type, which had cost him such pains to gather; they were too precious to lose sight of. People in this country who had been interested in him during his quest in Ireland had not forgotten him; but they had heard nothing of him for years, and believed him to be dead. Last year he arrived home again, box and all complete. He stayed in Rathfarnham for a time, where Mr. Delargy visited him. He is 77 years of age now, and the one important thing in life for him is that box full of folk-lore. Even that super-enthusiast, the editor of the Folk-lore Journal thinks Mr. Timony is inclined to place a rather fantastic value on his collection. Much gold, or even a shipload of our beautiful new Irish notes, would hardly induce him to part with the box that has gone through such vicissitudes with him. And, indeed, it would cost more than the Society has any near prospect of possessing to print and publish a quarter of his manuscripts. He has gone back to the West of Ireland, taking them with him, and their chances of publication are on the knees of the gods.

OUR LETHARGY.

It was only during the past half century that the importance of folk-lore had been realised in this country, and then only by the very few. Many keen students of Irish history, who appreciate the necessity for study of our antiquities, customs, laws and institutions, have never taken into proper consideration the light that can be thrown on the psychology of the people, and on our history in general by the folk-lore that has come down to us unchanged—only piecemeal, it is true—from the earliest date of our race. Other countries, where its value as a part of national life is now more fully understood, are beginning to question our strange lethargy in the matter. Such folk-lore as we have to show in collected form has been enough to bring various distinguished foreigners to our country for the purposes of study and comparison. But so far as any general effort goes in the way of making our collection as worthy a goal as possible for such journeys, these kindly spies have so far found a very naked land indeed.

SONG AND VIOLIN RECITAL.

DUBLIN SOPRANO'S ARTISTRY.

The programme last night at Miss Violet Pearson's song recital in the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, had been made up with the discriminating sense of music-values that was to mark the singer's work all the evening. From the first number, or perhaps the second—as at first traces of nervousness were evident—it was felt that Miss Pearson approached each song with a sincere appreciation of its art-worth in tone or appeal to feeling, and we had quick and continual impressions, high in beauty and mentally arresting, even when in most familiar numbers. From Schubert, "Nachtviolen" and "Ave Maria" were distinctive studies, the colourtones of the one against the pure delivery of the other, while flexibility and nice phrasing made Gustav Mahler's "Wer Hat Dies Liedlein Erdacht" very acceptable indeed. But that Miss Pearson's forte is the dramatic singing, and that in opera, the big Aria from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda" ("Suicido") showed. Her lower register here was both musical and fraught with feeling, while her volume in alt made its dramatic stress most effective.

In Debussy—always a test for a singer—she achieved the nebulous effects delightfully, ably seconded by her clever accompanist, Dr. Annie Brereton. Indeed, throughout the programme the pianist was invaluable as back-ground, some of her work remaining long in the memory—the Handel interludes, for instance.

THE VIOLINIST.

Mr. Arthur Franks's successes at the Feis Ceil brought him into first-rank notice. Always he will be a careful, and in all probabilty a brilliant, violinist. His command of the bow was evidenced in the Finale from Wieniawski's Concerto in D minor, where his grace of phrasing and full intonation were consistently good; the "Romance," perhaps from being out of context, hardly so satisfying.

Mr. Franks's programme also included Dvorak's "Slavonic Dance in E minor," Bach's "Gavotte in E major," and the Kies "Perpetuum Mobile." It is enough to say that this young violinist is more than justifying the hopes held out for him at the Feis.

Both he and Miss Pearson were recalled repeatedly, Miss Pearson receiving several bouquets. The recital was in every way successful, with a special word of thanks for the work of the accompanist.

POPULAR MUNICIPAL ENTERPRISE.

SATURDAY NIGHT MUSIC IN BELFAST.

The first of the popular concerts for the season, organised by the Belfast Corporation, was held in the Ulster Hall, on Saturday night and was a most gratifying success from every point of view, the hall being packed with an enthusiastic audience, while the programme was varied and interesting. Organ solos were played by Captain C. J. Brennan, Mus. Bac., the city organist. Movements from Handel's Fourth Organ Concerto received a scholarly rendering, and César Franck's "Chant Heroique" gave much pleasure. A group of Hungarian airs by Heysigg revealed the charm of their distinctive idiom. A March from Wagner's early opera, "Rienzi," was inspiring in its martial rendering and crashing chordal progressions, the pedal work being extremely effective. The organist's other numbers included compositions by Wolstenholme and Carman. The audience thoroughly enjoyed all the organ pieces, and Captain Brennan had to respond to several encores. Miss Geraldine Costigan, a Feis Ceoil gold medallist, sang a group of songs by Montagu Phillips, and was cordially encored for her cultured interpretations. The well-known prologue from "Pagliacci" was dramatically rendered by Mr. Hugh Carson, a pleasant-toned baritone, and he later on sang "Maid of Morven," one of the most appealing of Highland melodies. Delightful monologues were given by Miss Helen Tinsley, a young lady whose characterisations in the spoken word are always appreciated by her hearers. The pianoforte accompaniments were played by Mr. J. McKeown, A.R.C.O.

A LORD OXFORD MEMORIAL BUST.

A memorial to the late Earl of Oxford and asquith will be unveiled at his birthplace, Morley, Yorkshire, on October 29. The memorial takes the form of a bronze bust, which is being placed in the Town Hall.

Executed by Mr. Charles Fehr, the bust has been presented, and will be unveiled by Sir William Middlebrook, of Scarborough, formerly of Morley, a brother-Freeman of the late Lord Oxford.

Sir William, when intimating to the Morley Town Council his intention to present the memorial, said that he "had long had the desire to see some permanent memorial to their greatest townsman, to commemorate a man who was of all things a great Englishman and a true gentleman."

SOUTH IRISH HORSE.

Arrangements are now complete for the holding of the second South Irish Horse annual re-union dance in the Metropole Ballroom, Dublin, on November 9th. The patrons and committee are combining to make the event an even greater success than last year, when over 600 attended. There is already a very keen demand for tickets.

An extensive programme of entertainment is being prepared for this occasion, and no effort is being spared to provide items with an air of novelty. The bands engaged will render a special programme of war time music, and, in addition, numerous prizes will be distributed for fancy dress costumes.

CLOSE OF NORTH TYRONE FISHING SEASON.

The fishing season on the North Tyrone river closed last Saturday. During the past week there were plenty of salmon in the rivers, but the flood made sport impossible. In Newtownstewart district Mr. J. P. Dobson headed the list of salmon catches for the season with 88 fish. Among the keenest anglers this year was the Marquis of Hamilton, who fished on the Mourne in September. There were more visitors than usual in the Newtownstewart hotels.

MISS MacSWINEY'S £150.

Miss Mary MacSwiney forwards two letters with reference to the election deposit fee of £150 for the 1921 election.

In the first Mr. Hugo V. Flinn wrote to Mr. Ernest Blythe—"I enclose you a letter which has appeared in to-day's Press from Miss Mary MacSwiney, Cork. It contains all the information I have on the matter. I shall be much obliged if you will let me know what exactly is the position in this case and the cause of withholding, and whether anything can be done to have the matter put right."

In the second Mr. Ernest Blythe replied to Mr. Hugo Flinn as follows:—"In reply to your letter of the 4th instant, enclosing a Press cutting relating to the deposit made in connection with the candidature of Miss Mary MacSwiney for the Cork Borough Constituency at the General Election held in May, 1921, I am directed by the Minister for Finance to state that the election deposit indicated is under his immediate control, and that the question of its return will receive early consideration in the event of a personal application being made to this Department by the candidate."

Miss MacSwiney says that she made inquiries, and found that the nine candidates received their deposit fees, after applying as she has already done, to the Sheriff or Returning Officer only, either personally or through a solicitor, and in no case did any of these condidates make a "personal application" to Mr. Blythe or his "Department."

"I have not," she adds, "the smallest intention of making a 'personal application' to Mr. Blythe for money due to me."

"GAELIC LANGUAGE AN[D] FAITH."

In the evening an all-Irish pape[r was read] to a large gathering of men and w[omen who] are interested in the Irish lan[guage by] Seamus O'Searcoigh, M.A., Belf[ast. The] subject was folk-lore and the Cath[olic Faith.]

He traced the progress of religi[on in Ire]land from the days of St. Pat[rick, who] found it a pagan nation, and refer[red to the] establishment of churches and mon[astic insti]tutions, from which men of reli[gion] and learning went forth to Eng[land,] Scotland and to several countries [...] where their work bore good fruit a[nd] their memory was still cherished. THE TEACHING OF FOLK-LO[RE.]

The Rev. T. O Muirthile, proposin[g a vote] of thanks to the lecturer, expressed [the hope] that while the youth of the prese[nt were] learning Irish they were being taugh[t ...] of the folk-lore, the remnants of wh[ich were] still to be heard in the Gaeltacht.

CATHOLIC TRUTH SOCIETY.

CONCLUDING SESSIONS.

ADVICE TO CHILDREN.

The concluding sessions of the annual Conference of the Catholic Truth Society of Ireland took place last Saturday.

In the afternoon there were lectures to boys and girls at different hours.

The Very Rev. Aloysius Corbett, O.D.C., presided over the girls' meeting. The Rev. T. Grogan, addressing them, said that he took it for granted that they were going to be children of a Catholic nation. What really mattered with regard to children was a personal love of Our Lord and Saviour, and for their neighbour. He wanted the children when they heard people arguing about Irish, and things of that kind, to love the Irish language for the one great reason, namely, that it was the language of the holy men and women of Ireland in the past. He suggested that drawing should be made compulsory in the schools, so that there might be created a school of Irish art, which they had not at present. If girls had that they would be able to design their own dresses, and the Bishops would not have to say anything on that subject, for they would all be perfectly sensible.

Speaking to a later meeting of boys and girls, Father Grogan said that the Catholic Church throughout the world owed a great deal to the boys and girls of Ireland, who left everything that they held dear, at the call of the Master, and went out to foreign lands to preach the Gospel. If they realised what wonderful men Ireland had given to Foreign Missions they would be very proud to say that they were their fellow-countrymen.

"GAELIC LANGUAGE AND THE FAITH."

In the evening an all-Irish paper was read to a large gathering of men and women who are interested in the Irish language, by Seamus O'Searcoigh, M.A., Belfast. His subject was folk-lore and the Catholic faith.

He traced the progress of religion in Ireland from the days of St. Patrick, who found it a pagan nation, and referred to the establishment of churches and monastic institutions, from which men of religious zeal and learning went forth to England and Scotland and to several countries in Europe, where their work bore good fruit and where their memory was still cherished. These men brought fame to Ireland for its Catholic faith and for their learning. In those far-off days the ordinary language of the people was the Irish, although Greek and Latin were also cultivated. Poetry and story-telling in the homes of the people were fostered, and in this domain there was an accumulation of religious folk-lore, which it would be well to have rescued from oblivion. Some of this had come down even from the time of St. Patrick.

In spite of the persecution of alien governments, the traditions of the faith had survived. The present generation owed a great deal to Daniel O'Connell, who had obtained for our forefathers a degree of freedom under the Catholic Emancipation Act, and thereby awakened a new and a better spirit in them.

The lecturer deplored the fact that in these days pupils in the schools were not given a proper picture of Ireland's ancient history. Ireland, he said, was a nation that was endeavouring to pull itself together. It could not properly succeed in doing that without having regard to the past. Kings or Parliaments might establish States, but they could not create a nation. A nation must grow out of the seed that it sows. It would be difficult to think of Ireland a nation if it had not the Irish language, and more difficult still would it be if the Catholic faith were wanting. A very great part of the life of the Irish nation was its Catholic faith, which it observed and practised for fifteen hundred years.

THE TEACHING OF FOLK-LORE.

The Rev. T. O Muirthile, proposing a vote of thanks to the lecturer, expressed his regret that while the youth of the present were learning Irish they were being taught nothing of the folk-lore, the remnants of which were still to be heard in the Gaeltacht.

Lord Ashbourne, seconding, said that Ireland could hardly be said to be a Catholic nation; "for you cannot have a Catholic nation until you have an Irish nation." (Applause.)

The Rev. Gerald O'Nowlan, Maynooth, who presided, agreed with the last remark, and said that there was a great deal of talk recently about bad papers and bad books, and of the desirability of excluding them; but if those who spoke of these things would turn to the Irish language and urge people to learn and to read it, little or no attention would be given to the objectionable literature referred to. The North Tipperary County Council has received notice of a compensation claim for £1,000 in respect of the recent burning of Lord Lascelles's property at Portumna.

A CIVIC GUARD'S BRAVE ACTION.

CERTIFICATE OF HONOUR AWARDED.

On Saturday last, in the Dublin District Court, Mr. G. Cussen, Senior Justice, presented Guard Laurence Keating, 59 B, with a certificate of honour, which had been awarded to him by the Order of St. John of Jerusalem (London) in recognition of his courageous action while on duty. On the evening of the 14th March last Keating was on point duty at the corner of Clare street and Merrion square, when he saw a horse yoked to a corn-dray galloping at a furious rate towards him from the direction of Government Buildings. Mr. Cussen, who, at the request of the Commissioner of the Guards, made the presentation, complimented Guard Keating on his gallant conduct on the occasion in question, and said that it was to him a source of pleasure to be in a position to present the Guard with such a valuable testimonial. Keating, he said, had a fine record as a policeman and as an athlete, having been a member of the D.M.G. tug-of-war team that won the championship for Ireland in the competition with Great Britain at Wembley in 1923. A SOUTHERN LETTER.

An Opportunity for Haulbowline Dockyard: Bishop and Trades Union: Cork Harbour Administration Criticised: An Auxiliary County Home for Waterford.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Sunday.

The reassuring news from Detroit that the entire tractor manufacturing plant at Mr. Henry Ford's factory there is being shipped to Cork not only dissipates the gloom regarding the future of the factory here, but holds out the prospect of a bigger industry and a long period of prosperity and activity at the Marina Works.

Apart altogether from the large order from the Russian Government, it is realised that there is a steadily growing market in Europe for tractors, agricultural and industrial, and for this reason the estimated output of three hundred machines per day may be accepted as reliable. The success of the scheme will help to relieve the prevailing unemployment in the city and district

HAULBOWLINE'S CHANCE.

In this connection it might be pointed out that, while there is ample room for extension at the Cork works, additional storage facilities will be required when the work is in full swing. A great floor space is necessary even for one week's stock of tractor-wheels, and it is suggested that the most suitable premises available are the Haulbowline dockyards.

Since the end of the British régime, these have been idle, and, despite numerous attempts, it has been found impracticable to keep them in use, and a loss of £15,000 annually has been incurred by the Government. A great opportunity is now presented of making use of the idle yards.

INTERFERENCE WITH FREEDOM.

In an outspoken letter to the local Press, the Most Rev. Dr. Cohalan, Roman Catholic Bishop of Cork, replies to the criticisms to which the project of the new chapel in re-enforced concrete was subjected by some members of the Cork and District Trades Council recently. It had been suggested that a building in stone or brick would have given far more employment than a concrete building, while the cost would have been approximately the same, but this his lordship declares to be erroneous, as the lowest tender in stone or brick for the shell of the building was £32,000, while the cost in reinforced concrete will be slightly under £20,000.

Deprecating this interference with freedom and the development and prosperity of the city, Dr. Cohalan states that intermeddling of this character is prejudicial to Cork, and he adds that while trades unions have their legitimate purposes they do nothing constructive themselves, have no right to dictate to others what architect they shall employ or whether the building is to be erected in stone or brick or in concrete.

They complained that all new industries were being centred in Dublin, and that Cork was not getting its legitimate share, but in Dublin they would find reasonable liberty in this connection. "One has to go away from Cork to learn what a bad name our city has for labour conditions," adds his lordship. At home they did not realise it, but it was a serious matter, and, while the rights of the workers and their unions must be realised and respected, it was the duty of everyone to insist on that freedom of action and general conditions that were necessary for the development of the city, for attracting industrialists, for the establishment of industries and the creation of employment.

HARBOUR BOARD IN THE LIMELIGHT.

The administrative affairs of the Cork Harbour Board were again under the searchlight during the past week, when the Rates Advisory Committee continued their application for an order empowering them to increase certain cargo tonnage dues. The proposal was strenuously opposed by the shipping companies using the port, and it was stated in evidence by Mr. A. C. Horne that under proper business management there should be no difficulty in effecting a saving of £10,000 annually in connection with the port. He was perfectly satisfied that the Board could carry on on its existing revenue basis, and added that in his opinion a more rigid supervision would undoubtedly result in considerable economy.

Mr. J. Reardon, the Board's counsel, on the other hand, declared that throughout the inquiry there had been made a general charge against the Commissioners of extravagance, but it was unsupported by evidence, and it had not been shown that their present financial position was due to extravagant or unbusinesslike management. There was not a single instance proved of extravagance as regards salaries, although it was suggested that the Board had been extravagant in regard to pensions, holiday pay, wages and salaries.

HARBOUR BOARD PENSIONS.

It is undoubtedly the modern policy to encourage pensions for employés not only of public Boards, but also for the workers of private firms, and it is somewhat unusual to find schemes of this nature subject to criticism. Various anomalies are complained of in the Cork Harbour Commissioners' list of pensioners, however, and a movement is on foot to bring about certain reforms and alterations in the scheme. It is pointed out that, while one employé at his death fell short by three weeks of the requisite term of ten years to qualify for a pension, his widow was given an ex gratia grant of £25. In contrast to this there is the case of an official who died after four and a half years' service, and his widow receives a pension of £250 per annum.

These facts were brought to light at the last meeting of the Board by Mr. A. C. Horne, when he proposed that all those on their pension list in receipt of more than £1 per week be requested to furnish a statutory declaration regarding their financial condition. He said that he thought that they should conserve their resources for the benefit of those justly entitled to pensions, and those who could live in affluence without pensions should do so.

Mr. R. S. Anthony, T.D., declared that there were several persons drawing pensions from the Board not by virtue of service, but by virtue of the number of their friends among the Commissioners. This assertion was vigorously refuted by Mr. C. C. Mercier and other members, and it was decided to adjourn the matter for one month to enable further information to be obtained regarding the basis on which Civil Service schemes are worked.

IRELAND'S BEST CUSTOMER.

It was evident during the discussion which followed Senator J. C. Dowdall's address on the "Fundamentals of Irish Economics," at the Cork School of Commerce Literary Society, that at least some of his listeners were not in entire agreement with the sentiments expressed. He said that they in Ireland sold their agricultural produce to a single customer, who had a mortgage on their land and who controlled the necessary auxiliary services of transport and distribution, and they dealt in their currency. As their products were mainly perishable, that condition was a sufficient explanation for their poverty, emigration, discontent and general disorganisation which existed.

He suggested that the remedy was to be found in an alternative market, and they could also develop the home field by increasing industrial and other activities by which those engaged in industrial production could produce for the agricultural producer such goods as the latter required and receive in exchange the food produced by him.

WHY TARIFFS HAVE FAILED.

Mr. M. J. Nagle, one of the leading members of the cattle trade in the South of Ireland, said that he was entirely in favour of having the control of transport in Irish hands; but, as they were not in a position to take it over, it was much better vested with a cross-Channel company than that the port of Cork should remain derelict for some years. From what had been said, it might appear that the cattle trade had a tremendous grievance against buyers in England, but that was not so. The preservation of Irish cattle was almost of as much importance to Great Britain as to Ireland, and until they could get some other country to pay them £34,000,000 annually for their cattle it was futile to talk about diverting the trade.

Mr. M. A. Purcell pointed out that, despite their tariff wall and all that had been said by preachers of economics, the imports to their country exceeded the exports, for the main reason that the public could not afford to pay the prohibitive price demanded for local produce.

Professor Busteed pointed out that the Food Prices Commission in its report had drawn attention to the extraordinary position of transport rates for food products between Ireland and Great Britain. They constituted, he said, a tariff definitely in favour of Denmark, New Zealand and other countries

WATERFORD'S AUXILIARY COUNTY HOME.

The poverty and overcrowding in the districts of Waterford City was referred to at the last meeting of the County Hospital Committee, when it was decided to convert the unoccupied portion of the old workhouse into an auxiliary home for the district. It was stated that in one small street there were seven tenement houses, where the rooms were so crowded that there were people sleeping on the lobbies outside the doors every night. It was pointed out by Dr. Purcell that there was a large number of people in the city who should be in a home, but they would not come under that scheme.

Accommodation will be provided for almost three hundred people at the new auxiliary home, and the various matters in connection with the project—the setting up of the home, classification of patients, staff, etc.—will come before the County Board of Assistance at their next meeting.

OLD IRISH LABOURER'S HOARD.

£700 FOR SON AND DAUGHTER.

Information is sought as to the whereabouts of the son and daughter of Patrick Cavanagh, the septuagenarian labourer, of Liverpool, who died suddenly in his lodgings, and was found to be the possessor of a hoard amounting to over £700. Up to last night the identity of the man and woman had not been established, although a woman who it is thought might possibly prove to be the daughter has been seen in Liverpool.

Inquiries are also being prosecuted in Ireland.

The treasure was found in an unlocked cupboard of the room which old Cavanagh had occupied for about eight years. Treasury notes to the value of £216 were wrapped in a paper parcel, £165 10s. was contained in a tin box, £82 in a tool-bag, £34 10s. in a purse, and he had £200 invested in the Post Office Savings Bank.

A note, apparently in the handwriting of the old man, was also found. It merely contained a request that the money should be given to his son and daughter, but there was no intimation as to their whereabouts.

TOO MANY PUBLIC-HOUSES.

LURE TO YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN TO DRINK.

Judge Devitt, at Drogheda Circuit Court last Saturday, heard the application of the State to have abolished the licence attaching to the premises of William McArdle, of Togher, County Louth, and granted the application. The application was made in the first instance before District Justice Goff at Dunleer District Court last September, and Mr. Goff made the reference order referring the matter for decision to the Circuit Court. Judge Devitt, made the abolition order, and said that he would assess the compensation at the special sitting for that purpose in Dundalk.

He said that the number of licensed premises in the Saorstat was such as to really amount to a lure to the young men and women of the country to drink, and therefore the legislature, in the interests of society, decided that it was essential that the number must be reduced. The premises in question, a thatched mud cabin, was, he thought, exactly the type of premises that should be abolished, and, while sympathetic to the publican, he must look to the common good, and he made the order for abolition.

PRESBYTERIANS IN BELFAST.

SEVEN MORE CHURCHES NEEDED.

Speaking at the laying of the foundation stones of a new lecture hall and portion of a new church for Ekenhead Congregation, Belfast, on Saturday, the Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, the Right Rev. T. A. Smyth, LL.B., said that during the past month that was the third function of that kind in which some of them had been engaged, and still they were only on the outskirts of what the necessity of the case demanded.

The rapid growth of the city in every direction was a call and challenge to the Church to supply her children with the means of grace, and it was gratifying that in some measure she was making a generous response.

Mr. David Irwin, speaking with the permission of the Moderator, said that he desired to make a statement. This was, that they needed seven or eight additional new churches in Belfast, apart from those now building. If they were to minister to the spiritual life of their people they must of necessity have those churches and congregations. The Moderator had mentioned to him the figure of £100,000. They required that £100,000 to meet the present needs, and he believed that they could get it. It would mean much for Presbyterianism in their midst.

GOOD-LOOKING MATRONS.

MONAGHAN'S OBJECTION.

It was suggested at Monaghan Board of Health meeting that when next the Appointments Commission recommended a matron for Monaghan County Hospital one of the qualifications should be that she should not be good-looking.

The matron, who was appointed only three months ago, had resigned to be married. The Board regretted her departure, the secretary stating that she had made an excellent start.

Mr. Peter McKenna said that the Appointments Commission should not appoint a matron "eye-sweet." (Laughter.)

Senator O'Rourke—You would say that they should not appoint a good-looking matron.

Colonel Madden said that he was reminded of a London firm that appointed only good-looking typists. They remained only a short time, and the firm got them at the lowest salary.

THE FREE STATE'S CONSTITUTION.

POINTS EXPLAINED TO AMERICAN LAWYERS.

In the address which he delivered at the semi-centennial meeting of the American Bar Association, at Seattle, on the occasion of his recent visit to the United States, Chief Justice Kennedy dealt with the character and sources of the Constitution of the Irish Free State. Having reviewed significant events in Irish history leading up to the Treaty, and dealt with "the external Constitution," as contained in the first four articles of that instrument, he told his audience that they would ask how came it, if the Irish Free State had entered the British Commonwealth or Nations, as a co-equal member of that association, that Irish publicists, supporters of the Treaty, were sometimes found asserting that Ireland is not a Dominion. The explanation, he said, was not far to seek, and was very important for a complete understanding of the difficulties which followed the Treaty. The idea which it was intended to convey by the statements in question would be better expressed by saying that "Ireland is not a colony." "What they mean," said the Chief Justice, "is that the people which has acceded to the British Commonwealth of Nations under the style of 'Saorstat Eireann,' or 'the Irish Free State,' is not one of the British Colonies, which in comparatively later times have gone forth to occupy in the name of their mother country some of their still virgin expanses of the earth, propagated, welded themselves into new political communities and evolved new political identities, and which grew to Dominion stature within modern historical memory."

AN ANCIENT NATION.

Ireland was not a British Colony, but an ancient nation, which had entered into the British community of nations, clothed with the constitutional status and equality of a Dominion member of that community, in pursuance of a pact of peace and friendship for the ending of an age-long enmity. Here they had the explanation of much of the trouble in Ireland, which many must find quite beyond understanding. Wherever British colonists had gone and settled and laid the foundations of new nations, they had carried with them British tradition, British institutions, British constitutional theories, and, above all, their admired common law; and these were the inheritance which they handed on to the Dominions that sprang from their loins. In Ireland, however, these things were for centuries possession of an alien ascendancy and had no roots in the heart of the Irish people, who had their own traditions and their own laws, which they were forbidden to enjoy, while denied at the same time the benefit of the alien institutions. That tradition of hostility survived even the later time when British law extended through the whole country. And it must be remembered that if they meant by "common law" the customary unwritten law only, that law which was the product of the daily lives and habits and settled practice of a community, and, therefore, their natural low, so to speak, English common law was never "common law" in that sense among the Irishry. Here they had the clue to the refusal to recognise in constitutional matters legal fictions which the English legal genius had made the cover for the growth and development of the Common Law. Fictions as to the doing of constitutional acts by the Crown, acts which were, in fact, though not in name, done by ministries which were responsible for such acts to Parliament, were not readily acceptable to people who had not had any part in the evolution of the reality under cover of the fiction, and who, therefore, insisted that the fiction must be the reality, and the reality only a pretence. This was one of the fundamental difficulties in obtaining general acceptance for the constitutional theories involved in the Treaty of 1921, a difficulty for which allowance was not made by many Englishmen and others, because they did not understand it.

In the course of a review of the principal constitutional limitations derived from the Treaty, the Chief Justice, speaking of the right availed of by the six counties to go out of the jurisdiction of the Free State Parliament, said that the six counties took that course, not permanently, as every Irishman hoped and prayed, nay, in all sincerity believed.

RECONCILEMENT.

The Chief Justice went on to sketch the history and nature of the Constitution. "To adopt the poet's modest claim," concluded the Chief Justice, "it may be a poor thing, but it is all our own, and as such we assert its authority and claim upon our people. This boast at least we may make without fear of challenge, that under the institutions as we have made them there is no room for ascendancy of class or religion, and the upgrowing youth of our State will compete with equality of opportunity in a free country to whose service they are now called to give of their best in conditions which realise what seemed the wild dreams of their fathers, conditions which end a feud of centuries and open up the economic and other possibilities which should flow from the reconcilement of historic enmity."

The American Bar Association says of this address that it was one of the high lights of the programme. It was the first official introduction of that important instrument (the Constitution) to the American Bar. As one listened to Chief Justice Kennedy, one got a glimpse of the other Irish Free State—not the one that was represented in occasional and fragmentary newspaper despatches about official activities, but the Free State whose people had at last moulded their governmental environment to suit their own feelings, and had thus released powerful stores of patient energy and enthusiasm for the working out of economic and social problems.

The Chief Justice also gave an address at the banquet of the Association at Seattle.

TOTAL ABSTINENCE MOVEMENT.

CHILDREN'S SECTION.

The annual juvenile meeting of all probationers (boys and girls under 16 years of age) of the Pioneer Total Abstinence Association of the Sacred Heart (Dublin District) was held yesterday afternoon in the Theatre Royal, Dublin, which was crowded. The Rev. Father T. Grogan, C.C., Fairview, who presided, expressed his pleasure at seeing such a magnificent gathering.

The Rev. Father Flinn, S.J., Central Director of the Pioneer Association, said that the claim of the Juvenile Total Abstinence Association of the Sacred Heart was to try to preserve the children from the taste of drink in childhood's years; to help to the strict observance of the Confirmation pledge, and to prepare the minds of the more reliable and generous of the children to the idea of joining the Pioneers as soon as they were old enough to do so.

The working of the Juvenile Association was extremely simple, and especially adapted for use in the schools. Its results, where worked on the right lines, had been surprisingly good and enduring. It had its own special juvenile badge, which might be used both by children who were confirmed and by the still younger, whose first pledge was only until they were fourteen.

Father Flinn then told the children that they were all to keep their pledges faithfully, first out of a motive of self-preservation, then to give good example and to obtain the conversion of the drunkard; and, lastly, for the sake of the Sacred Heart. They were going to be soldiers of Christ, fighting against His enemies—drunkenness and intemperance. He reminded them that they must always wear their pledge badges and repeat their pledge every morning and every night. He announced that the prize for the best essay describing last year's meeting had been won by Lucille O'Langan, of the Dominican Convent, Sion Hill.

Mr. J. P. Dunne proposed a vote of thanks to Father Flinn, and said that there was a new vice in Ireland to-day, and that was the vice of gambling. He regretted to notice that many of the Pioneers were patronising gambling shops. Gambling was almost as bad as drink, and he appealed to them not to have anything to do with it, and to try and prevent their parents and other relatives from having anything to do with it. He trusted that the Legislature would very soon wipe away the temptation of gambling.

Afterwards an enjoyable programme of musical and dancing items was given. It included a children's gavotte by Madam Rock's pupils, Irish dances by Miss P. Medlar's pupils, and numbers by Mr. Valentine Vousden. The Artane band also played.

There were about 4,000 children present, and those on the platform included the Rev. M. Kirwan, S.J.; the Rev. Father Cronin, C.P.; the Rev. M. Tomkin, S.J.; the Rev. R. Campbell, S.J.; and the Rev. C. Moloney, S.J.

HOCKEY.

THE SENIOR LEAGUE.

RAILWAY UNION (1) V. PEMBROKE WANDERERS (0).

On the play Railway Union were lucky to secure the points in this match with Pembroke Wanderers at Park avenue on Saturday. The forwards were seen to very poor advantage. Their apparent over-anxiety and the sound marking of the visitors' defenders was responsible. Indeed, the play of the respective defences was the best feature in a rather scrappy game.

In this respect K. Browner and M. O'Donoghue were easily ahead of Spence and O'Sullivan, even making allowance for difference in the opposition. So well did the former play that in the first half—although Wanderers often reached the circle—Leopold was only tested once, and then saved a difficult shot from Martin with his hand.

The home half-backs also were sound, and kept the forwards on the offensive for the best part of the opening period. Several corners, long and short, were awarded, and invariably the ball went direct to V. Sully, but not once did he succeed in finding the net. Little was there to spoil him every time. Then, again, Hannon was playing really well, and came through a trying first half with colours flying.

But if Railway Union had the better of matters in the first half, Wanderers could claim the advantage in the second. Early on, however, Hennessy got away on the left, and a beautiful centre resulted in V. Sully scoring with a first time drive. Wanderers went all out following this reverse, and a couple of fine efforts by Martin deserved a better fate.

Considering the amount of play in the home half, Leopold had comparatively little to do. Railway, who had been making periodic raids, were frequently dangerous, and in a sustained offensive in the closing stages both V. Sully and T. Browner had hard luck with good shots. Teams:—

Railway Union—W. C. Leopold; K. N. Browner, M. C. O'Donoghue; J. J. Corscadden, W. Chiddick (capt.), R. Williams; T. C. Browner, C. Sully, V. Sully, H. Sully, W. E. Hennessy.

Pembroke Wanderers.—F. Hannon (capt.); E. E. Spence, O. O'Sullivan; D. Allen, C. Little, K. Keane; S. Doyle, H. Hall, R. P. Martin, G. Miller, J. A. Stanistreet.

Umpires—Messrs. W. F. McDonnell and D. J. Colter.

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY (3) V. THREE ROCK ROVERS (2).

At Foxrock on Saturday an interesting and cosely-fought game resulted in a win for Dublin University by the odd goal in five. With both teams at full strength, a fast game was the outcome, in which the play reached an exceptionally high standard. The only disappointing feature was the poor shooting of the Rovers' front-line when well placed. F. B. Moynihan was at the top of his form, particularly in the second half, when he stopped an apparently unsaveable shot from Medcalf.

Midway through the second half the visitors' half-back line proved their worth by giving a perfect display both in defence and in backing up their forwards in attack, E. P. Griffiths being prominent. Trinity were well served by the West-Wilson combination on the right wing, the former showing great speed and some excellent stick work.

The home forward line played with pace and dash, and their second score, which was the outcome of a good passing movement initiated by Boyd and carried on by Eyre, Medcalf and Mahony, ended in the scoring.

The scoring opened by Wilson beating Eustace with a fast, rising shot. A quick rush down, and Mahony beat Moynihan. Then Rovers took the lead with the goal referred to. Trinity equalised with a fine goal from Crawley. Just before the interval West passed in to Wilson, who beat Eustace with an unsaveable shot into the roof of the net.

The second half, although scoreless, provided some excellent hockey, and showed both clubs possessed of sound defence. Teams:—

Three Rock Rovers—F. Eustace; C. Somerville-Large, B. J. Daly; R. F. Brown, G. V. Boyd, A. P. Huet; S. Leonard, J. M. Eyre, J. F. Mahnoy, M. H. Medcalf, A. Robinson.

Dublin University—F. B. Moynihan; R. P. M'Garrigle, J. E. R. Keyms; H. T. Fleming, E. P. Griffiths, N. A. Kinnear; G. F. West, J. G. Wilson, E. G. Fitt, W. D. Crawley, T. G. M'Veagh.

Umpires—Messrs. F. Hirst and S. M'Elveen.

WICKLOW'S PROMISING DISPLAY.

MONKSTOWN (4) V. WICKLOW (1).

Although Wicklow were defeated by four goals to one—by a net margin, therefore, of three scores—by Monkstown in the match at Royal terrace on Saturday, it must not be imagined that there was this much between them on the run of the play.

Far from it, indeed, for they were well in the picture all the time, and actually it was weakness in the circle more than anything else that beat them on this occasion. They should have scored at least one goal, possibly two in the first half. Knight, in the Monkstown goal, certainly had much more to do during this period than his vis-à-vis in the Wicklow net, and he was sound always when he was tried. It was the shooting, however, which was weak, and here it is that this country team will have to improve.

It was during the second period that Monkstown really had their measure; but, even here, in the play, the length of the field between the circles, the visitors did quite as well as their opponents; but, when it came to making use of openings, there was only one side in it, the winners. It should be mentioned, however, that between accidents and otherwise, Monkstown is not as strong as they might be, and the chief weakness at present is the forward line. If Wicklow had had to play the latter at full strength, then the match would have been a real test.

It was by no means a bad game on Saturday, and the pitch was fair enough, although there is still a lot of grass to come off it. It is still bumpy in parts, but both teams appeared to adapt themselves easily to it. As has been said, Wicklow did extremely well during the opening period, during which Tyndall scored early for Monkstown from a penalty corner, a clever shot.

In the second Monkstown were on top for the first fifteen minutes. White scored soon after the restart and followed it up by another goal ten minutes' later. Wicklow were now three scores behind, and it did not seem right. They put all they knew into their game, and they were rewarded when Gelletlie scored, this pleasing the spectators immensely. They kept the effort up, but now Monkstown were easily the better side, and before time ran out McElveen had sent home a fourth score for the home team. Teams:—

Wicklow—W. Roberts; E. J. Hopkins, R. Kent; W. McEachern, C. Hopkins, F. B. Kent; J. McCarroll, C. Gelletlie, J. Kerr, W. F. Orr, D. O'Reilly.

Monkstown—A. R. Knight; V. G. Williams, G. Darcus; P. D. McWeeney, G. Tyndall, W. P. Delamere; J. McElveen, O. Langford, A. Knight, C. White, J. Gray.

Umpire—Mr. L. Morrison.

NATIONAL BANK (2) V. CORINTHIANS (1).

The hockey in this match on Corinthians' ground at Clontarf was far below senior standard. The forwards of each team seemed to have little understanding as a line, and not one clever attacking movement was forthcoming. Individually, players made strenuous efforts to penetrate the opposing defence, but full backs are too good now for one-man attacks to succeed.

The Corinthians' ground has not yet developed into a first-class playing pitch. A heavy roller should make an improvement. The ground, however, could not be blamed for the play. Apart from the defensive work of the home backs, Dewar and Campbell, and some of the goalkeeping (by both goalkeepers), there was little of interest in the game.

Both goals had escapes in the first half. The second period ran on even lines, too, and it was not till after 55 minutes' play that Tully sent a centre across the goal-mouth—D'Arcy missed and Brislane scored.

The Bank set out for the equaliser, and Deignan got it for them. A. Keegan had an easy chance to give his team the lead, but he could not get the ball into an empty net. Another attack by the Bank and Felton scored a goal, which gave them their first League points of the season. Teams:—

Corinthians—R. W. Keegan; E. Dewar, D. Campbell; A. Palk, C. Gregory, G. Shaw; F. Tully, J. Shannon, A. J. Keegan (capt.), C. Brislane, H. V. Keegan.

National Bank—D. D'Arcy; R. Hewitt, J. Collins; B. Maunsell (capt.), A. P. Swaine, F. Twamley; D. Dixon, E. Deignan, S. Armstrong, P. Felton, C. Irvine.

Umpire—Mr. A. Orr.

KINGSTOWN G.S. (6) V. DALKEY (1).

Another easy victory was secured by Kingstown Grammar School over Dalkey, at Greenfield, Stillorgan road, on Saturday, the score being 6 goals to 1.

The final score on Saturday, however, should not be taken as an indication of the play throughout the game. The School were the first to attack, but the forwards failed to avail themselves of splendid openings. Dalkey had their full share of the game during the first twenty minutes, and were the first to score, Manning being responsible for a good goal from a corner. The Dalkey goalkeeper, Anderson, was under heavy pressure subsequently, but he was undefeated until just before half-time Cook and Ritchie broke through for two goals in quick succession. On this 2-1 score the teams changed over.

In the second half the School gave a very fine display. Their forwards improved greatly, and romped through the Dalkey defence.

Except for an occasional break away Dalkey were held in their own half, and had it not been for some sturdy goalkeeping by Anderson, the scoring would have been very heavy. As it was, Duke and Cheetham each beat him twice, and the School took full points on a 6-1 score. Teams:—

Kingstown G.S.—F. Whitney; E. S. Philips, I. A. Varian; L. S. Phillips, E. Winder, R. S. Felton; T. Staples, F. Duke, W. C. Ritchie, C. W. Cook, S. Cheetham.

Dalkey—R. J. Anderson; W. V. Crawford, S. F. Smalldridge; R. G. Hall, E. P. Manning, W. H. Kenny; J. T. Boardman, A. D. Sarratt, T. Pender, T. F. Cobbe, M. J. Walsh.

WELCOME TO JUDGE DEVITT.

Welcoming Judge Devitt when he opened the Drogheda Circuit Court last Saturday, Mr. M. J. Kierans, solicitor, said that his lordship's reputation had preceded him there, and he could assure him, on behalf of the Drogheda Sessional Bar, that the practitioners there would be loyal to him and to his Court, while, at the same time, they were convinced that they might expect from his lordship the kindly help and consideration that had been extended to them by previous Circuit Court judges in that circuit.

Mr. W. Callan, on behalf of the Bar, and Mr. A. N. Sheridan (County Registrar), on behalf of the officials, having associated themselves with the welcome, Judge Devitt said that he felt that he did not come among them as a stranger, because, as the County Registrar said, he had some experience of the Drogheda Bar when, for a brief period before the Courts of Justice Act was put in force, he was acting as County Court judge in place of Judge Johnson, and he was glad to return, because he knew that the practitioners of County Louth would certainly make the work not only very easy, but very pleasant.

DR. MACRORY IN DROGHEDA.

CEREMONIES AT ST. PETER'S CHURCH.

DROGHEDA, Sunday.

Saint Peter's Church, Drogheda, was filled to-night when the Most Rev. Dr. MacRory, Archbishop of Armagh, presided at the evening devotions, which began at 7 o'clock. A few minutes before seven His Grace, along with Monsignor Seagrave, P.P., and Fathers Woods and Harmon, curates, entered the church, preceded by Cross-bearer and acolytes, proceeded to the sanctuary. Dr. MacRory sat on the throne to the left of the high altar, and facing the shrine where the head of his great predecessor, Blessed Oliver Plunkett, reposes.

The Rosary was then recited by Father Woods, the congregation joining in the responses. At its conclusion Father Harmon, C.C., St. Peter's, delivered the sermon, taking for his text the words, "If thou wilt have life keep My Commandments."

The choir of forty male voices afterwards sang the Litany and the "Tantum Ergo."

The Archbishop then gave Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Father Woods acted as deacon and Father Lavelle as sub-deacon, while Monsignor Seagrave was master of ceremonies.

BURNING OF UNSCUTCHED FLAX.

At Strabane Quarter Sessions last Saturday, John Cochrane, of Benowen, Donemana, claimed £100 compensation for the alleged malicious burning of a quantity of unscutched flax, which was stored in a mill, the property of James Bond, of Benowen, Donemana.

Judge Linehan gave a decree for £90 with 10s. expenses, the amount to be levied off the Strabane rural district.

Nanking and Washington.

An example of the Chinese Government's anxiety to apply modern methods to the country's affairs is afforded by an invitation which has been sent from Nanking to five Americans. These five men, who include Mr. Henry Ford and Mr. Owen Young, the well-known financier, have been invited to visit China and to act as honorary advisers to the Government on industrial and economic topics. Mr. Ford, if he should accept the invitation, would be appointed adviser on motor transport and roads. Furthermore, two American engineers have been engaged at a combined salary of £30,000 a year to construct the new capital at Nanking, which, according to a report from Shanghai, will be built as closely as possible on the model of Vienna. China is beginning at last to settle down to work. The civil wars of the last ten years have done enormous injury to the country, the whole economic structure of which has been shattered. Trade and industry have been virtually destroyed; for since the civil wars began there has been no security of any kind, and manufacturers and traders generally have done their best to cut their losses rather than run the risk of total ruin. The Chinese people, however, have wonderful powers of recovery. Their philosophic nature has proved to be superior to the stress of war, and now that, for the time being, at any rate, their internecine troubles are over, they are hastening to make up for lost time. The new Government prides itself on its progressive ideas. It declares that China no longer must be regarded as a backward nation which exists solely for the enrichment of foreign exploiters, and that commercial concessions will be granted, if at all, only in return for very definite advantages. Foreigners will be employed when they are necessary; but they will work at the Government's pleasure, and presumably will cease to enjoy extra-territorial rights. The experiment will be highly interesting. Japan became "modernised" within an almost incredibly short space of time. China, of course, presents a far more formidable problem to the reformers; but her new rulers are determined to succeed.

It is a significant fact that the five men who have been invited to advise the Chinese Government are Americans. There was a time when Britain's influence in China was almost supreme; but of recent years, and particularly since the war, the Americans steadily have been gaining ground. Throughout the troubles of the civil wars the United States pursued a clever policy. Its representatives in China held aloof from all the quarrels which other foreign Powers had with the Kuomintang authorities, and, even when the British Government was forced in defence of the whole foreign population to send a detachment of troops to Shanghai, they managed to preserve a strict "neutrality." Consequently, Japan and Great Britain were denounced by the Nationalists as enemies of China, while the Americans were declared to be the country's only true friends. Undoubtedly, the Chinese have much for which to be thankful to the United States. When Japan presented the Chinese Government with the famous "twenty-one points," acceptance of which would have involved the virtual surrender to Japan of the Shantung Peninsula, the Washington Government made it quite clear that such interference with Chinese sovereignty would not be tolerated. Ever since that time, moreover, Japanese ambitions on the mainland have been held in check by the United States, and the Chinese know that they have a powerful friend who, if necessary, would be ready to protect them against Japanese aggression. For that reason, no doubt, the young men of the Nanking Government have decided to employ Americans as technical advisers and to tighten as closely as possible the bonds between the two countries. The attitude of Japan towards the new "orientation" in Chinese affairs will be interesting. The Mikado's advisers are exceedingly able and astute, and will not relinquish their position in China without a struggle. To Japan the Chinese mainland offers the only possible outlet for a rapidly growing population which already is far too large for the little islands on which it is confined. The Japanese people, therefore, resent the growth of foreign influence in China, inasmuch as it lessens the chances of a Japanese hegemony in the Far East.

The Nation's Health.

Sir George Newman, chief medical officer to the British Ministry of Health, in his annual report, has some observations that go to the root of the problem of national health. The physical advancement of mankind, he says, depends not on the doctors or on sanitary institutions, but on the co-operation of the whole social fabric. Doctors can alleviate pain and put the sick into the way of recovery; institutions can undo the effects—if they have not gone too far—of infection and injury. Only a healthy organisation of society can prevent the ills which these agencies of healing combat. Despite all the pains of medical science to discover the source of prevalent diseases, maternity mortality shows no signs of reduction. The only hope of reducing a grievous annual toll of life lies in a far-reaching improvement of conditions of living. Healthier individuals will be safeguarded against the premature mortality from which science cannot save the individuals which society breeds at present. Where must measures of prevention begin? We suggest three phases of necessary national effort. Firstly, housing and sanitation must be improved. Secondly, the dietary customs of the people must be reformed by means of education and legislation. Thirdly, healthy habits of life must be fostered. Housing and sanitation have improved steadily with the progress of civilisation. The people's diet, on the other hand, has degenerated with the spread of artificial foodstuffs. Habits of life are not wholesome when hundreds of thousands of men muster week by week to watch games, but never to play them.

The abuses which have arisen in England as the result of industrialisation exist in Ireland in aggravated form. Without industry, Dublin has a congested urban population. The slums of the capital, straggling over areas of condemned housing, are breeding-places of disease. They have their lesser counterparts in the other cities and towns of Ireland. So long as a big part of the urban population is reared in tenements, a healthy race will be far to seek. The attack upon the slums, however, itself must be part of a larger movement of reform. Houses are being built—too densely and often in too flimsy a form—but movement of the people from tenement to suburb will be ineffectual if it is not accompanied by a revival of industry. Idlers who have no pride in their homes will make new slums of new dwellings. Sanitation cannot be maintained in a healthy condition where multitudes are congested in mean streets; but if good sanitary conditions are to be established in the new suburbs of Dublin, the Greater Dublin scheme must be brought into early operation, and the water and drainage system of the city must be extended to the suburbs which now lack them. Dietary habits among the Irish poor are in sore need of reform. Wasteful and unwholesome food is fast reducing the physique of the race and lowering the working capacity of wage-earners. Social habits have decayed in recent years. While sport has enjoyed a general revival in England since the Great War revealed the need for physical reform, the idlers at the street corners of Irish villages show no greater desire for healthy exertion in the playing field than in the field of honest toil.

Nemi and Herculaneum.

Signor Mussolini is attempting, with characteristic energy, to recover the glories of Roman civilisation. No matter what they may think of other parts of his programme, all Europeans should regard his efforts in this direction with interest and approval. On Saturday he was present at the inauguration of a highly interesting work, which long has been promised—the lowering of the Nemi lake. The Nemi lake is situated some twenty miles south of Rome, and is about a thousand feet above sea level. Two galleys are known to have sunk there in the days of Tiberius, and scholars often have wondered whether an examination of these galleys would throw a new light upon our knowledge of Roman civilisation as it was when the Empire was vigorous and young. The problem seemed merely to have a theoretical interest, until Il Duce decided that the level of the lake should be lowered, and that the secret of nineteen centuries must be laid bare. An immense volume of water will be drained through an ancient tunnel into the valley beneath—an enterprise that recalls the historic draining of the Alban lake, which sealed the fate of Veii. While this great work is being taken in hand, a year has elapsed since excavations again were resumed at Herculaneum. Two centuries ago the site of this ancient city was discovered; but it is only within recent years that investigators have possessed resources which enabled them to reveal some portions of Herculaneum as they were before the tragedy of 79 A.D. The museum at Naples contains many recovered manuscripts, vases, ornaments and domestic utensils, which enable us to form a fairly precise notion of Roman social life in the Empire, and "some work of noble note may yet be done."

Sword-Bright Eyes.

One of the pleasures of reading history is that scarcely any historical statement has the truth of a mathematical proposition. The authority of a contemporary document, even when the honesty of the writer is beyond question, seldom is final. Even the canvas of a distinguished painter is not the last word on a famous character's personal appearance. Mary Queen of Scots often has been painted; yet the colour of her eyes seems to be as great a mystery as the problem of the Casket Letters. Swinburne said they were "sword-bright eyes, the bluest of heavenly things beneath the skies." Sir J. M. Barrie, in his recent fantasy at Jedburgh, referred to them as "hazel." Ronsard ran less risk of contradiction when he affirmed that they had no equal. Perhaps both Swinburne and Sir J. M. Barrie were right, and the eyes of Mary Queen of Scots changed colour, as those of Mazzini are reported to have done in middle life. It is strange that uncertainty should exist even as to the colour of the eyes of Charles Dickens, who must have been seen by many persons who are still living. Mr. H. Spielmann remarks, in The Times, that W. P. Frith painted them a dark blue-grey, and that other artists painted them brown and blue. Miss Mamie Dickens, his daughter, wrote that she "never saw eyes so constantly changing in expression and in colour as his did." The expression, and even the colour, of eyes does change, but the real explanation appears to be that the picture itself changes. The colour may change through some defect in the materials used by the painter. There is a greater risk that this may happen when a picture is "restored." The iris of the eye usually is painted thinly, and there always is a possibility that it will disappear during the process of restoration.

PHŒNIX PARK RACES.

LAST MEETING OF THE SEASON.

The last meeting of the season at Phœnix Park on Saturday was favoured by fine, if cold, weather, and, considering the turn of the year, the attendance was fairly large.

The company in the Members' Enclosure included:—The Countess of Fingall, General the Right Hon. Sir Bryan Mahon, Lady Arnott, Captain L. Arnott, Captain T. NEW DENTAL BOARD.

HOW THE REGISTER WILL BE SET UP.

The nominated members of the Dental Board have fixed the 29th October next as the last day for receiving the nominations of persons to be elected representative of "registered dentists" under Section 3 of the Dentists Act, 1921, and of those registered otherwise than under that section.

There are six vacancies—two be filled by "registered dentists" resident in Saorstat Eireann and registered, or formerly registered, in the General Dentists' Register under Section 3 of the Dentists Act of 1921, and four to be filled by dentists resident in Saorstat Eireann registered, or formerly registered, otherwise than under Section 3 of the Act of 1921.

In a public notice on the matter, the Returning Officer (Mr. Wilfred Brown, of the Local Government Department) announces the particulars of the election.

If on the 29th October not more than two of the Section 3 class are nominated, and not more than 4 of the other class, the Board can be constituted almost immediately. If more are nominated, then there must be an election by postal vote, and the result will not be known until after 8th November.

The Dental Board will then be constituted of ten members, as follows:—

One member nominated by the Executive Council (Dr. D. Kelly); three members nominated by the Medical Registration Council (Professor D. J. Coffey, Surgeon R. C. B. Maunsell and Professor A. F. Dixon); two nominated by the registered dentists under Section 3 of the Dentists Act, 1921; four nominated by dentists registered otherwise.

THE REGISTER.

It will be the duty of the Board to establish, first of all, a dentists' register, and, secondly, to prescribe and hold examinations under Section 28 of the Act, 1928, and to satisfy itself that persons sitting at examinations fulfil the statutory conditions. These conditions are that persons not registered but who claimed to be citizens of Saorstat Eireann on the 1st January, 1928, that their principal means of livelihood during the whole of the ten years preceding the passing of the Act of 1928 was the practice of dentistry in Saorstat Eireann, and who have not been guilty of any crime or misdemeanour, are entitled to permission to sit for the examination. In addition permission is given to a certain number of people specifically named in the third schedule of the Act of 1928, whose cases were specially considered by a Committee of both Houses of the Oireachtas during the passage of the bill.

The first of the examinations under the Act must be held after the expiration of five months and before the expiration of six months from the passing of the Act—i.e., between 3rd January, 1929, and 3rd February, 1929.

People entitled to go on the register on its establishment are registered dentists, people who were registered dentists immediately before the establishment of the Free State Register, subject to the payment of a fee to be prescribed by the Dental Board. After the establishment of the Register except in the case of persons referred to in Section 28, the only persons entitled to be registered are those registered in the General Dentists' Register, or those persons who possess a degree or licence in dental surgery granted by a university or college in Saorstat Eireann having at the time power to grant such degree.

After the Register is established any person not registered who seeks to practice dentistry or holds himself out as being prepared to practice dentistry will be guilty of a contravention of the Act, and will be liable to a fine of £100.

LONDON LETTER.

REPARATIONS.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

In all probability, a special meeting of the Cabinet will be held during the week to discuss the new reparations situation brought about by the exchange of views by Mr. Parker Gilbert and Mr. Churchill. The matter has suddenly assumed unexpected importance, and negotiations with the various Powers concerned are being arranged. The payment of reparations by Germany are now governed by the Dawes scheme, which provides for annual payments for a number of years, the amount next year being £125,000,000, and the idea is that the time has come when Germany shall be told what is the exact sum she is to pay to complete her engagement. On this point it is understood that there is general agreement among the Allied Governments, but the working out of the details and figures is likely to take a very long time.

Mr. Churchill's Views.

Mr. Churchill is not the man to make a dramatic visit to Paris only to discuss matters of detail in connection with the setting up of a committee of experts which is to suggest a complete and definite settlement of the reparations problem. His conversations with Mr. Parker Gilbert, the Agent-General for reparations payments, suggested startling possibilities, and, after consultation with the Prime Minister and other Cabinet colleagues, he hurried across to France to warn M. Poincaré that the British Government could not be party to any scheme based on the assumption that the United States will be willing to re-open the question of British indebtedness to that country. The Government here will stand by the Balfour declaration, and one can understand Mr. Churchill's perturbation at any proposal that Great Britain should make financial sacrifices in the first year in which German reparation payments and the payments of Allied war debts approximate to our payments to the United States.

France's Needs.

It has been known for years that France wants a cash settlement from Germany in order that she may in turn meet her own debts due to this country and to the United States, as well as placing her home finances on a more stable basis. In order to meet this view, it is suggested that the Dawes Bonds shall be sold on the money markets of the world, and the cash proceeds shall be used in carrying out a new scheme in which France would benefit greatly. France, in turn, would be able to come to an agreement with this country and probably would carry into operation the Caillaux arrangement to pay a certain sum yearly. Part of the proceeds from the sale of the Bonds might be devoted to the payment of the moneys owing by Great Britain and France to the United States, and thus reduce the sixty-two-year period of payment that is at present pressing so heavily on this country.

Attitude of the United States.

It is recognised here that much depends upon the action taken by the United States in this matter; for, should its Government decide to reduce its demands upon the Allies, the position would be made a great deal easier for Germany; but at present there is no indication as to what Washington will do, though it is pointed out that there has never been any previous indication that easier terms would be offered to Great Britain. It is also thought that the United States will not be officially represented on the Committee of Experts which is to meet to consider the question in Paris or Geneva on December 15th; but since many United States citizens are greatly interested in the prosperity of Germany, and should the suggested scheme be adopted, this would have a direct incentive to help towards any settlement. It is possible that, once Germany agreed to the payment of a final amount, any such sum would take the place of its former national debt. This disappeared in the financial débâcle attending the inflation of the currency, so that the country would be no worse off than it was before the war.

Britain's Experts.

In financial circles here great interest is taken in the reparations proposals, and the hope is expressed that the experts sent from this country will include men like Sir Josiah Stamp, Sir Warren Fisher and Sir Robert Kindersley. It is the general desire that business men shall be selected, and that the politicians shall hold aloof from the proceedings. In the City there also is a strong feeling that any final settlement should provide for the payment of war debts and compensation for damage done by enemy action. Millions are due on these two points alone, but it is doubtful whether such points can be brought under review by the Committee of Experts.

Double Taxation.

A League of Nations conference will meet in Geneva to-morrow to make a technical examination of four draft conventions prepared by a committee of experts on double taxation and tax evasion. Certain incomes upon which taxes are recovered in two countries pay 100 per cent. or more theoretically in taxation. This double taxation obviously has a most unfortunate influence on the development of international relations and commerce, as well as leading to evasion. Of the four draft conventions two deal with double taxation and two with tax evasion. The treaties are bilateral. The experts refrained from drawing up collective conventions because the fiscal systems of the various countries are so fundamentally different that it seems at present almost impossible to draft a collective convention unless it were worded in such general terms as to be of no practical value. To facilitate systematic and continuous international co-operation the committee has further proposed that a standing committee on taxation questions should be set up as part of the League organisation.

A Dairy Show.

The Dairy Show, which opens in London on Tuesday, will be the fiftieth exhibition of stock, produce, poultry and pigeons to be held at the Agricultural Hall, Islington. The exhibits number 9,515, compared with the "record" in 1923 of 10,766. The pigeons account for nearly a third of the exhibits, the cattle numbering 366. Over 500 cattle and goats will take part in the milking and butter-making competitions, and a staff of analysts and accountants will be employed in weighing the morning and evening milk of each competitor, analysing its fat content, weighing the butter produced, and working out the points and aggregate scores.

Automatic Machines.

The extended use of automatic machines for the supply of many articles, from sweets and cigarettes to stockings and handkerchiefs, is being much discussed by trade organisers, and the Chancellor is being approached with a view to taxation of such apparatus. Automatic machines for the supply of various goods are being installed in hotels, restaurants, boarding-houses, and in mansion flats, and it is complained that they are being fitted to private houses which do not pay the higher rates levied on business premises.

The Court Circular last Saturday stated that the Earl of Lonsdale was received by the King at Sandringham and invested with the Insignia of the Knight of the Garter.

TWO 'PLANES CRASH ON GOLF COURSES.

SECOND ACCIDENT YESTERDAY IN CHESHIRE.

FIRST AID BY PLAYERS.

SIR TIMOTHY O'BRIEN'S ELDEST DAUGHTER BADLY HURT.

For the second time in two days, a golf course was the scene of a serious flying accident yesterday, when Mr. Ronald Caldecott, aged 34, a member of the Lancashire Aero Club, crashed while flying over Cheadle Hulme Links (Cheshire), with Mr. William Ramsden, also aged 34, in the passenger seat. Both men are reported to be in a critical condition.

Last Saturday an aeroplane, piloted by Miss Sicele O'Brien, daughter of Sir Timothy O'Brien, with the Hon. Mildred Katherine Leith, a half-sister of Lord Burgh, as passenger, crashed on the links of the Mote Mount Club, Mill Hill. Miss O'Brien, who had a leg amputated in Redhill Hospital, Edgware, was reported yesterday to be "as comfortable as could be expected," although she is in a serious condition. The Hon. Mildred Leith is suffering from concussion.

MISS O'BRIEN'S LEG AMPUTATED.

FAMOUS GOLFERS RUSH TO THE RESCUE.

The De Haviland Moth aeroplane, in which the two women were flying, crashed from a height of about three hundred feet on to the newly-opened golf course of Mote Mount, Middlesex, last Saturday afternoon.

It was not until they had been brought to Redhill Hospital that their identities were ascertained and their injuries diagnosed as follows:—

Pilot—Miss Sicele Julia Mary Annette O'Brien (41), eldest daughter of Sir Timothy O'Brien, Bart.—Compound fracture of the leg, a badly bruised face and other injuries.

Passenger—The Hon. Mildred Katherine Leith, half-sister of Lord Burgh—Severe concussion, cuts and bruises to face, hands and body.

On inquiry at hospital late last night a Press representative was told that it had been found necessary to amputate Miss O'Brien's injured leg.

EXPERIENCED AIRWOMAN.

Both women are members of the London Aeroplane Club. Mis O'Brien is the owner of a De Haviland Moth machine, and has flown with passengers for joy rides, for cross-country trips and for instruction. She lives with her parents at Earls Court road, London, S.W.

Sir Timothy O'Brien, who is the third baronet, was born in 1861, served in the war, and is a honorary major in the Army. He was at one time a prominent cricketer, and played with Cork County C.C., Middlesex and Oxford elevens in all their principal matches. He is a Justice of the Peace and Deputy Lieutenant for County Cork.

Lady O'Brien, when informed of the accident, motored at once to the hospital.

Miss Leith lives in Queensberry place, London, S.W.

GOLFERS RUSH TO RESCUE.

At the time of the accident a golf match was in progress between the two amateurs, Mr. Cyril Tolley and Mr. Roger Wethered, and the professionals, Abe Mitchell and Charles Whitcombe. These were followed by a large crowd, and, approaching the ninth hole, all noticed the aeroplane circling overhead.

"It was flying at between two hundred and three hundred feet," one of the spectators told a Press representative. "Suddenly something seemed to snap. There was a heavy, boisterous wind blowing and the 'plane spun round and wobbled about. Then at a terrific speed it nosedived, crashing near the sixth tee. It was completely wrecked, but fortunately it did not burst into flames. Everyone on the links dashed towards the scene. The match was suspended. Tolley and Wethered, flinging down their clubs, tore over the grass at top speed.

DOCTORS ON THE SCENE.

"There were several doctors in the crowd, and they were able to attend to the women and make them as comfortable as possible until the arrival of the ambulance, which was very soon at the spot."

Mr. Charles Henry, of Brookside road, London, N.W., also described the crash. "Everybody's attention was concentrated on the golf match," he said, "and the 'plane, which was flying fairly low, passed over almost unnoticed. Suddenly the engine appeared to stop and the 'plane turned and spun downwards. The pilot seemed to be making desperate attempts to regain control, but the machine dropped several hundred yards like a stone. When it hit the ground the pilot was flung half out of her seat and lay across the wing.

PLUCK AND PRESENCE OF MIND.

"People rushed to the spot from all parts of the course. While some of us dragged the two girls from the wreckage, a man seized the petrol tank, which had become detached, and placed it away from the wreckage. It was a brave action, as at any minute the tank might have burst into flames.

"The pilot had her leg badly crushed, and was virtually unconscious. The girl passenger, whom we dragged from the cockpit, was conscious, and implored us not to tell her people of the accident."

A SLOW NOSE-DIVE.

Superintendent S. D. Fisher, of the Royal Automobile Club, who witnessed the accident, said that the machine was only 300 feet high when it started to spin. "It seemed to me," he said, "that the engine had stopped. The machine then began to nose-dive very slowly, spinning all the way down. It fell with a tremendous crash on to the fairway near the sixth tee.

"Immediately the players and spectators began to run to the spot. I myself was standing in the club-house about half a mile away. I took out first aid appliances from my motor cycle combination and rushed to the aeroplane. When I arrived the two women had been extricated from the cockpit. It was obvious that Miss O'Brien's injuries were such that very little could be done for her on the spot. She had a compound fracture of the leg, a badly bruised face, and other injuries."

PLUCKY AIRWOMEN.

"Miss Leith," another gentleman informed me, "was the less injured of the two, and I assisted the doctor to bandage her face and hands, which were badly cut. I have never seen two more plucky women. After they had been got out of the aeroplane they were laid on different sides of the machine and could not see each other. As soon as they were lifted into the ambulance they turned to one another:

"'How are you, dear?' asked Miss O'Brien anxiously.

"'Not too bad,' smiled Miss Leith. 'I hope you are all right.'"

The Mote Mount golf course was formally opened on Saturday, and the exhibition match which was in progress at the time was the first to be played there. The course is situated on the new arterial road near Hendon.

There have been few aeroplane accidents in which women pilots have been involved in England. On September 20 Miss Margaret Honor Wellby, of Weybridge, was killed while flying a solo machine at Brooklands in an attempt to qualify for her pilot's certificate. This was the first case of a woman being killed while piloting a machine in England. On March 12 Lady Carbery was killed in a crash in Kenya while instructing a flying pupil.

A CRASH IN CHESHIRE.

FLIGHT ARRANGED ON THE GOLF LINKS.

Mr. Ronald Caldecott and Mr. William Ramsden were playing golf on the Cheadle Hulme Links yesterday morning, and during the round Mr. Caldecott arranged to take his partner for a short flight in the afternoon from Woodford Aerodrome, the headquarters of the Lancashire Club.

Shortly after three o'clock they started, and had flown a few miles and were at a good height when the machine began to loop.

Golfers stopped their play to watch the machine's manœuvres, and suddenly they saw that all was not well with the airmen. The 'plane had started to drop, and then went into a spin and fell like a stone into the fern above one of the greens.

The players, some of them only a few yards from the scene of the accident, rushed to the spot and rescued the men from the machine, which was wrecked.

Two doctors were quickly in attendance, and the men were taken to the Stockport Infirmary. Both were suffering from concussion and various injuries.

The accident happened within a few hundred yards of the houses of both men.

AIRMAN FLIES FOR HELP.

Another aeroplane was in the vicinity when Mr. Caldecott's machine—an Avro Gosport two-seater—fell, and the pilot immediately turned and flew back to the aerodrome for assistance.

Mr. Caldecott, who is manager of the Employers' Mutual Assurance Company, Manchester, is treasurer of the Lancashire Aero Club and chairman of its finance committee. He qualified for his pilot's certificate about eight months ago. Both men were members of the golf club on whose links they crashed. Last night their condition was described as "very poorly."

WOMAN THROWN FROM AEROPLANE.

ACCIDENT OVER THE ALPS.

FROM "THE TIMES" CORRESPONDENT.

GENEVA, Sunday.

On Friday afternoon Lieutenant Meyer Ofer was flying in a military machine with Miss Gerber, of Berne, over the Aletsch Glacier, when the machine was caught in a whirlwind.

The pilot succeeded in recovering balance, and continued the flight, but soon after noticed the disappearance of Miss Gerber, who had been thrown overboard.

On Saturday a search party which set off from Jungfraujoch discovered the body of a young woman lying on the surface of the glacier.

CIVIC GUARDS LEAVE ROME.

CEREMONY AT UNKNOWN WARRIOR'S TOMB.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

ROME, Sunday.

The two hundred and fifty Irish Civic Guards who have been visiting Rome, and were received in audience by His Holiness the Pope, left the Italian capital to-day.

They have been wonderfully impressed with their visit, and have done much sightseeing.

Yesterday the Guards paraded at the tomb of the Unknown Warrior, where they deposited a wreath. A party of Carabinieri in full dress responded with an imposing salute. Thousands of spectators witnessed the ceremony.

THE VISIT TO PARIS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Saturday.

The pilgrimage of Irish Free State Civic Guards, who have been visiting Rome, will reach Paris on Monday. Twenty-five officers and 260 men, under the command of General O'Duffy, founder and Chief Commissioner of the Civic Guard, will stay in Paris for two days, taking part on Tuesday at a ceremony at the Arc de Triomphe.

The pilgrims will leave for Ireland on Wednesday, but General O'Duffy will remain for a week as the guest of the French police, and a series of receptions at the Prefecture of Police, the Hotel de Ville, etc., will be arranged.

Next week may well be described as an Irish week, for in addition to the boxing gala between French and Irish police, a luncheon will be given by the Irish Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, at which General O'Duffy will be present.

MOTOR SHOW VISITORS.

The Motor Show at Olympia, London, concluded last Saturday night. The number who paid for admission on Saturday was 54,898. The total attendance during the week was 253,267.

LOST ATLANTIC FLIER.

WIFE'S BELIEF THAT HE IS SAFE.

STORY OF TWO DREAMS: "ON A ROCKY ISLAND."

Mrs. Macdonald, after only a few hours' sleep yesterday, renewed her weary vigil at her London home waiting for news of her husband, Lieutenant-Commander Macdonald, who set out in a tiny Moth aeroplane last Wednesday from Newfoundland to fly the Atlantic. She is still trusting to the thousandth chance that her husband may be safely picked up, perhaps, by a vessel without wireless or landed in some remote spot.

In the absence of news, however, there was a curious development during the week-end. Sir Herbert Barker, the manipulative surgeon, telephoned to Mrs. Macdonald to express his sympathy, and said: "Do not worry, Mrs. Macdonald; I feel sure your husband is safe. I dreamt that I saw him cast away on a rocky island."

The fact that another friend had had an identical dream led Mrs. Macdonald to visit the Admiralty late on Saturday night to learn if anything could be done. Her hopes were centred on Rockall, a lonely isle in the Atlantic, two hundred miles off the west coast of Scotland.

The Admiralty official who saw her, however, had to inform her that there was not the remotest chance of her husband being alive on that island.

"It is nothing more than a rock, about eighty feet high, and possibly fifty feet across," an Admiralty official told a Press Association reporter yesterday. "No man could live there at this time of the year for more than thirty-six hours because of the extreme cold."

Mrs. Tolhurst, Mrs. Macdonald's friend, who spoke for her yesterday, said: "They were very sympathetic at the Admiralty, but they explained that nothing could possibly be done. Mrs. Macdonald also went to Croydon to see if an aeroplane could be chartered to make the trip, but that also was found impossible. We did hope something could have been done, but apparently, from the technical point of view, it is out of the question."

CHEAPER BREAD IN DUBLIN.

REDUCED PRICE FOR 2LB. LOAF.

The decision of the Dublin Master Bakers' Committee to reduce the price of bread will become effective to-day. In an advertisement appearing in another column it is announced that "the price of bread will be reduced to 4½d. per 2 lb. loaf, delivered."

Hitherto the price of the 2 lb. loaf, delivered, was 5d.

POLICEMAN TRAPPED BY FIRE.

TIMELY ARRIVAL OF FIRE BRIGADE.

A policeman's persistent search in dense smoke for an old man, lost in a burning building, was a thrilling incident in a fire which occurred at Bedford early yesterday.

Police Constable Bunker discovered the outbreak at 2.30 a.m. When looking into Messrs. Dorrington's grocery store he saw that the place was filled with flames and smoke. He awakened the occupants of the two flats above the store, all elderly people, and two of them, Mrs. Lucas and Mrs. C. Woods, at once left the building.

Mrs. Woods then informed the constable that her husband, 78 years of age, was still upstairs, and he went to look for him. The dense smoke hampered his search, but eventually he found the man at the top of the house.

Constable Bunker guided Mr. Woods down two flights of stairs, but when they reached that leading to the ground floor the whole place was blazing and impassable. The men then became separated in the smoke, and the constable had to make another search for Mr. Woods.

Failing to find him, Bunker crawled through a window, and crouching on the cornice over the shop he saw Mr. Woods at an upper window. At that moment the fire brigade arrived, rescued both men, and quickly extinguished the fire.

TAX ON TENNIS CAUSES REVOLT.

DAVIS CUP FINAL VENUE MAY BE MOVED.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Sunday.

Fears that the right to hold next year's Davis Cup final in France may not be exercised were by no means set at rest by a communiqué issued by the French Lawn Tennis Federation to-day.

Dealing with the Federation's decision to cancel holding certain tennis competitions in France as a protest against the imposition of entertainment tax on public tennis matches, the communiqué says:—

"All open tennis tournaments will be cancelled for the winter 1928-29. The Covered Courts Championships of France will alone be played, the public not being admitted. If the present state of affairs is not modified by 1st March, 1929, all spring, summer and autumn tournaments will be cancelled, and the necessary steps will be taken to approach foreign nations with a view to the Davis Cup matches, at present playable in France, being played in one of their countries."

Explaining the reasons for its decision the Federation submits that the application of entertainment tax to lawn tennis tournaments is contrary to the spirit of the law.

"It seems quite arbitrary," proceeds the communique, "to subject tennis to taxes from which all other sports are rightly exempt. Such treatment is all the less comprehensible, as the French players' successes in international matches have strongly contributed to the universal prestige of French sport."

It has already been suggested that the Davis Cup final will probably be transferred to Brussels if no settlement is reached.

The fact that lawn tennis has been assimilated to entertainments and has to pay the entertainment tax has been a vexed question for some time past, the more especially as the tax is levied, not only on receipts, but also on members' subscriptions.

A leading Paris club recently lost a case which it fought, and this defeat, coming after many others in the provinces, seems to have decided the French Lawn Tennis Federation to take action.

PRINCE AND PRINCESS AT ELLIS ISLAND

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Sunday.

Prince and Princess Boris Gargarine, both members of rich and powerful families in Russia and Finland in pre-revolutionary days, were being detained over the week-end at the emigration station as Ellis Island, with a miscellaneous collection of alien immigrants.

The Prince and Princess took matters philosophically. The Princess, who escaped via Siberia eight years ago, explained that she and her husband have come to New York to join her brother-in-law, who is in business here.

WRECKED IN THE STORM.

IRISHMEN'S VIGIL ON LONELY COAST.

DUBLIN MAN LOST.

INJURED SEAMEN AT QUEENSTOWN.

The full extent of the damage caused on sea and land by the gale which raged throughout Friday night and Saturday morning was revealed only yesterday.

At Holyhead the wind attained a velocity of 91 miles an hour, while in parts of Ireland it was estimated to have reached 80. At Belfast its highest velocity was 53 miles an hour.

Shipping suffered severely in the storm. A member of the crew of the Dublin trawler William Castle was drowned when the vessel was wrecked on the Wigtownshire coast. Two members of the crew of the cable ship Dominion were landed at Queenstown on Saturday, having been badly injured in the gale. Cross-Channel steamers were delayed and the boat from Belfast was badly injured by collision with the pier at Heysham.

In County Galway a farmer was killed while trying to strengthen the roof of an outhouse during the height of the gale.

IRISH SAILORS' NIGHT OF TERROR.

YOUTH SWEPT TO DEATH FROM WRECKED SHIP.

A shipwrecked crew's night of terror, while the gale raged along the coast of Scotland, was described yesterday to a Press representative at Stranraer by the men of the Irish trawler William Castle. The vessel went ashore off the lonely Wigtownshire coast at a point known as Pan Bay, and the youngest member of the crew, a fireman named William Welsh (21), of Duke street, Dublin, was swept to his death.

"We were driven off our course near the Wigtownshire lighthouses," the skipper said. "I tried to swing the ship round from the land, but she struck a reef and was driven broadside ashore. Then she lurched against the rocks.

"I was the last man to leave her, and, like the remainder of the crew, I had to jump over a big gulf to reach the rocks. Welsh went immediately ahead of me, but when he was about to leap a huge wave swept the lad to his doom. Nothing could be done to save him."

NARROW ESCAPES.

Other members of the crew said that before striking the rocks the trawler was caught by mountainous waves which battered her and poured over her from stem to stern. "We clung to ropes and anything else that we could find to support us," said one, "but the waves were always threatening to tear us away from them. As it was, one man was forced to let go, and he was going overboard on a big wave when he managed to seize another rope and save himself."

The trawler's siren was sounded repeatedly to call attention to her plight, but although farm servants heard it they were unable to see the ship in the darkness, and were unable to approach the shore owing to the huge breakers.

A MISERABLE VIGIL.

The rocks on to which the eight survivors jumped from the doomed ship were isolated from the shore by the big seas, and they had to remain in their perilous position throughout the night, huddled together and striking matches to restore warmth to their benumbed hands.

At daylight the men were able to scramble ashore, and after climbing the cliffs they wandered about the moors until they saw a building. This proved to be the Cot House on the farm of Labrax, and there they were warmed and given food.

Later they were taken to Stranraer, where clothing was issued to them by Captain Moreland, the local representative of the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society.

The William Castle, owned by the Dublin Ice and Cold Storage Company, was on her way to Ayrshire for coal.

CABLE STEAMER DAMAGED.

INJURED SEAMEN LANDED AT QUEENSTOWN.

The Cork-Fishguard boat Kenmare, as stated in our issue of Saturday, sailed from Cork as usual on Friday evening, with passengers and cargo, but encountering the full fury of the storm off Ballycotton, returned to Cork Harbour for shelter, resuming her voyage shortly after midnight.

The Dutch steamer Kinderdijk (3,683 tons gross) arrived in Cork Harbour on Friday night short of coal, and replenished her bunkers with one hundred tons before putting out to sea again. The Kinderdijk was bound to Sligo from Rosario, with a cargo of maize.

A wireless message was received at Queenstown on Friday night from the British cable ship Dominia, stating that she was forced to heave-to in very bad weather. The wind was of storm force and heavy seas were running. The vessel reported that she had her port rails forward carried away, but otherwise all was well aboard. Later in the day a wireless message stated that she was returning to Queenstown with two of her crew injured.

The Dominia arrived in Cork Harbour about 2.30 p.m. on Saturday, and was met by Dr. J. J. O'Connor, port medical officer, who attended the men aboard the ship, and made arrangements for their removal to hospital.

HOW THEY FOUGHT THE GALE.

Interviewed in the Queenstown Hospital Able Seaman Baker said: "The Dominia sailed from Greenwich on Tuesday last, with one hundred miles of cable aboard, under orders to proceed to a spot in the North Atlantic, some fourteen hundred miles west of this port (Queenstown), to repair the main submarine telegraph cable from New York. All went well until noon on Friday last, when high seas and a strong south-westerly wind was encountered, which rapidly gained in strength as the vessel proceeded westward.

"Three hours later, the Dominia being then three hundred miles west of Queenstown, we shipped a huge sea, which broke over the forepart of the vessel, uprooting about twenty-five feet of rails on the port side and sweeping them inboard. One of the two guys which secures a forward davit in position also snapped.

"Chief Officer Garnham, Leggat and myself were on watch at the time, and all three of us proceeded forward to secure the damaged fittings. With the aid of ropes we succeeded in lashing the railings in position and also temporarily secured the damaged guy. Our clothes being soaked by the blinding spray which repeatedly broke over the vessel, we went below and changed into dry togs.

THE OCEAN COMES ABOARD.

"About twenty minutes later the second guy of the davit gave out, and the chief officer, bo'sun and three seamen, including Leggat and myself, again went forward to repair the damage. Whilst engaged on this work a large wave—fortunately for us, not so big as that which first broke

NO EXTRA "DAYS OFF" FOR DAIL.

TO SIT ON HOLIDAYS OF OBLIGATION.

COMMITTEE'S REPORT ON PROPOSAL.

Reporting on the suggestion that in future Dail Eireann should not sit on Roman Catholic Holidays of Obligation, the Parliamentary Committee on Procedure and Privileges recommends that there should be no change in the existing practice.

The report states:—

"1. Following upon a reference made in the Dail on Friday, May 11th, 1928, the matter of sitting on Holidays of Obligation was considered by the Committee on Procedure and Privileges at its meeting on Thursday, May 17th, 1928. It was pointed out to the Committee that it had not been the practice heretofore that the Dail should adjourn over a Holiday of Obligation (other than over the National Festival, St. Patrick's Day), when such holidays occurred on days on which the Dail would otherwise normally sit. As it appeared, moreover, that sittings on only three (or possibly four) of the holidays were likely to be affected, and on these days mainly, when the holidays occurred on Thursdays, it was agreed that no action should be then taken. The matter, however, was to be brought forward for review if a considerable volume of opinion in favour of a change in practice manifested itself.

"2. The matter was again raised informally in the Dail on Wednesday, June 6th, 1928, when a minute of the Committee on Procedure and Privileges in the terms of the foregoing paragraph was communicated to the House. Following that communication, opinion in favour of a change in practice was expressed, and it was then agreed that the matter should be further considered by the Committee on Procedure and Privileges, with a view to a report to the House.

"3. The Committee took the matter into consideration at meetings on June 14th, July 12th and October 11th. A motion in assertion of the general principle that the Dail should not in future sit on any Holiday of Obligation was negatived on division by the Committee. Accordingly, the Committee recommends that the practice heretofore followed should not be departed from."

At the first meeting of the Committee (which consists of the Speaker of the Dail and Deputies Aiken, Flinn, Boland, and Little (Fianna Fail), J. J. Byrne, Bryan Cooper, P. S. Doyle, and E. J. Duggan (Government), T. J. O'Donovan (Farmers), Richard Corish (Labour), and William Thrift (Independent).

Mr. Aiken moved:—"That it is the opinion of the Committee that the Dail should not in future sit on Holidays of Obligation."

The motion was defeated by six votes to five, the Fianna Fail representatives and Mr. Corish making up the minority.

The Chairman's draft report, recommending that there should be no departure from the existing practice, was then adopted by the Committee without a division.

GENERAL TROTTER SERIOUSLY ILL.

MEMBER OF THE PRINCE OF WALES'S STAFF.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NAIROBI, Sunday.

Brigadier-General Trotter, Groom-in-Waiting to the Prince of Wales, is seriously ill at Buttaba Camp. A doctor and nurse have been despatched from Kampala by motor car.

General Trotter, who is on the Reserve of Officers (Grenadier Guards), as well as being Groom-in-Waiting to the Prince of Wales, is Gentleman Usher to the King.

He has been a member of the Prince of Wales's Staff since 1921. After serving with the 1st Grenadier Guards he commanded a brigade in France, and later led a British Military Mission to the United States. The General, who has lost an arm, is fifty-seven years of age.

FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE.

OUTBREAK IN KENT.

The Department of Agriculture in Dublin are officially informed that an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease was confirmed last night at Swanley, Kent, and that the British Ministry of Agriculture have taken the necessary precautions to prevent the spread of the disease, and have issued an Order, with immediate effect, prohibiting the movement of animals over a large area surrounding the infected place.

CHEAPER COAL FOR LONDON.

MOVE TO GET IT FROM THE NORTH.

A report was current in Newcastle last Saturday that in view of the high prices of domestic coal in London, mostly drawn from the Midlands, it was probable that merchants would negotiate with collieries in Northumberland and Durham for supplies. The advance in the cost of fuel in London is a consequence of the scheme of the Midland "combine" to cut export prices by maintaining at a high level prices to inland consumers.

It is believed that coal from the North could be taken to London and sold cheaply at a profit, as the best steam coal, which is largely used for domestic purposes by the bulk of the people in the North, is being sold retail at 27s. 6d. to 32s. 6d. a ton. Freight would be only about 3s. a ton.

MEMORIAL TO THE GUARDS.

GRANITE CROSS ON THE SOMME.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

AMIENS, Sunday.

In the village of Ginchy, adjacent to Les Boeufs, which the Guards' Division captured with great gallantry on 25th September, 1916, there was unveiled to-day a granite cross to Guardsmen who fell in the battles of the Somme.

At the head of the party of twenty-five officers and ninety men, who had come over to represent the Brigade of Guards, were the Earl of Cavan, Colonel of the Irish Guards; Major-General Sir Geoffrey Fielding, who commanded the division at the outset, and Major-General C. D. Corkran, General Officer Commanding London District. Representatives of the French Army also attended.

Sir Geoffrey Feilding unveiled the cross and gave a brief address, being followed by the Earl of Cavan, after which the memorial was dedicated by the Rev. P. McCormick, senior chaplain to the Guards' Division in 1916.

The scene which followed, with bagpipers playing funereal music, was deeply impressive.

At the end of the ceremony the base of the cross was covered with flowers, among the wreaths being those from the King, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught. The party took luncheon at the Hotel de Ville.

Devonshire's oldest inhabitant, Mr. Tom Howard, of Bridford, near Exeter, celebrated his 101st birthday yesterday. As an agricultural labourer he began work in the fields at six years of age.

LATE NEWS.

THE REPARATIONS QUESTION.

AMERICA AND A NEW SETTLEMENT.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.

Long, and in many respects conflicting, reports have reached the Press in the United States about the discussions of the German reparations question which have taken place in Paris between M. Poincaré, Mr. Churchill, Mr. Parker Gilbert, and, as some despatches add, Mr. J. P. Morgan.

It would appear that the United States Government was entirely prepared to hear that these conversations had taken place, and is sufficiently, if unofficially, aware of their nature. No approach, however, has yet been made to Washington on the subject of the participation of private United States citizens in the work of the International Commission of Experts to which reference is made in the Press. The situation is not at present such as would encourage any authoritative expression of opinion, and none has been offered here.

Despatches from Europe talk of a future settlement which would involve the floating of a huge Reparation Bond issue, to which Germany would consent as the price of a final limitation of her obligations, and with the proceeds of which the debtor countries of Europe might be able to make new and less onerous arrangements with the United States. This would mean, first, a resort to the American Money Market on a scale hitherto unprecedented; and, secondly, the substitution of Germany for the Allied countries as the direct source of payments to the United States, as to either or both of which it is sufficient to say that they are regarded at this time as dangerous and undesirable.

What Mr. Hoover thinks of the debt question is of importance, as he will probably be installed in the White House next March. He told this country when he spoke at Boston that, in effect, these debts could be paid in spite of the United States tariff, and independently of reparations, for, among other things, our tourist expenditure alone in Europe since the war would enable them—the European nations—to take care of the entire amount of their annual payments on these debts. While this is his state of mind, he would be no more likely than is Mr. Coolidge to-day to favour a plan which would ask the American investor to do over again what he believes the American tourist already to be doing; and even if Mr. Smith, and not Mr. Hoover, should be elected, this situation would not in any important respect be modified.

There is another aspect of the question which is certain eventually to obtrude itself. In some measure, whatever arrangements were eventually recommended could not fail to resemble an Anglo-French financial compromise, which means just now to the average American an attempt to demonstrate that his country, by its insistence upon a policy it considers vital to its own interest and safety, is disappointing the hopes of the entire world, whether in the matter of naval limitation or financial reconstruction.

INTERNATIONAL LAW SCHOLARSHIPS.

NEW YORK BANKER'S SCHEME.

NEW YORK, Sunday.

It was announced yesterday that Mr. Chester D. Pugsley, a New York banker, had presented to the Harvard Law School, in which he was a student nineteen years ago, a trust fund of about $500,000 (£100,000), to endow sixty International Law Scholarships.

Mr. Pugsley explained in a letter to the Dean of the Law School, Mr. Roscoe Pound, that his plan was to establish a scholarship for each nation of the world and the self-governing British possessions, along the lines of the Rhodes Scholarships.

The gift has not yet been accepted by the University, but hardly any doubt exists that it will be accepted.

Mr. Pugsley's plan for sixty scholarships of $400 (£80) each may have to be modified, Mr. Pound said yesterday, in favour of a plan for developing the principal of the fund, so as to allow $2,000 (£400) to each beneficiary.

CULVERT COLLAPSES AT NEWRY.

SERIOUS FALL IN WATER IN CANAL.

The culvert under the Newry sea-going canal again collapsed yesterday morning, reducing the water in the canal by almost five feet, and rendering it impossible for boats to enter or leave the port. A sand boat and a small schooner, the Ethel Park, of Barrow, are aground in the upper section of the canal.

A year ago the culvert collapsed, and temporary repairs were carried out. The present collapse is regarded as more serious, and may necessitate the building of a new culvert at heavy cost.

Meanwhile, unless temporary measures are effective, the port will have to be closed, with consequent loss of trade and of employment among dockers and carters until the new culvert is constructed.

THE AUSTRALIAN DOCK STRIKE.

MR. BRUCE REPLIES TO A LABOUR PREMIER.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENTS.

ALBURY, Sunday.

Referring to the allegations made by Mr. Hogan, the Labour Premier of Victoria, in the Legislative Assembly recently, Mr. Bruce, the Federal Prime Minister said to-day that he defied Mr. Hogan or anyone else to show that the Federal Ministry had not used all their powers to settle the strike.

Mr. Bruce added that the most extraordinary revelation in Mr. Hogan's amazing outburst was the admission that the Communists were in control and responsible for the continuance of the strike.

Surely things had come to a deplorable pass when a Labour Premier had to throw up his hands and say that he was powerless because Communists dominated the labour movement.

[NOTE—Mr. Hogan was reported to have accused the Federal Government of not prosecuting Mr. Garden, Secretary of the Sydney Trades Council, and Mr. O'Neill, Secretary of the Victorian Seamen's Union, in order that they might continue their agitation in connection with the waterside workers' strike and thus help the Nationalists at the forthcoming Federal elections.]

STEVEDORES REGISTER UNDER ACT.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

One thousand five hundred Port Phillip stevedores applied for licences. The shipowners have arranged to employ volunteers at Port Melbourne and Victoria Dock; elsewhere vessels will be handled by unionists, thus avoiding possible difficulties which might arise owing to volunteers and unionists working together.

MOTOR CAR OUT OF CONTROL.

HEAD-ON COLLISION WITH A 'BUS.

WELL-KNOWN HORSE-TRAINER KILLED.

Fred. Archer, the well known racehorse trainer and nephew of the famous jockey, was killed yesterday when a car that he was driving crashed into a stationary London General Omnibus Company's 'bus in High road, Woodford, Essex. Archer was alone in the car, a big limousine.

According to an eye-witness, the car began to swerve when about seventy yards away from the 'bus, which was travelling very slowly in the opposite direction. The 'bus driver immediately stopped the vehicle, but the car crashed head-on into it. Archer was thrown from the car and killed instantly.

Several people in the 'bus, which was on the Buckhurst Hill to Victoria service, complained of shock. All, except two, were treated on the spot. Miss Hall, of Buckhurst Hill, Essex, and Mr. George Curzon, of Ashville road, London, E., who were riding in front seats in the 'bus, were taken to Woodford Jubilee Hospital, where they were treated for shock and later discharged.

DOCTOR'S THEORY.

The collision was described by an eye-witness living close to the scene as one of the worst he had ever seen. "The noise of the impact of the car on the bonnet of the 'bus was audible for several hundred yards," he said. "The car was a complete wreck when the ambulance arrived."

It is still a mystery how the accident happened. Archer's car was seen to swerve violently for sixty or eighty yards before the collision. It was not just skidding, but violently lurching from side to side of the road, just as though the driver had lost control. The theory was advanced by a doctor present that Archer was taken suddenly ill and was unable to steer his car.

LIKE A DRIVER-LESS CAR.

Another eye-witness stated that as Mr. Archer's car came out into the main road from Whitehall road apparently the steering gear went wrong. "When I saw the car coming across the road I thought it was driverless," he said. "Apparently Mr. Archer must have seen that he would crash into the 'bus and ducked to the bottom of the car. The steering wheel of the car was smashed to atoms."

Mr. Archer, who was in his fortieth year, was a bachelor. His mother, who lives at Newmarket, is prostrated by the news of his death.

TRAINER OF DOUBLE CHANCE.

Mr. Fred. Archer was a member of one of the best-known racing families in the country. He was a son of the late Charles Archer, of Newmarket. His grandfather, W. Archer, rode Little Charlie, winner of the Grand National in 1838. It was as a trainer that F. C. Archer first came prominently before the public, and he will chiefly be remembered as the trainer of the Grand National winner in 1925, Double Chance, which he owned in partnership with Mr. D. Goold. Double Chance, who ran in the name and colours of the latter, originally belonged to Mr. A. de Rothschild, his breeder, who, after the horse was found useless for flat racing, presented it to Archer, who used him as a hunter with the Middleton Hounds.

Until the February of 1924 Archer trained a few horses for Mr. Goold and Captain Whitworth at Danby House, Malton, but returned to Ellesmere House, Newmarket, following the death of his father. In April, 1926, he took charge of Lord Glanely's string at The Grange, succeeding Frank B. Barling.

GRAND GLACIER.

He, however, did not remain long as private trainer to Lord Glanely; for his agreement terminated on December 31st last year. Archer, however, during his short period of office saddled several winners for him, including Grand Glacier, who won the Molyneux Cup at Liverpool two years in succession.

Mr. Anthony de Rothschild was a good friend to Archer, and not long ago sent him two yearling colts to train—one of them being the Phalaris colt for which he paid 3,200 guineas at the Newmarket Second July Sales.

DOG-RACING FAILS IN GERMANY.

ENGLISH WHIPPETS GIVEN TO FARMERS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Sunday.

Dog-racing, which was started on two tracks in Berlin in the spring of this year, has proved a complete failure, chiefly owing to the fact that the organisers omitted to obtain a concession to have totalisators, so that the public were consequently unable to bet, and found no attraction in seeing dogs racing for one minute or so, and then having to wait half-an-hour for the next race to begin.

The company which started dog-racing here has ceased to operate, leaving behind 120 fine whippets, which had been imported from England. The question arose as to what was to be done with the animals, which are unsuitable as house dogs, being too nervous and sensitive, and consequently difficult to handle by non-experts.

At one time it was seriously thought of poisoning the lot, but they were saved from this fate by an ex-major in Potsdam, who kept them in his kennels for some time until he found the expense of feeding them too great. He then tried to sell them by auction, but without success, as nobody would buy them. Finally he got rid of the dogs, which in England would be worth a considerable sum each, by the simple expedient of advertising that he had two dogs to give away.

Practically every farmer and landowner in the neighbourhood of Potsdam now has a whippet born in England in his possession, little realising the value of the present made to him.

In view of pending Local Government reforms, the L.C.C. do not suggest any action regarding a proposal that register office marriages should not be continued in Poor Law buildings.

STORIES OF THE GALE.

over the ship—was seen rapidly approaching the ship, and all five of us grabbed hold at any available fitting to prevent us being swept overboard.

"Leggat coiled his leg around the gyrometer, an instrument used in recording the weight on the cable as it is paid out, and was struck by the full force of water.

"I had gripped hold of a rope when the wave struck us. Seeing the chief officer fall, I grabbed him by the coat, and in doing so lost my hold of the rope. We both were swept along the deck for a considerable distance, so great was the force of water which fell upon the vessel.

IN THE SHIP'S HOSPITAL.

"Finally I was dashed with great force against a ship's fitting, a fate which, I understand, also befell the chief officer. The other seamen sheltered behind the capstan and escaped injury, but the bo'sun hurt his knee and shin.

"I then tried to rise, but found it impossible, and lay upon the deck until other members of the crew were summoned and carried me down to the ship's hospital. Here I was joined by my injured comrades.

"Our doctor made a rapid superficial examination of our injuries, and informed our commander of the result. Upon ascertaining how badly injured we were Captain Campos, O.B.E., decided to make for port at once, and immediately gave orders for the ship's course to be altered for Queenstown. The chief officer and bo'sun had their legs injured, and sustained extensive bruises, but are remaining on board."

TWO MEN LEFT BEHIND.

Leggat has a fractured hip and severe bruises, and has been removed to the Cork Infirmary for treatment. Baker is suffering from extensive bruises. Both men belong to London.

The Dominia proceeded to sea again at seven o'clock on Saturday evening. This vessel, 9,243 tons gross, is the largest cable ship in the world. Owned by the Cable Construction and Maintenance Company, London (W. R. Smith, manager), she was launched from the Newcastle-on-Tyne yard of the Swan, Hunter and Wighan Richardson Company in 1926.

HEYSHAM STEAMER STRIKES PIER.

ALL CROSS-CHANNEL BOATS DELAYED.

Very rough seas raged between Ireland and Great Britain, causing delay to the steamer services.

The Glasgow boat was three hours late in reaching Dublin on Saturday morning. Two hours after her usual time the Lady Louth, from Liverpool, berthed at the North Wall.

Despite the fact that it was as rough a journey as she has ever had to face and that she was compelled to reduce speed, the mail boat Hibernia was only half an hour late in reaching Kingstown from Holyhead.

A number of fishing vessels had put in early to Kingstown Harbour, and during the height of the gale three large cargo steamers entered Scotsman's Bay and took shelter for the night under the lee shore. The tugboat Strongbow, bound for Falmouth, found the weather too "dirty" to face, and also put into harbour.

The mail train from London to Stranraer was nearly two hours late, and the steamer did not leave for Larne until after 8 p.m. It was one hour and forty-six minutes late in reaching the Irish side.

It was after half-past nine on Saturday morning when the Ardrossan, Heysham and Liverpool steamers made fast at Belfast docks —a delay of over an hour and a half. The Glasgow steamer did not berth until nearly 11.30.

HEYSHAM STEAMER DAMAGED.

The Belfast-Heysham passenger and cargo steamer Duke of Argyle (4,000 tons) had a rough passage from Belfast on Saturday morning, experiencing the full force of the south-westerly gale, which at times attained a velocity of sixty miles an hour.

Besides being two hours late on arrival at Heysham, the vessel collided with the stone pier in the harbour, doing such damage that she was withdrawn from the service, and will go to Barrow for repairs, which will occupy three weeks.

Midway across the Irish Channel heavy seas were shipped and the hatches of the cargo hold dislodged. The sea poured into the cargo, much of which was ruined, although the crew worked in the hold in several feet of water saving as much as possible.

In the collision with the pier several steel plates were ripped and a long portion of the ship's belting was torn away. When the collision occurred many of the three hundred passengers on board were on deck awaiting disembarkation, and the force of the impact created momentary alarm.

Express trains run in connection with the steamer were over two hours late in leaving.

GLASGOW STEAMER WRECKED.

The Anchor liner Transylvania, with 900 passengers for New York, and due to leave on Friday night, was delayed until Saturday, and two Clan liners also found it impossible to leave on Friday. The incoming liner Anconia, with 200 returning Canadian harvesters, was held up on Saturday morning, as the tender could not approach her in the heavy seas.

Most of the Clyde coast resorts were without mails on Saturday morning, as the morning steamers were unable to reach the piers.

Messrs. J. A. Gardner and Company, Limited, of Glasgow, on Saturday received a telegram from the master of their vessel, the St. Brandan, stating—"St. Brandan ashore on the Cairns of Coll, total wreck; crew saved." The vessel was on a run from the East Coast of England to Glasgow, but called en route to discharge part of the cargo at Carbost, Skye.

Everything apparently went well until the Cairns of Coll were reached on Friday. There a storm sprang up, and although the vessel battled bravely against the huge seas it was eventually thrown on to the reefs.

The St. Brandan carried a crew of ten men, and had only been launched three years.

TORN FROM MOORINGS.

The dredger Gilbertson broke her moorings in the channel at Workington and drifted across the mouth of the river to the north beach, where she gounded. Her crew spent an anxious five hours, as there was a danger that she might be blown out to sea. The steamship Gem, in Workington dock, broke all her mooring ropes. One of her crew was blown into the hold and broke his arm.

The London Midland and Scottish Railway Company's mooring lighter Iron Duke broke adrift and stranded near Sheep Island, in Walney Channel. Two men were taken from the vessel, which now lies high and dry.

On the River Clyde, much swollen by floods, shipping was suspended, and several liners were unable to leave.

DAMAGE IN DUBLIN AND BELFAST.

HOUSE UNROOFED IN NORTHERN CITY.

Beyond the fall of a chimney through the roof of a house in Pearse street, reported on Saturday, no very serious damage was caused in Dublin by Friday night's gale. A tree was blown down on the Malahide road, near the golf club, but caused no serious obstruction.

A number of plate glass windows in O'Connell street and elsewhere were blown in. In addition to those mentioned in our issue of Saturday, that of Messrs. Burton, O'Connell street, was smashed. At Messrs. Hopkins and Hopkins' establishment an upper window was broken. The shutter blind of the butcher's shop 62 Moore street was blown open, and some swinging signs were damaged.

Telegraphic communication was seriously interrupted.

No serious damage was reported along the Dublin coast. Here and there a few trees were blown down, but nowhere at places which caused inconvenience to the general public. Some windows and roofs suffered, but no accidents to individuals were reported.

HAYRICK ON FIRE.

A hayrick belonging to Mr. C. Loughlin, Vevay, Bray, somehow caught fire, and in the high wind would soon have been a total loss.

The fire was fought in the height of the wind by the Bray Fire Brigade and a number of Civic Guards, under Sergeant Sutton, and most of the property was saved.

BELFAST AND THE NORTH.

Considerable damage was done in Belfast and district. A house in course of erection in the Antrim road district was stripped of its roof and otherwise damaged, and a tent belonging to Carmo's circus in the centre of the city was blown down. Slates and chimney pots were scattered in considerable numbers, and telegraphic and telephonic communication with Britain and the South was greatly interrupted, being for a time entirely suspended.

The Crawfordsburn road, Co. Down, was blocked with fallen trees, with the result that for a considerable time traffic between Bangor and Belfast had to be diverted via Helen's Bay, and in other country districts hayricks and farm buildings suffered severely.

So far as can be learned there were no serious personal injuries. The gale reached its height about 3 a.m. on Saturday.

IN THE PROVINCES.

COUNTY DONEGAL FARMER KILLED.

At the height of the storm on Friday night Bernard Claffey (51), farmer, of Esker, Eyrecourt, Co. Galway, was killed instantly by some sheets of galvanized iron, which fell from the roof of an out-house he was repairing.

Getting alarmed at the force of the gale, he was putting some sods on the thatch of the out-house, when three large galvanized sheets, joined together by a wooden joist, suddenly slipped, striking him on the head.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by the Coroner, Mr. J. P. Hovan, at the inquest on Saturday.

LIVING VAN BLOWN FROM ROAD.

A road contractor's living van on the Omeath to Carlingford road was blown into the Dundalk and Newry Railway line, thirty feet below the road. The three workmen in the van escaped with a severe shaking and injuries. The van took fire, and was wholly destroyed.

At Newry, John Donaghy, of Bessbrook, was precipitated through the windscreen of a motor car when the driver crashed into a railway wall at Newry. Several artries were cut in Donaghy's face and head, and he had to be removed to hospital.

At Newry, a pawnbroker's window was blown in and goods were whisked out by the gale and carried a quarter of a mile.

In Western Ireland the storm was accompanied during its whole course by vivid flashes of lightning.

Trees were uprooted, slates stripped off houses, and telegraph, telephone and electric light wires blown down.

Al the fishing rivers in Connemara are flooded.

Trees were uprooted, and blocked all the county roads around Drogheda.

RIVERS OVERFLOW.

Many houses in the East end of Armagh City were floooded.

In Fermanagh the rivers have overflowed. Lough Erne, which has been particularly low, has risen two feet in the past week.

The tide in the Shannon at Limerick, which would have been normally 17ft. 6in., rose five feet further on Saturday, but there was no serious flooding. Windows of houses were blown in, and slates stripped in many instances; while in the suburbs trees were blown down.

GUARDS' BARRACK UNROOFED.

Considerable damage was done by the storm in the Tralee district, where many trees were blown across the roads, and motorists had narrow escapes. The ornamental railings in front of the Tralee Technical Schools was broken down by a falling tree.

"The corrugated iron roof of the Scartaglin Guards' Barracks was blown off, and much damage was done to bedding and furniture.

Telegraph wires were down in several places, and Tralee was cut off from communication by wire with outside districts.

At Tullamore the storm uprooted large trees, stripped the roofs off houses and scattered hay stacks. Roads were blocked by fallen trees.

The storm did considerable damage in the County Kildare. At the Curragh Stand House a large portion of the sheeting of the roof of the new addition was blown away.

At the Curragh Camp a great deal of roofing and slates were swept off during the storm; while in a few instances some sentry boxes, not being used, were found to be missing. These were discovered in the early morning lying beyond the camp.

ELECTRICITY CUT OFF.

In Loughrea the electric supply was cut off and the town practically left in darkness. Telegraph wires also suffered, and, as a result, the arrival of trains was two hours behind scheduled time.

The motor car in which a party was travelling to Kinvarra from Loughrea after the draw for the coursing match was overturned by the force of the gale.

In County Clare telephonic and telegraphic communications were damaged, and, owing to the impossibility of getting into touch with many country districts, the full effect of the storm cannot yet be estimated. At Ennistymon a large wooden garage was wrecked.

Motorists experienced considerable difficulty in reaching their homes. The hood was ripped off a two-seater car driven by Mrs. J. B. MacClancy, of Ennis, and the car brought to a standstill by the terrific force of the wind. A motoring party proceeding from Lisdoonvarna to Miltown, a distance of about sixteen miles, took five hours to complete the journey.

Heavy rain accompanied the later stages of the storm, and to-day large tracts of land are flooded in many parts of the county.

In Mountmellick the roof was blown off Mr. Dann's house. The river overflowed, and several houses were flooded. Fallen trees blocked the Maryborough road.

The jetty at Glin was damaged and the Shannon waters entered the flour stores on the pier. Mr. O'Connor's motor boat was wrecked at Tarbert Island.

A Youghal message states that haystacks were blown to sea from the headland between Ballymacoda and Knockadoon.

The Shannon overflowed at Bonnaribba, near Athlone, and entered dwellinghouses. Hail showers fell on Saturday.

Around Ballybay the countryside is strewn with wreckage of outhouses, sheds, hayricks and fences.

FARMERS AND MILK PRODUCTION.

FIXING A UNIFORM PRICE.

A conference has been held in Plunkett House, Dublin, under the auspices of the Irish Agricultural Organisation Society, representative of the milk producers of the Counties Wicklow, Dublin, Meath, Louth, Kildare and Carlow, which largely supply the city and suburbs of Dublin, the object being to establish a united claim for the fixing of a uniform price for new milk, which would afford the producers a reasonable margin of profit, and obviate the present irregularities in prices that obtain.

It was emphasised that the only course open to the producers was to combine and bring about a fixed, fair, uniform price for all producers, instead of the present chaotic condition and unprofitable results, with a preference to the few.

A working committee, representing the several counties, was appointed to meet the city vendors and distributors on next Thursday at the Irish Farmers' Union headquarters, when it is hoped that, as a result, an amicable arrangement will be arrived at.

DRAINAGE OF THE BANN.

Derry County Council has appointed a deputation to wait on the Northern Premier with a view to getting a definite assurance as to the area of charge in connection with the Government's proposed scheme for the drainage of the River Bann.

Sales of National Savings Certificates in Great Britain for the week ended October 6 were 1,076,708, making a grand total of 878,414,645, representing a cash equivalent of £688,341,465.

THE SOMERSET DUCKING CASE.

OFFICERS' APOLOGY TO JOURNALIST.

HANDSHAKES IN COURT.

There was a happy termination at Dunster, Somerset, on Saturday, to the case against three Army officers alleged to have taken part in "frog marching" a young free lance journalist, Mr. Edward Alexander Hemingway, into the sea at Minehead, following an incident at a polo ball on September 5. Apologies were tendered by the officers, and the case ended with mutual handshaking.

The officers were Captain William Richardson Bailey, whose address was given as Piccadilly, London; Captain A. W. M. S. Pilkington, 16th Lancers, Tidworth Barracks; and Captain George Fanshawe, Queen's Bays, described as of Maldon road, Colchester. They were summoned for causing grievous bodily harm to Mr. Hemingway and also with assault. Polo players, hunting men and women, and farmers crowded the little police court.

Mr. T. J. W. Templeman, solicitor, appeared for Mr. Hemingway, while Mr. Norman Birkett, K.C., and Mr. Wilfrid Bennett defended the three officers. Mr. Blackford, solicitor, watched the proceedings on behalf of the stag hunting interests, and Mr. J. A. C. Kennard, solicitor, represented the Hotel Metropole Company. Mr. J. D. Acland was the presiding magistrate.

Captain Pilkington and Captain Fanshawe were prominent players in the Southern tournament of the West Somerset Polo Club, at the close of which was held the fancy dress ball in connection with which the alleged incidents occurred. Captain Bailey, who is one of the official polo umpires at Hurlingham, was an umpire at the tournament.

BLANK SHOTS AND HORN-BLOWING.

Before the Court resumed the hearing, Mr. Hemingway, all three officers, and their legal representatives were called into a private room, apparently for the purpose of a conference. No reference was made in open court to this conference.

Further evidence was called, and Leonard George Archer, a waiter, who had already been in the witness box, was recalled and cross-examined by Mr. Birkett. He said that at the beginning, when Hemingway was seized by the shoulders, Captain Bailey had a revolver, and was firing it with blank shot. "I also saw Captain Bailey with a hunting-horn, which he was blowing as they were taking Hemingway out to the sea."

George Rutland Price, of Wellington street, Cardiff, who was hall porter at the Hotel Metropole, Minehead, on September 5, said that he did not witness the alleged assault, but later that night he saw Captain Pilkington take some plates from a waiter named James in the kitchen and drop them because they were hot. When James protested, Captain Pilkington replied—"If you are not —— careful I will throw you into the sea as I did the other ——."

AN INDIGNANT PORTER.

Robert Sully, who was night porter at the hotel on September 5, said: "I saw an extraordinary sight. I saw Hemingway dragged through the hall. He was seized by four men. It was difficult to recognise them, and the four men were all dressed in ladies' costumes; but I remember Captain Pilkington very well.

"I have reason to remember him. Hemingway's arms were seized and twisted behind him, so that he looked like a trussed-up fowl. He shouted to me to get the police. As he was being bumped through the hall he came in contact with the door. They gave him a sharp jerk, and outside I heard his body repeatedly bumped on the steps outside the hotel."

At the end of his evidence Sully added: "It was the most damnable and inhuman thing I have ever seen in my life. Here is a loyal citizen——"

Mr. Birkett—That will do. Mr. Templeman will make the speech.

SERIOUS CHARGES DISMISSED.

Addressing the magistrate for the defence, Mr. Birkett submitted that there was not sufficient or proper evidence to put the officers on their trial. This was a very grave and serious matter, and it was highly important that the Court should appreciate the points which he now submitted—that there was no evidence of grievous bodily harm, and that there was no evidence of intention to disable.

His attitude and conduct of the case would have been different if the summons had been brought on a charge of common assault only. "Evidence of common assault there may be," said Mr. Birkett, "but of grievous bodily harm, with intent to disable, absolutely not."

After a brief retirement the Chairman said the magistrates had decided to dismiss the case in so far as it related to the summonses on the more serious charge. The case would proceed on the alternative summonses for common assault.

Immediately after the luncheon interval Mr. Templeman told the Bench that he had had an opportunity of consulting with learned counsel on the other side, and he applied for leave to withdraw the summonses for assault.

The magistrates having assented to this course, Mr. Birkett said that had the case continued the precise part taken by particular people would have had to be examined with great care.

OFFICERS APOLOGISE.

"Captain Pilkington and Captain Fanshawe did take some part in the unfortunate happenings on that night—it is quite clear from the evidence that a great number of people took part. These officers, desire, through me, publicly, fully and frankly, to apologise to Mr. Hemingway for the part they took."

Mr. Birkett added that he did not want to go into controversial matters, but the officers denied taking part in "the subsequent immersion." They also desired to say that the attitude adopted by Mr. Hemingway in acting through his solicitor for the withdrawal of the summonses did credit to his fairness and honour, and they wished to pay all Mr. Hemingway's costs and expenses in the way of medical examination and witnesses.

Mr. Hemingway desired that there should be no personal payment to himself, added Mr. Birkett. He did not want to make a penny out of this matter. Mr. Hemingway by his conduct had rendered possible this final settlement of all matters, civil or criminal. The officers had intimated to him that they would like to shake hands with Mr. Hemingway and be at amity.

Mr. Templeman, in acknowledgment, said: "My client did feel that there was someone behind it, and that there was no reason why these men should have done what they did, and I sincerely hope there will be no further trouble with Mr. Hemingway in this district." On behalf of Mr. Hemingway he accepted the apology, adding: "We bear no malice." He also gave Mr. Hemingway's undertaking that there would be no further proceedings in the matter, civil or criminal.

Mr. Hemingway then rose from his seat beside Mr. Templeman and approached the three officers, who also rose in their seats in the small public gallery. They cordially shook hands with Mr. Hemingway across the rail separating the gallery from the well of the Court.

RIGHTS OF CITIZENS.

BISHOP OF CASHEL AT CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL.

Preaching yesterday morning at the Harvest Thanksgiving Service in Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin, the Bishop of Cashel took as his text St. John, xviii., 37—"Everyone that is of the truth heareth My voice."

Every effort to raise the moral tone of a community, he said, ought to be praiseworthy, but it is very questionable whether this can be done by Acts of Parliament, and the utmost care should be taken that such laws in the administration should not interfere with the rights of any law-abiding members of the community.

However we may view such legislation, it is a lamentable proof that Christian workers as a whole have failed in their efforts to lift the moral tone of the community. We have all failed in some degree to induce our members to follow the example of Christ, and it is our duty, therefore, to show the people that we have an absolute standard of right and wrong, that our whole system of religious life is founded upon it, and that we are authorised to expound it only. The burden is laid upon us as a Church to declare what is the truth by following the apostolic and pointing to the perfect Christ, saying "Follow Him." We hold strongly that by this method only can growth in holiness be obtained, and consequent stability in the society in which we live.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE IRISH MANUSCRIPTS COMMISSION.

LETTER FROM MR. HUGH LAW.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Will you permit me to point out that the headline, "Care of Gaelic Manuscripts," under which you reported President Cosgrave's reply to my recent question, is likely, if not corrected, to mislead hasty readers as to the scope and purpose of the Irish Manuscripts' Commission. The Commission is, of course, concerned, not merely with Gaelic MSS. (which, indeed, are only specifically mentioned in one sub-paragraph of the terms of reference), but with "existing collections of manuscripts and papers of literary, historical and general interest relating to Ireland," in whatever tongue they may be written. The word "Irish" in the title of the Commission must be taken as having geographical rather than linguistic significance, as when we say "the Irish Land Commission," not as when we say "the Irish language."

Unfortunately, the otherwise excellent leading article in Friday's issue of the Irish Times does nothing to clear up the confusion which I fear, but may even incidentally have increased it, since it contains a complaint that "no provision is made for the publication of works in other tongues than Irish. It is true that paragraph 2 (b) of the terms of reference appears to offer exceptional facilities for the early publication in extenso of Gaelic MSS.; but the publication of other MSS. is clearly contemplated also. The second part of paragraph 1 directs the Commission "to advise as to the steps which should be taken for the preservation and publication of MSS. generally; and paragraph 2 (a) further authorises "the preparation and publication of calendars and catalogues of such MSS."

To revert for a moment to the more general question, I may, perhaps, add that the word "Irish," as equivalent to "Gaelic," is used for the first (and only) time in paragraph 2 (b), and cannot by any possible rule of construction be held to govern or limit the preceding paragraph and sub-section. Perhaps, too, I may say that, in putting down questions and in discussing the matter on various occasions with members of the Government, my own personal concern has been with non-Gaelic MSS., for the very good reason that these appeared to be in some danger of being overlooked, and in much greater danger (since, unlike the majority of Gaelic MSS., they may be presumed to be chiefly in private hands) of being dispersed or destroyed.

It is of immense importance that we should know as soon as possible what family papers (apart from the few well-known collections already dealt with by the English Historical Manuscripts' Commission) still exist in this country; where they are; what fresh light they may be expected to throw on the history of (more especially) the last three centuries; and how this light may best be made available for the historical student. It would be a great misfortune if, misunderstanding its scope and purpose, owners of Irish papers were to think the setting up of this Commission no concern of theirs. Therefore it is that I have ventured to trouble you with this letter.—Yours, etc.,

HUGH A. LAW.

THE FREE STATE CENSORSHIP BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—As an Irishman who values the existence and development of his race, I hope you will excuse my interfering in the controversy on the Censorship Bill. In all civilised nations some control by Government is necessary, and, while liberty is welcomed and necessary for the development of the nation, licence is to be condemned; for it checks development. Therefore, I personally welcome this bill, and I hope that the Government will not allow themselves to be misled into qualifying down their definitions so as to render the bill ineffectual.

The expression "Board of Cranks" used by one of the deputies and set out by you as a heading to your report on the debate is most insulting to the Government and to Irishmen. The application of the bill will be in the hands of educated, sane and sensible men, responsible to a sane and sensible nation, and not in the hands of narrow-minded bigots. In your leading article of the 18th inst. you state that the bill will establish a control over the reading of all citizens in the Free State. Might it not be equally argued that the law of libel creates a similar control over all present publications, even your paper? Why should indecent publications enjoy a freedom denied to libellous publications? As a Catholic, I can only regret that you and some of your correspondents seem inclined to drag religion into a question which really concerns the civil government.—Yours, etc.,

H. GRATTAN BELLEW.

Tennehinch, Enniskerry, Co. Wicklow, October 19th, 1928.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Having lived most of my life in Southern Ireland, I must confess that I have never seen anything indecent or obscene exposed for sale, though I have seen some particularly vulgar picture postcards. What I saw this summer, however, at a small seaside resort could not be published by way of a picture—women and girls, more than semi-nude, dressing, undressing and drying themselves on the open seashore, in full view of the houses facing the sea. The fishermen even remarked how scandalous it was. The Civic Guards have occasionally prosecuted men, but they never interfere with the women, who are now, I think, far worse. If we are to be protected from evil literature, let us also be protected from indecent sights in public.—Yours, etc.,

JUMPING AT BALLSBRIDGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It has often seemed to me that someone should suggest to the Royal Dublin Society to cater more for the hunting public—I mean those who come from the country and look on show jumping as rather a "stunt" performance. To the uninitiated I have no doubt that the professional—may I term them "circus"?—show jumpers are very satisfying. They certainly are flashy, but they have no relation at all to hunting. The old-time show jumping competitions called for hunting pace, etc., and the jumpers of those days were seasoned hunters that would carry their riders over any country. The majority of well-known Ballsbridge horses of to-day would be very chancy mounts, and would certainly not be a safe conveyance over a trappy country.

I would suggest that in every jumping programme there should be a competition confined to newcomers to Ballsbridge, which would bring to Dublin the winners at provincial shows, and would give their owners a chance of showing their horses before a large public of potential purchasers. I would further suggest that a competition for horses that have never won anywhere should be established. On whatever points other "fashionable" competitors may be judged, these should be judged strictly from the hunting standpoint, hunting style and pace. If this were done, it would make the Dublin jumping ring more popular among the horse-breeding and hunting fraternity throughout the country, and would, I have no doubt, add both to the popularity and the finances of the Royal Dublin Society. I have often heard remarks by visitors who were well accustomed to a saddle, to the effect that it was only such and such a horse going round and that they were tired of looking at him.—Yours, etc.,

GEORGE BORROW AND IRISH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Mr. Tallon in his letter on "Compulsory Irish" refers to George Borrow, and says that Borrow admits "that it was through learning Irish . . . that he became a perfect master of many other tongues." This would lead one to suppose that, if Borrow had not learned Irish, he would not have become a perfect master of other tongues. Borrow gives us no such idea. He says: "The acquisition of which (i.e., Irish), in my case, became the stepping stone to other languages. Having learnt one by chance, I speedily, as the reader will perceive, learnt others."

Quite so; he had a natural aptitude for languages, but he does not say that his knowledge of Irish made it easier for him to learn other languages. Mr. Tallon does not tell us why Borrow turned his attention to the acquisition of Irish. It occurs in the middle of the passage which Mr. Tallon quotes from "Lavengro," and runs thus: "First of all, and principally, I believe, the strangeness and singularity of its tones: then there was something mysterious and uncommon associated with its use. It was not a school language, to acquire which was considered an imperative duty: no, no; nor was it a drawingroom language—nothing of the kind; but a speech spoken in out-of-the-way, desolate places and in cut-throat kens, where thirty ruffians, at the sight of the King's minions, would spring up with brandished sticks and an 'ubbubboo,' like the blowing up of a powder magazine. Such were the points connected with Irish which first awakened in my mind the desire of acquiring it."

Mr. Tallon might surely have continued the quotation from "Lavengro" with which he concludes his letter:—"Ah, that Irish! I am much indebted to it in more ways than one. But I am afraid I have followed the way of the world, which is very much wont to neglect original friends and benefactors. I frequently find myself, at present, turning up my nose at Irish, when I hear it in the street; yet I still have a kind of regard for it, the fine old language."

I think it may, in a general way, interest your readers to point out what George Borrow says, at the end of chapter nine in the same book, about Orangemen: "A most remarkable body of men, who, during two centuries, have fought a good fight in Ireland in the cause of civilisation and religious truth: they were sent as colonists, few in number, into a barbarous and unhappy country, where ever since, though surrounded with difficulties of every kind, they have maintained their ground: theirs has been no easy life, nor have their lives fallen upon very pleasant places; amidst darkness they have held up a lamp, and it would be well for Ireland were all her children like these her adopted ones. . . . They have been vilified and traduced—but what would Ireland be without them? I repeat, that it would be well for Ireland were all her sons no worse than these much calumniated children of her adoption." Yes; George Borrow is worth reading.—Yours, etc.,

THE WELSH LANGUAGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Having lately spent a fortnight in Wales, I was interested in Mr. F. Hughes's letter, in which he says that "a Minister recently stated, in a speech in Dublin, that the entire population of Wales could speak Welsh. This, of course, is totally incorrect." Let me give my own experience. After landing at Holyhead I had to take my watch to a watchmaker for repairs. Being a stranger to the town, I had to ask my way several times, and, every time I did so, was answered, after a pause, in very broken English. In one case the speaker appealed to a passer-by for help—not that she did not know the place to which I wished to be directed, but simply that she could not put her words into English.

I stayed in a hotel at a very charming little seaside resort, about two miles from Holyhead, and often went in a local motor-'bus, and was much struck by the animated conversation carried on by most of the passengers in Welsh, and it was spoken also by the drivers and conductors. The clergyman who conducted the Service in church was very Welsh in his pronunciation, and it struck me that he would be at least as much at home in the Welsh language as in English. A gentleman who, I believe, was a doctor attending a patient in the hotel, had tea in the public diningroom with the patient's companion attendant, and they kept up an animated conversation in Welsh all the time. The servants spoke Welsh among themselves, but were quite fluent in English when speaking to visitors.

What particularly struck me was the absolute spontaneousness in the use of the national language, and I should say that much business is conducted in it. As a visitor remarked to me, "Would it not make Mr. Cosgrave turn green with envy to hear it?" It would take several generations to produce such a natural effect with regard to the Irish language in Ireland, and I doubt that it can ever be attained. The heart of the people is not in it.—Yours, etc.,

"M.C.R."

SLIGO WAR MEMORIAL.

GENERAL HICKIE'S ADDRESS

The memorial to the men from Sligo town and county who fell in the Great War was unveiled yesterday in the presence of a great crowd by General Sir William B. Hickie, K.C.B. The memorial takes the form of a simple Celtic cross of solid design in limestone, taken from the Ballygawley (Co. Sligo) Quarry, and it is the work of Mr. Patrick Scanlon, Cairns' Hill, Sligo. The base is several tons in weight, and the diestone, into which the cross is set, is close on two tons in weight. In raised gold lettering on a black background is the following inscription:—"In Glorious Membory of the Men of the Town and County of Sligo, who Gave their Lives in the Great War, 1914-1918."

It was originally intended to erect the memorial at a site opposite the Ulster Bank, but when the work of laying the foundation was well advanced on Monday last it was found that a water main was directly under the spot, and work was stopped. The President of the Sligo Branch of the British Legion, Mr. R. C. Gorman, kindly offered a plot on his grounds at Edenhill for the erection of the memorial. This offer was gratefully accepted, and the memorial is now erected there. The site adjoins the main Dublin road on the outskirts of the town, and is very prettily situated, the general opinion being that it is much more suitable for the purpose than the original site.

The ex-Servicemen turned out in great force for the procession, which was headed by the Dublin Legion Band, with the Sligo Legion Band in the rear. There was a very large attendance of the general public.

Captain Gordon McCormick, the Chairman of the local branch of the Legion, apologised for the unavoidable absence from the ceremony of the Most Rev. Dr. Doorly, Bishop of Elphin; General Sir Bryan Mahon, Major Bryan R. Cooper, T.D.; Captain W. Redmond, T.D.; Major Tynan (Dublin), the Rev. Father Stafford (at one time chaplain of the Tenth (Irish) Division), and the Rev. Canon McClean.

General Hickie, in unveiling the memorial, said—We are glad to see this fine monument which you have erected here in Sligo to the memory of those four hundred of your fellow-countrymen who went out to fight in the Great War in the cause of right and of justice, and who laid down their lives for those ideals. As the days go by and the memories of those terrible days recede and grow dimmer, we are apt to forget about it, and taking into consideration the trials and hardships which have beset life since peace was declared, we are prone to ask what was gained by the Allies when the war was won. Rather should we ask, What would have been the position in Europe to-day if the Allies had lost the war and if the Central Powers had been victorious? Try as they may, those Powers cannot get away from the fact that the war was of their own making; that was the outcome of the Pan-Germanic plan to dominate all Europe. These men whose memory we honour to-day came forward at a time when the future of the world was in the balance, and it was their effort and their sacrifice and the efforts and sacrifices of millions of men who throughout the world refused to bow to the threat of militarism; that brought, not only relief from the menace but also brought home to the peoples of the world that war is hateful and hideous, and that there must never be another. Every one of these little ceremonies, which make us remember the cost of strife and the sufferings which eventually follow, make us realise the more the blessings of peace. We should be determined that by all means in our power we shall always work for that peace—peace at home and peace abroad—and never forget that, though opinions and interests will differ, there is no subject which should not be capable of adjustment without recourse to arms.

I congratulate the promoters of this ceremony, the designer and workmen who have produced this fine monument, and the committee who have worked so well. To the Glory of God and to the memory of the men of Sligo who gave their lives in the Great War, I dedicate this monument.

Following the unveiling, a number of wreaths were placed at the foot of the memorial, and ex-bugler J. Mullen sounded the Last Post and Reveillé.

Major Myles (Ballyshannon), who was in command of a contingent of ex-Service men from that district, thanked General Hickie for his presence. The local Brigade of Boy Scouts, recently formed by Mr. Pleass, a Sligo Grammar School teacher, took part in the procession.

Four hundred and sixteen men from Sligo town and county were killed in the war.

U.S. MARKETS.

HEAVY SELLING OF MOTORS.

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

NEW YORK, Saturday.

Stocks opened irregular. Heavy selling of Motors unsettled the market after an early outburst of strength, during which a score of issues reached new high ground, and the extreme gains of one to ten points in a long list of pool specialities were offset by a number of declines, ranging from one to five points. While week-end letters from a number of the leading commission houses continued to urge caution, with several suggesting "profiteering," there was nothing in overnight news to explain the selling of Motors. The feature of the market was American Express, which, after reaching 268½, collapsed to 226. Among the extreme declines were Adams Express, down 10, Radio 12, International Nickel 7, and Allied Chemical 6; while Coty, General Motors, Hudson Motor, Curtiss Aero, Freeport Texas, Sulphur, Du Pont and Jewel Tea declined 4 to 5 points. Montgomery Ward, after reaching 352, broke to 345. Among the stocks in which an accumulation continued were Johns Manville, Electric Auto Lite and National Tea, the latter rising 10 points. The market closed weak. Government Bonds quiet. Railroad Bonds steady. The day's sales totalled 2,334,000 shares.

WHEAT opened barely steady and ⅝c. to ⅜c. lower owing to the weakness at Liverpool and reports of easier Canadian offers abroad. NEW YORK COTTON.

COTTON at the opening was barely steady and 5 to 9 points lower. Hedge selling and liquidation, due to favourable weather accounts, with no frost reported, together with a liberal movement and expectations of large ginnings, depressed values, but there was a fair trado demand at the decline, and textile news was favourable. Subsequent covering brought rallies, and the market finished steady, 11 points up to a point down. Spot unaltered. New Orleans futures opened 8 points up to 1 point lower. Around 10 o'clock October was quoted 18.90, December 18.96, January 18.98, March 18.90, May 18.80, and July 18.62. THE HEALTH OF MANKIND.

SIR GEORGE NEWMAN'S REPORT.

SAVING OF CHILD LIFE IN BRITAIN.

Nothing is more certain than the fact that the physical advancement and health of mankind is dependent, not upon a doctor's stunt here or a sanitary institution there, but upon the whole social evolution of the people.

So writes Sir George Newman, Chief Medical Officer of the Ministry of Health, London, in his report on the state of the public health for 1927, issued on Saturday. Four particular basic principles, he states, must be fulfilled before they could lay sound foundations for a national system of preventive medicine.

There must be ascertainment and accurate registration of the data obtainable. We must start the race from scratch. There must be a standard in our minds, and that standard should not be of disease and pestilence, but of health and physiology. Having the physiological capacity of man as our foundation we must supplement it by an ever-growing knowledge of pathology, the character and incidence of disease, its causes and predisposing conditions, its mode of spread, the social factors which increase or reduce it, and the means of its treatment and prevention.

INFANT MORTALITY.

In 1927 the children born numbered 654,172, much the lowest number for a great many years. The birth rate was 16.6, the lowest on record. The number of deaths was 484,609, an increase of 30,805 on the previous year. The death rate was 12.3 per thousand persons. The infant mortality rate was 70 per thousand born, the same rate as for 1926. That meant that in 1927 the country saved 37,800 babies' lives over and above the annual average saving obtained in 1901-10.

TUBERCULOSIS AND MATERNAL MORTALITY.

Turning to the fight against tuberculosis, Sir George gives statistics showing that of persons who suffered from tuberculosis between the years 1913 and 1926, fifty per cent. survived. Recovery from small degrees of tubercular infection was a matter of daily experience.

Referring to maternal mortality, the report states:—"The maternal death rate due to child-birth in 1927 was 4.11; that is almost the same as in 1926. It is, of course, disappointing to be unable to report some definite reduction, but it is evident that improvement will be slow, and that we must be content with gradual progress." Maternal deaths in 1927 were 2,690 and there were 654,172 births, and in the preceding year the figures were 2,860 deaths and 694,563 births.

It is stated:—"Adequate ante-natal supervision, whether by private doctor or midwife, with the assistance of the municipal clinic or of the maternity hospital, is the only foundation upon which an effective scheme for a maternity service can be built."

OBITUARY.

MR. CHARLES NUGENT HUMBLE.

The news of the death of Mr. Charles Nugent Humble in a nursing home in Dublin on Friday last was learned with much regret in the County Waterford. The younger son of the late Sir John Nugent Humble, he was in his seventy-fifth year. For many years he had been a magistrate and a Deputy Lieutenant of the County Waterford, and for a considerable period was Master of the Waterford Hounds. He kept a pack of hounds for a time at his residence near Dungarvan. He was a keen sportsman and a good judge of horses and cattle, and was an extensive landowner in the County Waterford. His brother, Sir John Nugent Humble, resides in France.

REV. A. N. S. RICE.

Much regret is felt in Nenagh at the death of the Rev. Arthur Noel Spring Rice, M.A., at the early age of 51. Mr. Rice was well known in Nenagh, where he was Head Master of the Diocesan Schools in Barrack street from 1910 until 1914. In recent years he had acted as Assistant Master of Ilminster Grammar School, Somerset, where his death took place. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he was Ryan Prizeman in 1907, and Downes Prizeman in 1908. He took his M.A. Degree in 1913. After his ordination in 1909 he became curate of Nenagh, becoming Head Master of the Diocesan School there two years later. He went to Ilminster as curate in 1914, and in 1916 was appointed Assistant Master of the Grammar School.

THE DEAD MEAT TRADE.

FIRST CONSIGNMENT OF SEASON FROM CORK.

The first large consignment of dead meat for the present season was despatched from Cork by special train at 3 p.m. last Saturday, timed to reach Rosslare about 8 p.m. Last year the traffic from Cork, via Fishguard, had developed to the extent of 60,000 carcases, and the present season bids fair to considerably exceed the previous "records."

The development of the trade is a tribute to the co-operative system introduced by the Cork Farmers' Union. Mr. E. Cussen (secretary) and Mr. R. Dring, an expert on the breeding and marketing of pork, were the first to arrange with the Irish Railway and Shipping Co. and the Great Western Railway of England for transit arrangements to meet the requirements of the trade.

Private enterprise also was available, and Mr. Joseph Spillane, of the Cork Meat Market; Mr. Richard Wood, of Kitsbore, and Mr. Michael Broderick, of Youghal, have helped to build up a considerable business.

WATERFORD CO-OPERATIVE MEAT FACTORY.

A CRITICAL TIME.

At a meeting of the Queen's County shareholders of the Waterford Co-operative Meat Factory, Mr. W. H. M. Cobbe was unanimously re-elected director for Queen's County, and ex-officio Chairman of the Queen's County Committee.

Mr. Cobbe said that the factory had been nineteen months working, and was doing very well. They started at the very worst time, when the prices of pigs and bacon were falling, and they had to buy on a falling market and sell on a falling market. They lost a considerable amount of money; but in the first year's working they converted the loss into a credit balance of nearly £3,000. They were passing through a very critical time now—a time of great depression—but they were not losing much money, which was more than could be said of many of their competitors.

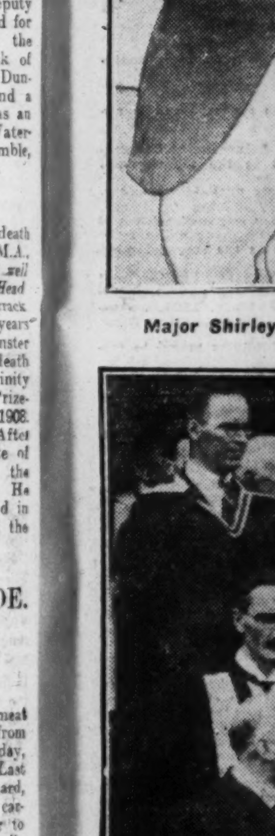

Exclusive of the salaries of the staff, they were paying in wages to 110 workmen about £270 a week. From October 6, 1927, when they started the factory, to May, 1928, they had killed 79,000 pigs, 849 cattle, and over 9,000 sheep.

Twelve shareholders were appointed on the County Committee for Queen's County.

WOMEN'S WORK FOR EX-SERVICE MEN.

HOW THE BRITISH LEGION HAS BEEN HELPED.

The Central Branch, Women's Section, of the British Legion held their annual meeting last Friday at Fuller's Café, Dublin, when very interesting reports were submitted.

The Chairman, Mrs. Lionel Jameson, in opening the meeting, said that the members of the branch were to be congratulated on the splendid work done during the year. She invited them to consider the work for the coming year, and asked those present to assist by suggestions, either by letter or personally, as to new ways of raising money. The Committee would welcome their co-operation.

The Honorary Secretary (Mrs. J. Canning Loughridge) reported at length on the various activities of the branch. The period now covered was one of nine months to the 30th September, on which date in future the financial year would end. She stated that a bal masque had been held in January, a sale of country produce in May, and a fête known as Donnybrook Fair in June. These were followed by the annual Horse Show ball in August, and all functions had proved unqualified successes. The sub-committees had worked well as amusement, visiting, coal and clothing, and industrial committees, and had been able to finance themselves without calling on the central funds. The general total of money raised for the cause was over fifteen hundred pounds. The programme for the coming year will include a whist drive on Armistice Eve in the Round Room of the Mansion House to help the formation of an industry for disabled ex-Service men. This will be followed by a bal masque on January 6th and other events during 1929.

The Honorary Treasurer (Mrs. R. H. Lambert) submitted the accounts of the branch, and detailed the various headings of receipts and expenditure. She was pleased to report that the finances were in a sound condition, and there was a substantial balance on hands.

The Chairman of the British Legion, Southern Area (Mr. A. P. Connolly), then took the chair. The following were elected as officers of the branch:—President—Lady Victoria Haig. Vice-Presidents — Lady Maddock, Mrs. Bryan Cooper, Miss Lennox-Conyngham, Mrs. Pike-Fortescue, Mrs. Hutchinson Davidson, Mrs. O'Sullivan, Mrs S. D. Lambert, and Mrs. Manning. Committee — Mrs. Lionel Jameson (chairman), Mrs. Walter Starkie (vice-chairman), Mrs. Canning Loughridge (honorary secretary), Mrs. R. H. Lambert (honorary treasurer), Mrs. Norman Potterton, Mrs. R. W. Smith, Mrs. Cairns, Mrs. John Healy, Mrs. Malcolmson, Mrs. Bex, Mrs. Dempsey, Mrs. Plunkett, Mrs. Milne, Mrs. Millar, Mrs. Keogh, and Miss Trumbull.

The Legion Chairman, addressing the meeting, complimented the branch on its wonderful work during the year. The amount it had raised as the result of the various entertainments and by subscriptions and fees was really magnificent, but he would like to see the membership still further strengthened. An overdraft of £615 on the headquarters' account, which had caused great anxiety, had been changed to a credit of £400, and their anxiety had been relieved. On behalf of headquarters, he thanked the Committee and officers for the wonderful work they had done.

"Poppy Day," he announced, this year would be held on Saturday, November 10th. He appealed for further volunteers to sell poppies; sellers were wanted for every street in the city.

Major J. J. Tynan, D.S.O., who also addressed the meeting, took the opportunity to advise those who were appealed to by men who said they were ex-Service men looking for assistance to refer such men to their District branch or to the Central branch at 28 Harcourt street. Outside help often was given to cases not bona fide.

Musical items were contributed during the evening by Miss Mabel Home, Mrs. R. Fenton, Miss Sheila Spratt, and Mr. Donald Bevan.

PROSPECTUS.

The Company has been formed for the purposes set out in the Memorandum of Association, and in particular, to RETAIL BLUE BIRD PETROL IN GREAT BRITAIN, IRELAND, THE IRISH FREE STATE AND ON THE CONTINENT in accordance with agreements between the Company and Blue Bird Oil Importers, Limited, and Blue Bird Motor Co. (1924), Limited.

BLUE BIRD MOTOR CO. (1924), LIMITED, was formed on 8th May, 1924, with a capital of £175,000, divided into 160,000 Cumulative Participating Preference Shares of £1 each and 300,000 Ordinary Shares of 1s. each. Dividends have been paid as follows:—

	Preference	Ordinary.
Year ending 30th June, 1925	8 per cent.	Nil
„ „ 1926	8 per cent.	Nil
„ „ 1927	10 per cent.	42 2-3 per cent.

An offer for the purchase of both classes of these Shares has recently been accepted by the required majority of shareholders at the price of 22s. per Preference and 10s. 6d. per Ordinary Share. This price includes profits from 1st July, 1927, to date.

BLUE BIRD OIL IMPORTERS, LIMITED, was formed on 16th March, 1927, with a capital of £200,000, divided into 170,000 Ordinary Shares of £1 each and 600,000 Deferred Shares of 1s. each. An interim dividend for the six months ending 30th September, 1927, was paid at the yearly rate of 18 per cent. on the Ordinary and 58 per cent. on the Deferred Shares.

An offer for the purchase of both classes of these Shares has recently been accepted by the required majority of shareholders at the price of 32s. per Ordinary and 10s. 6d. per Deferred Share. This price includes profits from 1st October, 1927, to date.

BLUE BIRD PETROL has been prominently before the motoring public for more than five years. It was the first branded motor spirit to be sold in Great Britain independently of the vested interests and at popular prices. Public response was immediate, and a steadily increasing volume of trade developed.

The terms of a contract made with Blue Bird Oil Importers, Limited, for a period of seven years, renewable at the option of the Company for a further period of seven years provide for the delivery in Great Britain, Ireland, the Irish Free State and on the Continent of Europe of standard qualities of BLUE BIRD PETROL in such quantities and at such times as the Company shall periodically indicate, at a fixed minimum net profit to this Company of 1½d. per gallon sold, after charging amortisation, depreciation of equipment and all other expenses, but exclusive of Head Office Administration. The Company's business is therefore unaffected by fluctuations in the oil market.

The Company will have the benefit of the trading organization, connections and affiliations here and abroad of Blue Bird Oil Importers, Limited, which Company has at no time dealt in petrol of Russian origin. The same policy will be pursued by this Company.

To cope with the widespread retail demand for BLUE BIRD PETROL, the Company will instal at its own expense one or more pumps and tanks of latest design in garages and service stations of good standing, as well as on the premises of important consumers such as omnibus and transport companies, or, alternatively, acquire those already installed, wherever justified by a sufficient turnover. In the case of smaller consumers, and where a number of cars are in steady use, portable pumps will be supplied. With such facilities for keeping stocks of petrol under automatic control together with quality, price and other inducements which, under its supply contract, the Company is in a position to offer to retailers and consumers, BLUE BIRD PETROL cannot fail to increase in popular favour, as evidenced by the numerous enquiries and applications received daily.

According to reliable statistics there are at present about 90,000 petrol pumps in operation in Great Britain, as compared with approximately 5,000 in 1923. The preparatory work done and the demand already created justify the Directors in their belief that during the first year of the Company's activities at least 1,000 BLUE BIRD PETROL pumps will be in use on the above basis within easy delivery distances in and around Greater London. This represents less than 1¼ per cent. of the aggregate number of petrol pumps in this country. Applications and enquiries for upwards of 1,000 BLUE BIRD PETROL pumps are already in hand.

An up-to-date pump with a 1,000 gallon tank erected and in working order costs less than £120, the maker guaranteeing maintenance and repairs. The latest model portable pump with spare barrels complete costs less than £50.

Sales of BLUE BIRD PETROL have ranged up to 2,000 gallons per pump weekly, but the Directors base their calculations on an average sale of only 300 gallons per pump weekly, i.e., a yearly turnover of 15,000,000 gallons for the British Isles.

It is obviously impracticable for the London Head Office to organise and supervise the many details entailed in retailing BLUE BIRD PETROL in foreign countries. For such purpose, a separate subsidiary Company, independently financed, will be formed to exploit the Company's licence and its supply-contract in each country. In consideration for such sub-licence the Company will receive a royalty of ½d. per gallon sold, with substantial minimum guarantees, in addition to a purchase consideration amounting to 10 per cent. of each Company's capital in fully paid shares.

These terms have already been accepted for France, Belgium and Germany, where the following minima have been agreed upon:—

	France	Gallons. Belgium	Germany
First Year	2,000,000	1,000,000	1,500,000
Second Year	3,000,000	1,500,000	2,000,000
Third and following Years	5,000,000	2,000,000	2,500,000

Negotiations in respect of Austria are proceeding, and active steps will shortly be taken in other countries.

The Directors estimate, on a most conservative basis, that the combined British and foreign turnover of BLUE BIRD PETROL will aggregate 19,500,000 gallons during the first year, gradually increasing during the following years. On the basis of the fixed profits and royalties already referred to, the Directors, after allowing for Head Office administration and all other charges, anticipate a net profit for the first year of not less than £75,000, or sufficient to cover the dividend on the present issue of Ordinary Shares more than three times over.

The Directors feel confident of being able to recommend for the first year a dividend of 16 per cent. on the Ordinary Shares and 33 per cent. on the Deferred Shares.

The entire proceeds of this Issue, after payment of preliminary expenses and underwriting commissions, will be available as working capital, and are considered by the Directors to be ample for the purposes of the Company.

The Company will be managed by the same Directors who have developed Blue Bird Motor Co. (1924) Ltd., and Blue Bird Oil Importers Limited to their present successful stage.

The Company is acquiring from the Vendors, Blue Bird Motor Co. (1924), Limited, and from Blue Bird Oil Importers, Limited, whose registered offices are at 25/31 Moorgate, London, E.C.2, inter alia, the exclusive licence and use of the trade name "BLUE BIRD PETROL" to retail such petrol in Great Britain, Ireland and the Irish Free State and on the Continent of Europe, with the right to grant sub-licences, together with the benefit of continuity of supplies on the beneficial terms set out embodying the fixed minimum net profit referred to. The consideration therefor is £58,000, payable as to £40,000 by the allotment of 160,000 fully-paid Ordinary and as to £18,000 by the allotment of 360,000 fully-paid Deferred Shares in this Company. The whole of this amount has been allocated to goodwill. One-half of the above purchase consideration is payable to each Vendor Company.

The Articles of Association contain the following provisions:—

71. On a show of hands every Member present in person or being a Corporation present by proxy shall have one vote. On a poll every Member shall have one vote for each Ordinary Share of which he is the holder and one vote for each Deferred Share.

80. The remuneration of the Chairman of Directors shall be at the rate of £250 per annum, and the remuneration of each of the other Directors at the rate of £200 per annum. Such remuneration shall accrue from day to day. If any of the Directors shall be appointed Agent, or be called upon to perform extra services or to make any special exertion, or to go abroad for any of the purposes of the Company, the Directors may remunerate such Director or Directors therefor either by a fixed sum or by a percentage of profits or otherwise as they may prescribe, and such remuneration may be either in addition to, or substitution for, his or their remuneration hereinbefore provided. The Directors shall also be entitled to be repaid all travelling, hotel and other expenses incurred by them in and about the business of the Company, including their expenses in travelling to and from Board and Committee Meetings. Any Director of the Company may hold any office or place of profit in the Company other than that of Auditor, and may contract with the Company in regard to his tenure thereof and may continue or become a Director of any other company in which this Company may be interested, and no such Director shall be accountable for any remuneration or other benefits received by him as a Director or member of any such company.

81. The qualification of a Director shall be the holding in his own right alone, and not jointly with any other person, of shares or stock of the Company, of the nominal value of £100. The first Directors shall not be required to acquire or hold any of their qualification shares until one month after the incorporation of the Company, but subject as aforesaid. Section 73 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, shall be duly complied with by every Director.

85. The Directors may from time to time appoint one or more of their body to be Managing Director or Managing Directors for such period, at such remuneration and upon such terms as to the duties to be performed, the powers to be exercised, and all other matters as they think fit, but so that no Managing Director shall be invested with any powers or entrusted with any duties which the Directors themselves could not have exercised or performed. The remuneration of a Managing Director may be by way of salary or commission or participation of profits, or by any or all of these modes, and may be either in addition to, or substitution for, his ordinary remuneration as a Director.

The preliminary expenses (excluding underwriting, overriding commission, brokerage and stamp duty) are estimated at £18,750 and are payable by the Company.

The minimum subscription upon which the Directors may proceed to allotment is fixed by the Articles of Association at seven shares, but, the whole of the present issue having been underwritten, the Directors will proceed to allotment on the closing of the list.

A copy of the Memorandum of Association is printed in the Prospectus.

The following Contracts, which are, or may be, material, have been entered into:—

1. Dated 17th October, 1928, between Blue Bird Motor Co. (1924), Limited, of the first part, Blue Bird Oil Importers, Limited, of the second part, and the Company of the third part.

2. Dated 17th October, 1928, between Blue Bird Oil Importers, Limited, 25-31 Moorgate, London, E.C., of the one part, and the Company of the other part, whereby the former has agreed to underwrite the whole of this issue in consideration of an underwriting commission of 4 per cent. and an overriding commission of 1 per cent. on the nominal amount of the Shares underwritten. LONDON STOCK MARKETS INTERESTING.

THE RUSH OF NEW ISSUES.

HOW LONG WILL THE BOOM LAST?

FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, Saturday.

Last week was noteworthy in more than one respect. The most important development was the announcement of the British-American Tobacco bonus in shares of a holding company. Among individual price movements Mond Nickel reached a new high record, the indirect result, apparently, of a fresh wave of speculative activity in New York; an important acquisition was announced by the United Molasses Company, and, while Gramaphone Share values generally gave way, especially low-priced issues, Victor Talking Machines reached a new high record. The week was also interesting for the flood of new capital issues and the firmness of gilt-edged stocks in face of rather tight monetary conditions. Owing to the approach of the account general business on the Stock Exchange was on a rather smaller scale; but it looks as though there will be a fresh outburst of buoyancy when to-day's carry-over has been arranged.

THE PUBLIC AND NEW ISSUES.

At the same time, the rush to get out new issues must be regarded as a portent. Company promoters are unusually busy, apparently because they wish to take full advantage of the eagerness of the public to subscribe for new ventures. The demand will not continue indefinitely, and, in a sense, it is not a genuine demand. Many of the new ventures recently offered could show nothing at all in the shape of actual profits to guide the investor; to put up money for them, therefore, was a sheer speculation. It is to be feared that in many cases much of the money will be lost. So far, most of the issues have been rapidly over-subscribed, not because the people responsible for this really believe that the propositions were worth supporting, but because of the prospect of selling the new shares at a premium when market dealings commenced. In other words, the success of the new issues was largely due to the activity of the "stag." The ardour of that type of speculator will be damped as soon as he finds new shares only saleable at a discount instead of the expected heavy premium. Then we shall have a lull in the flotation of doubtful ventures, and, assuming a continuance of public interest in the Industrial market, more attention will be given to shares of the sounder kind.

WILL HISTORY REPEAT ITSELF?

In regard to this rush of new issues, it will be interesting to see whether history repeats itself. The end of the memorable rubber boom some years before the war—not the less important movement in 1925—was preceded by the issue of numerous new companies to produce rubber. Many of these were very doubtful propositions, but for a time their capital was quickly over-subscribed, and their shares immediately commanded a substantial premium. A similar state of affairs heralded the end of one or two mining booms, and the collapse of the era of Industrial Share inflation in 1920 was also preceded by great activity in the flotation of new companies, or appeals to the public by old concerns with greatly expanded capitals. Much of the recent activity in the Industrial section for some time past has been in new issues, and, if the market for these gradually dries up, the effect may be felt in other directions.

DOUBTFUL HOLDINGS.

As to the outlook, it is to be hoped that there will not be a sudden slump, in which all shares, good, bad and indifferent, would suffer alike; that is to say, it would be very difficult for a time to sell anything at reasonable prices. If we are to have a reaction, it would be better for the thing to come slowly, thus enabling those interested to clear out, or, at least, to lighten their commitments without suffering serious loss. People who have been left with shares of doubtful ventures, having so far had no opportunity of realising, should not hesitate to sell now even at a loss. It is easier to give such advice than to act upon it, for of the many new issues now being dealt in it is quite impossible to say which particular company will justify its existence and which has absolutely no chance.

INFLUENCE OF AMERICA.

If, as some people think, the feverish rush to launch new ventures is a sign of the approach of the end, and that before long markets will present a less hectic appearance, there will probably be occasional features relating to individual shares. In regard to this, the importance of America cannot be ignored. In that centre, the speculative activity of late was as pronounced as in the excited period in August, despite the fresh high record created by the amount of brokers' loans (4,664,390,000 dollars). In New York quite a large number of British securities are now dealt in, not necessarily in the exchange proper, but on the kerb market. Among these are Anglo-Persian Oil, British Celanese, "Bats," Imperial Tobacco, Carreras, Courtaulds, Distillers, Dunlop Rubber, Columbia Graphophone, Gramophone Company, Imperial Chemical Industries, Marconis and Triplex Glass. Assuming a continuance of the bull movement in Wall street, these particular shares will certainly be supported, whatever may happen in London to shares of the newer artificial silk, safety glass and gramophone record companies. On the other hand, it is not easy to imagine what might happen if Wall street experienced a really bad break.

BRAZILIAN BONDS.

For some time there has been a very firm market for Brazilian Government Bonds, the result, mainly, of official purchases for the sinking fund. It is estimated that during last week nearly £100,000 of the 5 per cent. 1903 Loan was bought for cancellation, whilst next month a large block of the 4½ per cent. 1883 issue will be similarly treated, and in December sinking fund purchases of the Rescission Loan are due. An issue which is still comparatively cheap is the 4½ per cent. of 1888. At the present price of 77 the flat yield is nearly £5 17s. per cent., while, with redemption, the return is brought up to fully 7 per cent. Interest is payable 1st April and 1st October, and last month over £100,000 of the stock was bought for the sinking fund. As this sinking fund is cumulative and is a fixed figure—1 per cent. of the original amount of the loan—it follows that with every succeeding operation of the fund the amount of stock that can be bought increases. The chances are that prices of Brazilian Bonds affected by such operations will gradually appreciate.

BRITISH INTERNATIONAL PICTURES.

Among present-day speculative investments, British International Pictures 5s. Shares, at the present price of about 10s. 6d., are regarded as promising. The company has valuable connections in the Wardour Films and First National Pathé. It has arranged to distribute the productions of many famous Continental firms, a section of the business that is expected to produce considerable profits, while it is said that the Chairman has elaborated schemes by which the products of the British International Pictures are to be shown in almost every country. By the great merger recently announced in America, Warner Bros. take over First National Pictures, the whole of whose output is distributed here by the British Company. The latter has extensive studios at Elstree, in Hertfordshire, and the company has at least one year's record of very successful trading behind it.

AN AMERICAN INTRODUCTION.

Among the American shares which are beginning to attract attention in London, those of the International Combustion Engineering Corporation are considered very promising at the present price of about 70 dollars. Recent profits have been as follows:—1925, 1,006,920 dollars; 1926, 1,813,817 dollars; 1927, 2,008,265 dollars. For the first six months of this year the amount is given as 1,057,000 dollars, but it is expected that for the whole year the total will exceed 3,000,000 dollars. These profits are obtained from the general combustion and high-pressure boiler work, and take no account of any revenue from the low temperature carbonisation process known as "K.S.G.," which is owned by the company. The corporation is said to have secured many valuable contracts in England. The shares are of no par value.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

CREDIT PLENTIFUL.

There was further relaxation of the pressure for funds in Lombard street, borrowers experiencing the customary Saturday ease. Old day-to-day money was generally renewed at 3½, while fresh advances over the week-end were on offer at 3 per cent. down to 2½. Weekly fixtures were continued at 3½ per cent.

The discount market remained quiet and firm. Fine two months commercial paper was still quoted at 4¼ per cent., three and four months at 4⅜ per cent., and six months at 4 7/16-4½ per cent. There was further buying by banks of November bills at 4 5/16 per cent. The "hot" bills were 4 11/32-4⅜ per cent.

No bullion operations were reported at the Bank of England. In the open market gold was still quoted at 84s. 11½d. per ounce, fine. Silver recovered 1/16d. for both positions on Indian buying, bar spot being 26⅛d. and two months forward 25¾d. per ounce.

A feature in the Foreign Exchange market was the further decline in sterling on New York. The German exchange, however, moved in favour of London.

For the corresponding weeks of the first-named period of 1927 and 1926 the exports of porter from Dublin were approximately 27,999 and 28,686 barrels respectively.

The shipments of plain Irish Free State spirits from Dublin for the period 11th to 17th October, 1928, inclusive, are officially returned as 703 proof gallons, on which declared f.o.b. value was £726, against 680 gallons in previous week, of £792 declared f.o.b. value. For the corresponding weeks of first-named period of 1927 and 1926 the approximate exports of whiskey from Dublin were 1,564 and 3,101 gallons respectively.

THE MAGNET WORKS.

In order to meet the demand for electrical appliances, and to prepare for the increased use that will follow the expansion of electrification schemes, the General Electric Co., Ltd., has acquired a large group of factories in Birmingham, which will be known as Magnet Works. Within the last few weeks a contract for overhead electricity transmission equipment, involving an expenditure of £500,000, has been placed with the General Electric Co., this being for one section of the Greater London scheme alone. The development of electricity on this scale will inevitably lead to a greater call for electrical apparatus, and, in order to cope with the call, the new works have been equipped to manufacture Magnet domestic appliances, heating apparatus and fittings. Already over one thousand Magnet electric radiators are being completed each week, while the weekly output of Magnet electric irons is considerably more than three times this quantity. Similarly the output of electric grills, toasters, kettles, coffee percolators, curling tongs, heaters, shaving pots and the like is on a correspondingly huge scale.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

The Company has been formed for the purposes set out in its Memorandum of Association and more particularly to acquire from the North Venezuelan Petroleum Company, Limited, the oil rights over approximately 85,600 acres at El Mene in the district of Acosta, in the State of Falcon, Venezuela, forming part of the concession held by that Company from the Venezuelan Government for a period of 50 years from 3rd July, 1907.

The area to be acquired by the Tocuyo Oilfields of Venezuela Limited is bounded on the south-east by the River Tocuyo, on the north-east by the sea, on the north-west by a line running south-west from a point one mile west of the village of San Juan to the Cerro Campona, and on the west by a line running from there south to the River Tocuyo.

The North Venezuelan Petroleum Company Limited has, over a period of years, conducted detailed geological investigations throughout the area to be acquired, and has drilled several wells at or near El Mene de Acosta to test the productivity of the petroliferous El Mene Series of Miocene age.

The general information and actual results obtained from this work are further referred to in the Prospectus, and also in considerable detail in the technical reports which are enclosed therewith. It will be seen from these reports that the important facts established are:—

(a) The great potentialities of the area to be acquired.
(b) The existence of an anticline extending in more or less undisturbed conditions for over twenty-two miles which traverses the property for a distance of ten miles.
(c) The satisfactory proportion of producing wells in the area tested.
(d) The exceptional quality of the oil produced.
(e) The natural advantages of the property inasmuch as it is situated on the sea-board and is adjacent to a deep-water harbour.

The Company will have the benefit of the experience of The Central Mining & Investment Corporation Limited, and Trinidad Leaseholds, Limited, in oil-field development and in the refining and marketing of oil.

With the funds provided by this issue the Company will have ample resources available to undertake an active exploitation programme, in addition to providing the necessary drilling equipment, tankage, machinery, plant, bungalows and other buildings, power facilities, railway communication and the cost of installing a pipeline, as a result of which it is anticipated that the Company will rapidly occupy an important place in the oil production of Venezuela, which now ranks as the second largest oil-producing country in the world.

Dr. H. G. Kugler, Chief Geologist of the North Venezuelan Petroleum Company, Limited, and previously Chief Geologist of the Apex (Trinidad) Oilfields, Limited, has carried out an exhaustive examination of the area to be acquired, and a copy of his report, dated 17th January, 1928, accompanies the Prospectus. His conclusions, briefly summarised, are as follows:—

(1) That there is at El Mene de Acosta an area of 17,300 acres with structures proved to contain oil in commercial quantities in the El Mene Series.

(2) That the El Mene Series extends over a further area of 24,600 acres south and to the east of the above-mentioned 17,300 acres, and that oil will probably be found in the plunging eastern end of the Tocuyo anticline and in the minor structures of the deeper parts of the south flank; also that there is some possibility that oil will be found down this great south flank area in still younger sands lying above the Agua Salada series or covering clays of the El Mene Series.

(3) That a third area of 21,100 acres presents possibilities through the oil having migrated up the south flank of the Tocuyo anticline prior to the last big folding movement, and that it may be found trapped in squeezed structures to the north of the crest of the anticline.

In addition to the prospects of the El Mene Series, it would appear from the latest geological investigations and from the results of test wells drilled by other companies between El Mene de Acosta and Maracaibo that good prospects exist for the finding of oil in the Guayaval series or upper Eocene which have now been definitely correlated with producing horizons in the Maracaibo Basin. Deeper drilling will be undertaken to establish the possibility of payable production, which, if successful, will add a second commercially productive zone to the above areas.

The oil potentialities of the remaining 22,600 acres will depend on the results of the above-mentioned deep drilling programme.

Up to the present drilling has been undertaken on eleven locations, and three wells have yielded commercial production. One well penetrated a productive oil sand at 1,870 feet, which gave a flow of over 400 barrels a day and a settled production of 250 barrels daily. Another well is considered capable of producing 100 barrels a day from a sand encountered at 850 feet; while the third, situated approximately 1½ miles west of the other two productive wells, recently came in with an initial flow of 175 barrels daily from a depth of 675 feet.

Of the remaining wells, four are still being drilled. Two wells were abandoned owing to mechanical difficulties, but before abandonment had provided clear indications of the existence of oil and gas. In one case the well had been carried down to 3,686 feet and had penetrated the upper Guayaval silty beds and shales, which gave similar indications of oil and gas. The remaining two wells gave evidence of the existence of oil, but not in commercial quantities. It was subsequently found that one of these wells had been located in a depression between two minor structures, and in the case of the other well it encountered a cross fault at depth where the beds had been steeply turned over. Of the wells still drilling, two are located at El Mene and two in a very promising area approximately 3 miles to the east of Well No. 1 and on the south flank of a plunging nose of the anticline completely capped by a considerable thickness of impervious clays.

The oil found to date in the Tocuyo fields possesses a very high percentage of light products and compares favourably in quality with the highest grade oil yet produced in Venezuela.

Tests of the oil found in the three producing wells disclose an average specific gravity of approximately .837 (37.9 B).

Mr. P. M. Newhall, General Manager of the North Venezuelan Petroleum Company, Limited, in a report in the property to be acquired, dated 12th September, 1928, estimates that in the area considered to be proven, namely, 17,300 acres, a minimum of 2,000 wells will be required to drain the one known oil horizon.

Harbour—The rapid development of the property will not be impeded by ocean transport problems, as in the case of the oil fields in the Maracaibo Basin, as a fine natural harbour lies within easy reach of El Mene de Acosta, and the construction of a pipeline from the field to this port presents no difficulties. The harbour is well protected from the prevailing winds, and will provide safe anchorage in all states of the weather and tide.

Climate—Though situated in the tropics, the climate of the area is comparatively cool owing to the prevailing wind from the sea. Heavy rains are frequently experienced during the wet season, but the last transport difficulties so far experienced on this account will largely be surmounted by the construction of a railway and permanent roads.

Water Supply—An adequate supply of water for both field and domestic purposes is obtainable within easy reach of El Mene de Acosta.

Refinery—Trinidad Leaseholds, Limited, have offered to undertake refining for the Company until such time as permanent refining arrangements are concluded.

The North Venezuelan Petroleum Company, Limited, of 1 London Wall Buildings, London, E.C., is the Vendor to the Company. The purchase price payable is to be satisfied by the allotment of 500,000 fully-paid shares of £1 each of the Company and the payment of £500,000 in cash. The Vendor Company has, over a period of seven years, expended sums in excess of such cash purchase price in geological investigations, well sinking, road making, erection of staff bungalows and other buildings and the purchase of the machinery and plant now on the field, and has financed such expenditure by means of advances made by The Central Mining & Investment Corporation Limited, Rand Mines, Limited, and Trinidad Leaseholds, Limited, all of 1 London Wall Buildings, London, E.C. Of the above-mentioned cash consideration, £400,000 will be applied by the Vendor Company in part repayment of such advances in the following proportions, viz.: to The Central Mining & Investment Corporation Limited, one-half, and to Rand Mines, Limited and Trinidad Leaseholds, Limited, one-quarter each.

The Central Mining & Investment Corporation Limited, has underwritten the present issue for an underwriting commission of 7½d. per share and a fee of £10,000, out of which the fees payable to the Brokers to the issue will be met.

Copies of the Memorandum and Articles of Association and of the contracts can be seen at the offices of the Solicitors to the Company at any time during business hours while the subscription list is open.

A brokerage of 3d. per share will be paid by the Company on all shares allotted to the public upon Application Forms bearing the distinguishing marks of brokers and other approved agents.

Application Forms, together with a remittance for the amount of the deposit, should be sent to the Company's Bankers. Where no allotment is made, the deposit will be returned in full, and where the number of shares allotted is less than the amount applied for, the balance of the deposit will be applied towards the amount due on allotment and any balance remaining will be returned. Failure to pay, when due, any instalment on the shares allotted will render previous payments and the shares allotted liable to forfeiture.

Fully-paid Certificates will be issued within two months after the date fixed for the final payment on the shares.

Full Prospectuses (upon the terms of which applications will alone be received by the Company) and Forms of Application for shares may be obtained from The Central Mining & Investment Corporation Limited, 1 London Wall Buildings, E.C.2, at the offices of the Company and from the Company's Bankers and Brokers.

THE OUTLOOK.

Following upon the great rise in Victor Talking Machines, an increasing disposition is being shown on this side to take an interest in other American Industrials, such as Chrysler Motors, Dunhill Internationals, and Drug Incorporated. The wisdom of this course may be doubted at a time when good judges in New York regard their own market as "overbough and ripe for reaction" (says the Sunday Times). There is no denying that the Gramophone report has acted as a damper to the whole of this group, but the real cause of the lassitude which has descended upon it is the multiplication of new companies, creating the impression of ever-growing competition. A similar phase may be experienced by the various companies engaged in exploiting new photographic inventions. So far as the Film industry is concerned, the Gaumont British Picture Corporation already occupies a dominant position, and may continue to grow in size through the gradual absorption of competitors. There are faint signs of returning animation in the Coal and Iron group, but recovery in this case must needs be slow. Of more immediate interest is the question whether the boom in Tobacco shares will make further progress. In some quarters the declaration of a bonus by the Imperial Tobacco Company is regarded as a question of a few days only, and the shares are one of the most interesting Industrial counters at the present moment. In the case of Marconis also the long-awaited merger developments are believed to be imminent. These expectations alone are sufficient to sustain speculative interest in Industrials at a high pitch.

TOCUYO OILFIELDS OF VENEZUELA, LTD.

The Central Mining and Investment Corporation will receive through the National and Provincial Bank applications for an issue of 1,500,000 shares of £1 each at par in the above company. The capital authorised is £2,500,000 in 2,500,000 shares of £1 each, of which 500,000 shares are to be issued as fully paid to the vendors. The company has been formed to acquire the oil rights over approximately 85,600 acres at El Mene, in the district of Acosta, Venezuela, forming part of the concession held by the North Venezuelan Petroleum Company from the Venezuelan Government for a period of 50 years from 1907. The purchase price is £1,000,000, payable £500,000 in cash and the balance in 500,000 shares. It is stated the vendor company has, over a period of seven years, expended sums in excess of the cash purchase price in geological investigations, well sinking, etc., and purchase of the machinery and plant now on the field. With the funds provided by this issue the company will, it is stated, have ample resources available to undertake an active exploitation programme, in addition to providing the necessary drilling equipment, tankage, machinery, plant, etc., and the cost of installing a pipeline, as a result of which it is anticipated that the company will rapidly occupy an important place in the oil production of Venezuela, which now ranks as the second largest oil producing country in the world. The company is floated under strong auspices. The lists will open to-day and close on or before Wednesday, and the form attached to the prospectus is available for applicants.

BLUE BIRD PETROL, LTD.

The Westminster Bank and branches (Ulster Bank in Ireland) will receive subscriptions on behalf of Blue Bird Petrol, Ltd., which has a share capital of £310,000 divided into 1,000,000 Ordinary shares of 5s. each, £250,000, and 1,200,000 Deferred shares of 1s. each, £60,000, of which 160,000 Ordinary and 360,000 Deferred shares will be allotted as fully paid to the vendors in full satisfaction of their purchase consideration. No shares of the company are under option. 840,000 Ordinary shares of 5s. each and 840,000 Deferred shares of 1s. each are now offered for subscription at par. Each subscriber for Ordinary shares will be entitled to apply for Deferred shares on the terms that he shall have allotted to him for cash one Deferred share for every Ordinary share allotted to him, but no application for Deferred shares alone will be entertained. Ordinary shares have a fixed preferential dividend of 8 per cent. and the further right to half of the distributable profits. Blue Bird Petrol has just been incorporated to sell the spirit of the same name in "Great Britain, Ireland, the Irish Free State and the Continent of Europe." It acquires from the vendors, Blue Bird Motor Company and Blue Bird Oil Importers, the exclusive licence and use of the trade name "Blue Bird Petrol" to retail such petrol in the regions mentioned, with the right to grant sub-licences, together with the benefit of continuity of supplies. Blue Bird Oil Importers contract to deliver for seven years, with the option to Blue Bird Petrol to renew for a further seven years, such quantities of petrol as Blue Bird Petrol shall acquire at a fixed minimum net profit to the latter of 1½d. per gallon sold, after charging all expenses except head office administration. It is claimed that the business will, therefore, be unaffected by fluctuations in the oil market. Blue Bird Petrol will also instal at its own expense pumps and tanks at promising consuming points. Applications and inquiries for upwards of 1,000 pumps are in hand. Arrangements will be made to float subsidiary companies to exploit the licence, etc., on the Continent. The board estimates the combined British and foreign turnover at 19,500,000 gallons in the first year. From this they anticipate a net profit of not less than £75,000, sufficient to cover the fixed dividend on the present Ordinary shares more than three times over. They foreshadow 16 per cent. dividend on the Ordinary for the first year, and 33 per cent. on the Deferred. All the proceeds of the issue will be available as working capital, after payment of about £18,750 preliminary expenses and the underwriting commission. Applicants should use the form attached to the prospectus and note that the list will close on or before Wednesday.

ACETATE AND ACETATE PRODUCTS (FOREIGN RIGHTS), LTD.

An issue will be made in the course of a day or two of 1,000,000 shares of 2s. each in Acetate and Acetate Products (Foreign Rights), Ltd., a company formed to acquire the sole and exclusive rights of certain valuable patents, processes and applications for patents for South America and the Continent of Europe (except the British Isles) for the manufacture and sale of acetate of cellulose, safety celluloid non-inflammable films, acetate silk, splinterless glass, lacquer and brushing paints, and many other articles. Preliminary arrangements have already been made for the formation of manufacturing companies in France and Belgium, in which the company will hold important interests, and from which substantial profits are anticipated. The board includes Sir Henry Forde, director, Great Southern Railways (Ireland) and Vickers (Ireland), Limited (Chairman); Sir William Veno, and Sir Clement Kinloch-Cooke, Bart., M.P., director, Colonial Mutual Life Assurance Society (London Board).

RECORDAPHONES, LIMITED.

Scottish Finance Company, Ltd., announces that they will shortly offer for public subscription at par 300,000 8 per cent. Participating Preferred shares of 10s. each and 300,000 Deferred shares of 1s. each in Recordaphones, Limited. The company, which has a capital of £200,000, divided into 300,000 8 per cent. Participating Preferred shares of 10s. each and 1,000,000 Deferred shares of 1s. each, has been formed to acquire an exclusive licence under eleven British patents for the manufacture and sale of the electrical invention known as the recordaphone, a machine for recording telephone conversations or any form of important verbal discussion. Prominent British users of the recordaphone include the Admiralty, the War Office and the B.B.C. It is estimated that after all expenses and overhead charges, including directors' remuneration, but before provision for depreciation, the profits in the first year should not be less than £57,000, which is sufficient to cover the fixed dividend on the Participating Preferred shares over four times.

MOND NICKEL AND INTERNATIONAL UNITE.

Confirmation has been given in London of the merger which is being arranged between the Mond Nickel and the International Nickel Company. Details have been arranged in New York between the directors of the two concerns and are to be finally settled during this week-end. We are informed that an official statement, giving the terms on which the merger has been planned, will be issued during this week. The merger is on similar lines to that which brought into being Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd. A holding company will be formed, the shares of which will be exchanged for the shares of the two participants in the combination. The principal interest lies, of course, in the valuation which will be placed on the respective shares. It has been suggested that Mond Nickel shares will be given a nominal value in the merger of £9 per share. This figure, however, is quite unofficial. There is a substantial basis for the suggestion that Mond Nickel Ordinary shareholders will receive share for share in the new company, while Nickel International Common Stock will be exchanged on the basis of between five and six new shares for each share held. The Preferred shares and stock of both companies will be dealt with on equitable lines, and it is probable that the terms will include a large cash payment to the Mond Nickel Company. The two companies will, it is anticipated, in their merged form, control over 90 per cent. of the world's production of nickel. The present capital is: Mond Nickel £4,650,000, and International Nickel just over £10,000,000.

VALUATION DIFFICULTY OF B.A.T. BONUS.

The exact effects of the arrangement (B.A.T. Holding Company) are by no means clear. The apparent result is that the new trust company will possess £1,000,000 in cash, less expenses of formation, and investments valued by it at £3,750,000, but valued by "Bats" at £1,189,047 19s., plus the value of 57,471 shares of each class in the new trust. No information whatever is given as to the earning power of the investments transferred to the trust company. The Ordinary Shares of the new trust are to be entitled to 15 per cent., and any surplus is to be divided between the two classes of shares. Arrangements are made whereby the trust company will remain under the control of "Bats," but it is not known how far it is to be limited in its operations to the tobacco securities in which "Bats" is interested (says The Observer). The provision of £1,000,000 of cash capital seems to indicate that it is the intention to look outside the immediate circle for profitable operations. The paucity of information makes it impossible to gauge the value of the bonus shares in the new trust which "Bats" shareholders are receiving. The only guide is the valuation of £2 for one share of each class made by the company in connection with the rights of holders of bearer shares. On this basis the bonus rights would be worth 5s. per "Bats" share. In the market, however, it is thought that a higher value than this may reasonably be attached to the rights.

THE OUTLOOK FOR TIN.

The steadiness of tin after the bulge, which was said to have been engineered, is of happy augury when one considers the increase in stocks last month. We (Investors' Chronicle) are told that the price recovery since July is due to the continuous support of a powerful "bull" syndicate, and the opinion held in some quarters is that it will not succeed in keeping the price pegged to £220 per ton, the argument used being that production is outstripping consumption by 1,000 tons per month. This is not a huge amount, and we are constrained to believe that even if tin does not rise to £250 that it will not fall to £200. While there are such contrary views as to the trend of the metal, the share market will be inactive, but if tin surprises the "bears" we should witness appreciation in share quotations. We prefer to wait a few weeks before adopting too definite opinions, as it is common knowledge that influential firms are short of tin.

From "Tin," the monthly bulletin of the Anglo-Oriental Corporation, we extract the following on "The Statistical Position":—"Although visible supplies showed an increase of 1,468 tons at the end of September, the position revealed by the statistics continues to be encouraging. The increase was due largely to the fact that the American stock returns were compiled in the afternoon of September 27th, thus affecting the returns from the ships actually unloading. It is also probable that the action of the leading interest, in making its deliveries on the last permissible day, may have had an important effect upon the total. But for these events, American deliveries would probably have touched a new high level, and at 6,885 tons they are, though misleadingly low, still well in excess of the average over the last twenty months. The indications are, therefore, that this year's high rate of consumption is being well maintained. The return of tin afloat, which indicates the rate at which the metal is likely to become available, showed a fall-off at 13,127 tons from the August level of 13,892 tons. This was chiefly due to the reduced rate of supply from the Straits Settlements."

STANDARD LIFE ASSURANCE CO.

The Standard is making a new departure in life assurance by issuing a form of policy at a minimum rate of premium with annual participation in cash bonuses. Each annual cash bonus may be applied to reduce the premium in the following year, the actual amount payable thus diminishing each year. Examples are given in an advertisement in this issue of the effect of this operation on the premium payable on a whole life policy for £1,000.

BRAZIL'S COFFEE SUPPLIES.

Statistics issued by the Brazilian Coffee Institute regarding probable world production of coffee give the following figures:—Stock in storehouses, 13,500,000 sacks; elsewhere 1,000,000 sacks; estimated production in the province of Sao Paulo for 1929-30, 14,000,000 sacks; in other provinces of Brazil 4,000,000 sacks; in other countries, 7,000,000 sacks. There will be available for trade until June 30, 1930, 40,000,000 sacks, which, it is estimated, represents approximately the world consumption for the twenty months from November, 1928, to June, 1930.

The next big business combination to be looked for is one in which all the big bill-posting companies in England will be amalgamated. The combination will involve something like £2,000,000, and it is expected that a public issue will result.

MANCHESTER MARKETS REVIEW.

THE FALL IN BACON.

FROM OUR COMMERCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

With one or two exceptions business in the provision trade throughout the week has been somewhat unsatisfactory. Some difficulty was found in clearing stocks of bacon, and this week-end Irish has been officially reduced 4s. to 5s. according to selection, and Continental cures 5s. per cwt. At the lower prices ruling Irish and Danish are almost on a parity with last year's figures, but the under-priced meats—Swedish and Dutch—are dearer. Butter also has shown a sharp reduction following a decline off eleven kroner in the Danish official quotation. As compared with the corresponding period of last year Danish, Swedish and Finnish are all lower, but there is no change in the price of Irish creameries. The position is undoubtedly affected by the large quantity of Australian, New Zealand and Argentine butter now on passage to this country, the total being 240,750 boxes, as compared with 166,002 boxes in 1927. In this respect consignments from Australia show a somewhat surprising increase, 69,750 boxes being shipped, as compared with 8,612 at the corresponding period of last year. It would appear that Siberian butter may once again prove a by no means negligible factor in the trade. This class of butter, except for confectionery purposes has almost disappeared from the market. It is stated, however, that the dairy industry in Siberia had entered upon a phase of restruction with the adoption of mechanical and rational methods in production. The Soviet Government has set up a State inspection of butter, has introduced Sate standards, and has introduced a number of other measures conducive to the improvement of the quality of Siberian butters. As a result of these measures there has been a highly beneficial effect in the quality of the butter in the years 1927-28, as compared with previous years. The demand for best eggs continues fairly active, notwithstanding the high prices ruling for best grades, which are in excess of those prevailing at the corresponding period of last year. According to official returns the general level of prices of agricultural produce in this country during the month of September was 44 per cent above the base years 1911-13, or the same as in the preceding month, and one point higher than in September last year. The index for butter remained unaltered at 54 per cent. above the base years, but for cheese there was a decline of six points to 78 per cent. on account of the rise in price being proportionately less than in the corresponding period of 1911-13. For this reason, also, eggs show a fall of three points, but in the case of fowls and ducks the decreases in price were larger than usual, and poultry, as a whole, was cheaper at 42 per cent. above pre-war in September as compared with 45 per cent. in August. Bacon pigs were a little cheaper at 33 per cent above pre-war, whilst the index number of porkers fell one point to 32 per cent., in spite of the slight seasonal increase in price.

At Salford Cattle Market on Tuesday fat cattle were in rather better demand, but dairy cows were somewhat quieter. Little change was noticeable in sheep and lambs, but trade ruled quiet. Business at the Manchester Dead Meat Market has been quiet throughout the week. Really good quality beef is difficult to obtain, the bulk of the supply being lacking in finish. At the Manchester Pig Market supplies are fairly good, but buyers show a disposition to act cautiously, and prices were on the easy side, especially for baconers.

All descriptions of game show a reduction as compared with last week, but little change is recorded in dead poultry. Weather conditions have been unfavourable to the rabbit trade, and prices are lower in consequence.

TROPICAL PRODUCE MARKET EASIER.

FROM OUR COMMERCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday.

An easier tendency has been in evidence this week, with the amount of business passing of the lightest description. There is, however, a slightly firmer tone is evidence at the close of the week. In the palm oil section business has been quiet, and here and there lower prices have been done, consumers being content to look on until values moved their way. Lagos opened at £39 5s., but tapered off to £38 15s. Softs have dropped from £38 12s. 6d. October-November and November-December to £38 2s. 6d., while mediums in transit eased 7s. 6d. to £38 7s. 6d. October-November shipment. Hards are a more or less nominal market at £39 7s. 6d., which has been paid for spot material. Sherbros afloat changed at £38 15s. early on, but £38 would now be taken. Following are spot quotations of oil:—Lagos £38 15s., Sherbros £38, Opobo £38 5s., Benin £38 7s. 6d., and Niger £39 7s. 6d.

Palm kernels have held fairly well, though only a moderate amount of business has transpired. To Liverpool down to £20 7s. 6d. any position has been accepted, but with buyers showing a keenness at the lower value, dealers are inclined to harden prices. Hull consumers put through a fair trade, paying £20 8s. 9d. for October-November and November-December shipment. To Hamburg trading has been reported in October-November and November-December shipment material at £20 7s. 6d. down to £20 6s. 3d., but with fairly large orders coming to hand at the lower rate, sellers now ask 1s. 3d. more. Shippers refuse £20 8s. 9d., and would sell a limited quantity only at £20 10s.

Copra has been slow of sale, with values here and there easier. F.M.S. Straits October-November changed at £25 10s., and November-December at 2s. 6d. more. Marseilles paid £24 10s. for kiln-dried South Sea October-November shipment, while F.M. Straits to Rotterdam were done at £25.

Ground nuts lower all round. New crop Nigerians find buyers to Northern Continent at £20 5s. for December-January shipment, with sellers at 5s. more. Undecorticated old crop Rufisque offers at £15 12s. 6d., with new crop December-January shipment bid for at £15 10s., and sellers 2s. 6d. more. Nut oils are slow of sale, with little or no change in values. For refined oils there has been more inquiry, though prices have not changed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEICESTER WOOL.—Trade continues good in Leicester for most classes of hosiery, and the majority of factories are booked up for a week or two ahead, while the orders continue to come in at a satisfactory rate both for home and export trade. Yarns are still selling well at fully late rates, but the English wool market is showing a decline in some quarters. It is, perhaps, more noticeable in the fine wools. They can be bought at ½d. per lb. reduction on last week's rates, but there is an easier tendency in long wools too.

GOLF.

THE NEWLANDS CLUB.

OVER FIVE HUNDRED MEMBERS.

The guests at the annual dinner of the Newlands Club, which was held last Saturday night at Newlands, Clondalkin, so rich in its historical association with many great personages of long ago—Dean Swift was a frequent visitor to the house, which was the residence of the White Quakers, the first Baron Kilwarlin, and Lord O'Brien of Kilfenora—had a surprise sprung on them by the captain, Mr. Lyons.

Proposing "The Golfing Union of Ireland," whose services to the game every golfer was most grateful for, Mr. Lyons stated that, although they had been only a few years at Newlands, and had had a heavy burden to shoulder when they went there, they had now a membership roll of 510, all keen golfers and determined to make a success of the club. The ambition of the members was to have an inland course second to none in the County Dublin, and they were well on the road to its attainment.

Mr. J. W. Mannix, who proposed "The Newlands Golf Club," said that the captain had remarked that the club was "only in its infancy," but if a club in its infancy could boast over five hundred members, what was that infant going to be like when it attained its majority?

Major-General Cronin, the President, gave "The Captain," and referred to the progress made since they went to Newlands from Robin Hood. At the time they realised that they were embarking on a very big undertaking, but their members had shouldered the responsibility unflinchingly, and if credit was due to anyone for the success achieved, it was due entirely to the members, who did not look for value for their money in the way of a luxurious clubhouse. They wanted primarily a good course, and successive committees had laid the foundations of an excellent one. They had received most welcome assistance from the Hermitage Club, their nearest neighbours. As to the social side of the club, that had been immeusely enhanced, as visitors had so often remarked, by the real, genial Irish atmosphere which prevailed at all times in the club.

The prizes won during the year were presented by the captain as follows:—Captain's Prize, Dr. A. Butler; Vice-President's Cup, Mr. M. Higgins; Robin Hood Cup, Mr. A. Byrne; Steve Donoghue Cup, Mr. W. Nolan; Newlands Challenge Cup, General Daniel Hogan; Fleming Cup, Mr. John Hopper; Vice-President's Prize, Mr. M. Lynch.

A musical entertainment was contributed to by Messrs. T. Hopper, W. Reidy, R. Kemp, T. Devin, W. Withers, A. Tyrrell, R. Knaggs, Geo. Allgood, W. Murray, J. W. Mannix, W. Wakely, J. Andrews, etc.

PROMINENT PLAYERS AT HENDON.

AEROPLANE CRASHES DURING MATCH.

The exhibition match played by Mr. Cyril Tolley, Mr. Roger Wethered, Charles Whitcombe and Abe Mitchell at the formal opening of the new golf course at Mote Mount, Hendon, last Saturday was marred by an accident. During the afternoon an aeroplane crashed on the course at the ninth hole. The players and spectators rushed to the scene and rendered first aid to two women in the aeroplane who were injured and conveyed to hospital.

After a delay of about half an hour the match was resumed. A four-ball match was played early in the day, and Wethered and Whitcombe beat Tolley and Mitchell by 3 and 2. There was some prodigious driving. At the ninth hole Tolley went over the green from a tee—a distance of 525 yards—with two shots.

As in the morning match, the professionals putted extremely fell in the afternoon, when Whitcombe and Mitchell beat Tolley and Wethered by 5 and 4.

Mitchell had the best round with 68.

THE SURREY OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP.

The number of amateur entrants for the Surrey Open Championship, which will be played at Sunningdale on Wednesday next, exceeds the professionals by about a dozen. The professionals include George Duncan, R. Wilson, L. Cotton, W. Watt, H. Kinch, A. Miles and F. Leach, but not the holder, J. Smith, who has won the championship on the previous two occasions. Smith is now ineligible because he is not attached to a Surrey club.

There are many international amateurs in the field of fifty-two, Major C. O. Hezlet, the amateur champion of the county; E. H. B. Blackwell, R. H. de Montmorency, H. E. Taylor, Lord Charles Hope, W. L. Hope and S. H. Fry being among them.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY BEGIN WELL.

Oxford University made a good start to their term's engagements last Saturday, when they beat the Oxford and Cambridge Society team, which included last year's Oxford captain, R. H. Oppenheimer, at Southfield, Oxford, by eighteen games to eleven, with one halved. The Oxford team was largely composed of freshmen, and several of them showed remarkable form in their matches against Old Blues.

In the foursomes A. S. Bradshaw, the present Oxford University captain, and H. M. Bray beat R. H. Oppenheimer and R. W. A. Speed by 4 and 3. The winners were never down. The 'Varsity secured a lead of six to four on the foursomes. Bradshaw beat Oppenheimer in the leading single, having an average of three over four's for the match, and a score of 74.

CRICKET.

AUSTRALIAN TRIAL.

THE REST OUTPLAYED.

MELBOURNE, October 20.

Australia's young bowling hopes were on trial here to-day when they were called upon to face that world-renowned batsman, Ponsford, and the string of famous names which were down on the score book to follow him in—if he got out.

WANTED BOWLERS.

Judging by the play here and at Perth yesterday the trend of opinion is that the Tests will be terrific batting struggles unless between now and the end of November either Australia produces a great bowler or the English bowlers distinguish themselves against the State teams.

Australia, who in reply to the Rest's paltry total of 111, had scored 90 for one yesterday, quickly gained a first inning's lead with nine wickets in hand.

Ponsford carried his overnight total of 44 not out to 79 before he was caught by Jackson off Nicholls, having batted two hours and a quarter. He played forcing and attractive cricket against bowling that was rarely dangerous and, considering the slowness of the outfield, he justified his reputation by hitting seven boundaries.

DULL CRICKET.

Andrews, who had helped Ponsford to hoist the century in 89 minutes, played restrained but polished cricket, and Kippax, his partner, took no risks, and frequent showers added discomfort to uninteresting cricket.

At lunch Andrews and Kippax were respectively 37 and 20, and the total 184 for two wickets.

After lunch Ironmonger found a better length, and so reduced the pace of the scoring. The 200 was reached at the rate of one run per minute, and then judiciously-managed bowling changes which brought on Dr. Nothling, Scott, Nicholls and Kelleway caused a collapse.

Woodfull took 84 minutes to make 21, hitting only one four. His rate of scoring, however, compared favourably with those of Andrews, who was an hour and 50 minutes making 44; Kippax, who was 71 minutes at the crease for 34, and the usually dashing Gregory, whose carefulness was reflected in the fact of his taking 67 minutes to collect 38.

The innings, which occupied 6 hours and 20 minutes, closed for 398, and the Rest had a few minutes' batting before stumps were drawn. Score:—

CHESS.

THE WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP.

Our Chess Correspondent writes:—The entire chess world has been on tip-toe of expectation for some time regarding the next contest for the world's championship. Dr. Alekhine, the holder of the title, turned down early in the summer Capablanca's suggested new conditions. Since then he had received fresh challenges from Capablanca and Bogoljubov, of whom the latter was first in the field by six weeks. Alekhine announces, through Mr. Brian Harley, that he has agreed to meet Bogoljubov, and has called for the requisite deposit of 500 dollars forfeit to be made by January 15, with M. van Linschoten, of Delft, the match treasurer.

The match is to take place within a year from the date of the challenge (August 29th), and victory will go to the first winner of six games under the London Rules of 1922. Both contestants are Russians by birth, but Alekhine has adopted French nationality and Bogoljubov German. The latter's claim was enormously enhanced by his recent victory at the Bad Kissingen tourney over Capablanca and other masters of the first rank.

To Capablanca the reply has gone from Alekhine that his challenge must await the determination of the other match, and will be dealt with on the basis of the London Rules. It will be accepted if Bogoljubov does not lodge the requisite guarantee by the appointed date, but Alekhine will not play before the latter half of next year. Should Alekhine win from Bogoljubov, he will accept Capablanca's challenge at once.

COLMCILLE CHESS CLUB.

This vigorous young club held its inaugural meeting at 5 Blackhall street on Wednesday night, and a number of new members were enrolled. A very handsome gold medal was presented to Mr. Tomas O Hogain, as winner of last session's club tourney. The club nights adopted for the present year are Wednesday and Friday.

SACKVILLE CHESS CLUB.

The Sackville Chess Club has opened its new career in the Red Band Restaurant, and play was busy on Tuesday and Friday evenings. These are the most convenient quarters this veteran club has yet secured. Mr. P. W. Whelan, the captain, was warmly congratulated on his brilliant struggle with Mr. O'Hanlon for the Tailteann Championship.

WATER POLO.

ENGLAND BEAT SCOTLAND.

In an international water polo match at Dundee on Saturday England defeated Scotland by 6 goals to one. Budd, the English captain, scored first, and later Hatfield and Peter added goals for the visitors. After the interval Hatfield and Donoghue scored, and then Kidd obtained Scotland's only goal. Temme, the Channel swimmer, scored another for England, making the total 6.

RACING PROSPECTS.

The Season's Two-Year-Olds : Tiffin's Ranking : Cambridgeshire Considerations and Candidates : Bagatelle at Lingfield.

(FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.)
LONDON, Sunday Night.

It was an illuminating week's racing that ended up at Newmarket on Friday last, even though it may have thrown the two-year-old form into the melting pot and left us with a mass of matter that will not be easily digestible in the winter months. I have heard various opinions expressed by competent persons about the season's two-year-olds, and their verdicts range from "Very good" to "Very bad." The only definite opinion that I would care to express at the moment is that there is at least one very good two-year-old, and that is Lord Ellesmere's filly Tiffin.

This daughter of Tetratema has never failed in anything she has been asked to do. Every ordeal to which she has been subjected she has come through with something more than credit. I do not say that she has surprised her trainer, Fred. Darling, because he has always had an exalted opinion of her; but in each race she has run she has done all that he expected, and in most cases a little more. At home she can give a hundred yards to any two-year-old in the Beckhampton stable—The Black Abbot is trained there—and she can come along and lose them.

Tiffin is the freest of free goers, and is as fast in the first furlong of a race as Mumtaz Mahal was. When the latter had run her wonderful five furlongs she was all out, but Tiffin seems to stay, judging by her race last week, in which Richards waited in front with her for five furlongs, and then sent her on to run out the six in magnificent style. Richards thinks she is far and away the best animal he has ever ridden, and believes that had she been in the Middle Park Stakes she would have won it running away.

This jockey, who rode The Black Abbot in the Middle Park Stakes, bases his opinion of Tiffin on what Lord Dewar's colt did there. He finished unplaced, but he thinks that but for his saddle having slipped he would have been very near the winner at the finish. The winner that day was Costaki Pasha, who seemed on the particular afternoon to be the best stayer in the field. It was undoubtedly a good performance, and it is to be supposed that the Aga Khan's son of Gainsborough and Cos will be raked in the Free Handicap as the best two-year-old colt of the season, and will come second only to Tiffin.

The placings of those who finished behind him cannot, however, be accepted as reliable, and Mr. Persse, for one, will not have it that anything like the best of Reedsmouth was seen in that race. He has a very accurate line to the form, and does not for a moment accept the running as right. Unfortunately there will be very few opportunities during the few weeks that are left of the season to test it. With the Cesarewitch over and done with, the Cambridgeshire, to be run on Wednesday week, becomes a question of pressing interest.

FAIRWAY'S NECK WIN.

There were at least three important trials having a bearing on the race run last week. One was the Champion Stakes, in which Fairway beat Foliation and Baytown (who is in the Cambridgeshire with 7st. 7lb.) by a neck and three-parts of a length. If one takes the book form as it stands, this puts Fairway in the Cambridgeshire with about 7st. 11lb., and were Lord Derby's colt in the race with that allotment there would not be much betting.

Opinions are divided about the way in which Fairway won. Some think that he won with a lot in hand, but that was not my personal opinion. Still, he may not have been quite the real Fairway that afternoon, and I am disposed to discount the value of the performance of Baytown. However, wiping Fairway out, there is no doubt that Foliation was at her best, and the form between her and Baytown would put her in the Cambridgeshire at a good deal less weight than the handicapper would have allotted her had she been entered.

Fohanaun's performance in the Select Stakes was a very good one, and it has caused him to be made favourite for the Cambridgeshire. He won like the good horse he is, and his chance is second to none. Excuses can be made for Orbinos in that he lost a great deal of ground from the gate, and he ran a very honest race. Fohanaun and Orbinos are, however, old opponents. The former has generally proved himself the superior whenever they have met, and is likely to do so again in the Cambridgeshire.

The third trial for the big handicap was that of Gang Warily, who although he lost the race was the moral winner. It was commented on here at the time; and it can only be added that it more than satisfied his trainer Walter Nightingall, who has the very highest hopes of winning the race with Mrs. Drummond's colt.

We had some interesting racing, even if it was not important, yesterday afternoon at Lingfield, where the going was a little on the heavy side. The first event, a two-year-old Selling Nursery, fell to Mrs. H. C. Miller's filly Luisita, a daughter of Cap Gris Nez, who beat the Bruera filly by a length and a half. The other selling race, also for two-year-olds, was won by Pounce in the colours of Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen, who bought his rig in for 600 guineas, so that even at the end of the season the price of winning platers still remains very high.

A MISCELLANEOUS COLLECTION.

This brought us to the Lingfield Autumn Oaks, which produced a miscellaneous collection of fillies, most of them incapable of getting the mile and a half. Sir Victor Sassoon's Quicklime was favourite from Aladdin's Lamp, and neither of this pair in any sense distinguished herself. Colonel Charteris's filly Spirit of the Wind made the running until they were approaching the straight, when Roman Market took it up.

Childs always had Lady James Douglas's filly Bagatelle well placed, but close home Richards had brought the non-staying Grand Vixen, a filly owned by Lord Glanely, and she had just got Bagatelle beaten when Childs, riding one of his finest races, came again and got up on the post to win by a short head; Somer Moone coming to finish third, a length and a half away. Bagatelle had run well in the One Thousand Guineas, but she has been hard to train, and Major Sneyd has been unable to do much with her while the going remained firm.

She is a daughter of Gainsborough and that very speedy mare of her time, Jessica, and, therefore, a full sister to Sir Joshua. The latter was bred by Lady James Douglas at her Harwood stud, and it was the way in which Major Sneyd patched him up that induced his former owner to take her horses away from Manton and send them to him.

The Lingfield Handicap was very easily won by Lamlash, a daughter of Swynford, owned by Lord Derby, who keeps on piling up his colossal aggregate of winnings for this season. It was Golden Chalice who jumped off in front from a bad position in the draw, but he made such a quick beginning that Fox was able to cross over near the rails. He remained in front until they were three furlongs from home, when Lamlash headed him, and, making the remainder of the running, beat him by a length and a half, the favourite, Harpist, finishing third.

CAFE AU LAIT SCORES.

There was a tremendous field for the October Nursery, and at one time the Ring went 7 to 1 the field. From tens, Café au Lait was steadily supported down to half the price, at which he closed favourite. A small boy, Balch, rode him, and allowing the colt to run his own race, he stayed on well to beat the Irish Heroine colt and Hazrat by a length and a half and a neck, with Montaigne, who at one time looked like being favourite, close up fourth.

Café au Lait had run second in his last two races, but each of them was over five furlongs, and six would appear to be his best distance. He is a half-brother to the Lincolnshire winner, Dark Warrior, and when sent to the Dublin sales by Mrs. K. Cummins Major Misa gave 450 guineas for him and sent him to Victor Smyth to train. He is the first winner in England sired by Soldennis, and was the Heath stallion's first runner in this country. I wrote at some length about the promise he showed when he made his first appearance back in April on this course, and suggested that he was sure to win races. He is a charming, neatly-made colt, who will train on, and is likely to do well next season.

The last race of the afternoon was the Non-Stayers' Plate, run over a mile, and in this Major McCalmont's Stadacona was a slightly better favourite than Thackeray, who had been beaten when ridden by an apprentice at the first October meeting at Newmarket, a circumstance that aroused some heat, which erupted in the pages of the Racing Calendar. The danger did not come from Thackeray. It was the outsider, Hope, a five-year-old, who came with a strong run at the finish to run Stadacona to a short head.

The racing to-morrow at Wolverhampton is only of a minor importance. The Dunstall Plate is likely to be won by SARGO; ORANGE BILL may win the Wyfold Handicap, and CRAGFORD the Thornycroft Handicap.

PHŒNIX PARK.

SUCCESSFUL CONCLUSION.

BACKERS FARE WELL.

SURPRISE IN WEST PLATE.

The final meeting of the season at the Phœnix Park course should provide backers with pleasant recollections. They had the satisfaction of seeing four first favourites score, also a second favourite, and met with only one reverse during the course of the afternoon. Were it not for the unexpected defeat of Ennis Bridge by his stable companion, Salisbury, in the West Plate, they would have had matters virtually all their own way. Except for a few light showers which were hardly noticeable the autumnal conditions were very enjoyable, and the racing as well as proving so satisfactory for those of a speculative turn of mind, was quite interesting.

Only four of the seven runners for the West Plate were considered to hold any sort of chances. Ennis Bridge enjoyed pronounced favouritism, while other recent winners, such as Stormproof, Ryevale and Alne Forest, each had plenty of support. As stated, the result was disastrous for the punters, for well though Ennis Bridge ran he was always held safe by the stable companion, Salisbury, who, after taking up the running at the end of a couple of furlongs, had no difficulty in holding the position for the remainder of the journey. The winner belongs to Mrs. C. L. Mackean, and this was his third appearance, his two previous attempts being failures. By The Boss out of a mare by Rhodesian, out of Hanover, Salisbury was bred by Mr. W. P. Smith, and was purchased for 1,100 guineas at the Ballsbridge yearling sales by Mrs. C. L. Mackean.

Earlier in the afternoon the Heath stable had scored another success with the three-year-old, Sweet Wall, who made short work of the lot opposing her in the Whitechurch Plate. Though in the rear for the first quarter of a mile the daughter of Cygnus passed the others one by one without appreciable effort, and went out close home to win in a common canter. It was a very impressive display and by far the best the filly has so far shown. Sweet Wall is out of Dark Eyes, and it is held that none of the progeny of this mare ever show their best form until the going becomes soft. Happy and Joyous made the best showing of the others without holding out much hope of withstanding the final challenge of the winner.

Backers again had every reason to be on the best of terms with themselves over the Wellington Plate. For this Glass Boss was supported virtually to the exclusion of all others, and though it was only by a neck that he deprived House Party of the spoils it struck us that Wing was always riding a confident race on the winner. Colonel Clarke, the owner of Glass Boss, was present to see the colt win, having recovered from a recent illness which had prevented him from participating in the sport for a considerable time.

If the number of runners for the Ward Plate was the smallest of the afternoon the race was actually the most exciting. Alison and Flying Shelter contested the issue from start to finish, and though it looked as if Alison's measure had been taken some distance from home, Mr. Harry Beasley's filly, putting in another strong effort close home, all but got on terms. She was beaten by a head and a stride past the post was actually in front. Southern Jazz, after a slow beginning, was upsides with the leading pair also at the end, but Passive, the only other runner, never flattered.

There was plenty of excitement also over the decision of the Warrenstown Plate, for when the favourite, Golden Cloud, won by a couple of lengths from Poppy, with Dreamy Knight a similar distance off, third, objections for crossing were lodged to the winner by the rider of the second, and to the first and second by the owner of the third. There certainly was a swerve by Golden Cloud close home, but this apparently the Stewards did not consider sufficiently serious to entail disqualification, and they over-ruled both objections. The slight odds laid on Saints' Way for the Woodenbridge Plate were upset by Ask Her, who ran her more fancied rival out of it. Details:—

YACHTING.

CLONTARF Y. AND B.C.: THE SEASON'S PRIZES.

A very interesting and enjoyable function on Saturday evening was the presentation of the cups and prizes won by the members during the late season, and it was part of the programme of the Club supper at which the President of the Club, Mr. Herbert Jenkins, was in the chair. Close upon eighty members and guests were present, and when the time came to make the presentations the Chairman did so in admirable fashion.

First there was the Scottish Cup, the principal trophy in the possession of the Club. It had been given some years ago by four Scotsmen who were members, and, if there was a Scot present—and there were many, no doubt—they must have blushed over the nice things said of their nationality as men and sportsmen. The cup carries the championship of the Club, and it was won well by Falcon (Messrs. Paine and Hutchinson). It may be mentioned that Falcon as cutter rig is a very different boat to what she was as a yawl.

Next came the War Memorial Trophy, which was won by Oreen (Mr. A. Devereux); then the President's Cup (which goes on units), won by Ranger (Mr. C. Sargent); then the Commodore's Prize for the Bay Race, won by May Mischief (Mr. J. Ricard).

The two motor boat cups were then presented—viz., the Shannon Cup, won by Mona (Mr. D. Appleyard), and the Sargent Cup, by Midge (Mr. L. Roberts). Finally there was the prize for Punt Race, an event which had proved a great success, and was run in heats, youth in the shape of Messrs. H. M'Garry and W. E. Morgan winning. The Billiard Cup was also presented to the winner, Mr. Crawford.

Following this there was a special presentation from boat-owners to Mr. George Porter, and also to Mrs. Porter, in recognition of the splendid services of the Hon. Secretary of the Sailing Committee.

An enjoyable vocal and instrumental evening concluded the function.

MOTOR CYCLING.

WORLD'S RECORD AT BROOKLANDS.

For the first time in the history of motor cycling, a rider has travelled 200 miles in two hours. At Brooklands, G. E. Nott, on a Rudge, covered 200 miles in 1 hour 59 mins. 43 1-5 secs., and, in two hours, he travelled 200 miles 816 yards. His average speed was 100.23 m.p.h., and he beat the world's record for all classes of machines, the previous highest speed for two hours having been 94.8 m.p.h.

Nott wins the Buckley Cup, which was offered to the first motor cyclist who travelled at over 100 m.p.h. for two hours.

BOXING.

CITY OF DUBLIN CLUB TOURNAMENT.

Spirited boxing was witnessed yesterday at the Newport Club on the occasion of the initial tournament organised by the City of Dublin Club.

The spacious hall was packed. The best bout resulted from the meeting of C. Moon, of the St. Tarcisius Club, and J. Fitzgerald, who represented the home club. It was a splendid contest to the fourth round, in which Fitzgerald was put down for a count of nine. On regaining his feet, Moon, with a powerful swing to the point, knocked his opponent out.

Another good bout was that between E. Hannigan (City of Dublin) and B. Connor (St. Andrews). Hannigan forced the pace from the outset, and, outboxing his opponent, was awarded the verdict.

Juvenile Contest (four 2 mins.)—J. McCormick (City of Dublin) beat J. Farrell (St. Tarcisius), on points.
Light-Weight—T. Dunne (City of Dublin) k.o. J. O'Carroll (St. James' United), in the second round.
R. Ryan (St. James' U.) beat W. Hendrick (City of Dublin), on points.
C. Moone (St. Tarcisius) k.o. T. Fitzgerald (City of Dublin), in the fourth round.
Fly-Weight—J. Purfield (St. Andrews) beat J. Hannigan (City of Dublin), on points.
J. Uppington (City of Dublin) beat J. Cassidy (St. Andrews), on points.
Feather-Weight—E. Hannigan (City of Dublin) beat B. Connor (St. Adrews), on points.
Bantam-Weight—J. Dardee (St. Tarcisius) k.o. J. O'Connor (St. Tarcisius), in the second round.
T. Kelly (St. Tarcisius) beat J. Dunne (City of Dublin), on points.

HUNTING.

THE LOUTH HOUNDS.

OPENING MEET AT LOUTH HALL.

It must be confessed that the heavy gale of Friday night, which reached its height during the early hours of the following morning, was not a good omen for the general success of the opening meet of the Louth Hounds at Louth Hall on Saturday forenoon. It came most inopportunely, as a matter of fact. But at least it served one good purpose—it helped to clear away leaves from hedges and ditches; and there is yet a great lot of foliage to be got rid of this year as a result of the mild weather of the last six weeks.

This is Captain R. A. B. Filgate's twelfth season, and he has now with him as second whip his son, Mr. W. R. Filgate. The Master had with him twenty-eight couples, these including fifteen couples of the new entry. They were a credit to Tom Walker, the first whip and kennel huntsman.

Lord and Lady Louth extended a hospitable welcome to all-comers, and half an hour before hounds moved off to draw Ice House Hill within the demesne—they always begin here from this meet—there was quite an imposing field assembled. Most were mounted, those on foot or wheels being relatively few. Those out included the Master and Mrs. Filgate, the Honorary Secretary of the Hunt, Major E. Shirley, and Mrs. Shirley; Captain E. Boylan and Mrs. Boylan, Mr. Frank and Mrs. Boylan, Colonel and Mrs. Booth and Miss Joan Booth, Miss D. Henry, Colonel E. and Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Symonds, Mrs. M. and Miss Eileen Moynagh, Mr., Mrs. and Miss Sydney Montgomery; Mr. M. Macardle, jun., and Miss S. Macardle; Miss B. Jennings, the Misses M. and V. Moorehead, Colonel C. M. and Mrs. O'Reilly, Mrs. Coddington, Major Kane, Miss Taaffe, Sir Edward and Lady Bellingham, Lady Foster and Miss Foster, Miss Symes, Hon. Mrs. Massy, Mr., Mrs. and Miss R. McKeever; Miss ffulkes, Mrs. Pyke Fortesque, Mrs. Jameson, Mrs. Bolton, Mrs. Lecky, Mrs. W. E. P. Cairns, Mrs. Campbell, Miss Wetherall, the Rev. G. E. Fry.

SATURDAY'S MATCHES.

LANSDOWNE STILL BEST.

TRINITY LOSE BY ONE POINT.

By defeating North of Ireland by 21 points to 3 at Lansdowne road on Saturday, Lansdowne accomplished one of the best performance in the history of the club. Still without E. Davy, J. C. Arigho and G. P. S. Hogan, they completely outplayed the strong Northern side, which included several international players. Dublin University, visiting Belfast, fairly well held Instonians until the closing stages, when they fell away, and were beaten by 4 tries to 1 goal and 2 tries. Wanderers, chiefly through goal-kicking, scored a narrow win over Monkstown by 12 points to 9. Blackrock College were well beaten by Garryowen at Limerick, and University College also went down before Bective Rangers to the tune of 27 points to nil.

Liverpool University, continuing their Southern tour, defeated University College, Cork, by 20 points to nil; Malone ran up 23 points to 3 against Palmerston at Belfast, and Enniscorthy—some of whose players, meeting with a motor mishap, did not turn up—were beaten by Clontarf by 17 points to 3. London Irish piled up a score of 8 tries to 1 goal against London University. T. W. King, who early in the week showed up well in the Oxford University trials, was an outstanding player on the Irish side.

J. McDowell breaking away from a scrum in the match between Instonians and Dublin University at Belfast last Saturday.

LANSDOWNE'S CONVINCING WIN.

NORTH WELL BEATEN.

At Lansdowne road on Saturday Lansdowne defeated North of Ireland by 21 points to 3—three goals and two tries to one try. It was an enjoyable afternoon, and there was a good crowd to see a match between teams so representative of club strength in the two provinces. Lansdowne were without E. Davy, J. C. Arigho and G. P. S. Hogan, and North had a change in their three-quarter line, where McKee substituted Malcolmson on the wing. In anticipation, and taking their previous form, a fairly close and level game seemed likely between the sides. As a matter of fact the score no more than indicates the superiority of Lansdowne, who not merely won, but did so on a most polished performance.

It is no too very often that one sees what can be truly described as a polished performance between teams that are by way of being equally matched. When one sees a very smooth winning performance it is generally that the beaten side is badly outclassed and there is little tax on a well-practised side in working neatly when the work is, so to speak, over the heads of the opposition. But where it has to be carried out in spite of a strong and determined counter-offensive it is quite another matter; and yet, such a finished performance did the Lansdowne side give on Saturday as almost by comparison to make their opponents look second rate.

The foundation of the success was laid in the solid work of the forwards who, up against a stout and heavier-looking eight, held their ground in the tight scrums and heeled out well, and played a brilliant game in the loose. Next, perhaps might be mentioned the excellence of the defence put up by the backs, whose very ready tackling broke up repeated movements of the North threes, which started in most likely fashion. And finally, O'Reilly and Crowe at half-back. O'Reilly has never played a better game at the base of the scrum. He had the ball away or made away with it himself in great style, so that Adrian, the North scrum-half, in trying to outwit him was hard tempted not to get off-side. Crowe seems to have found his true position at out-half. It allows him greater freedom of choice as to partnership or work on his own than the three-quarter line, and that he has the initiative and determination for such a freedom was amply demonstrated on Saturday when he scored four out of the five tries gained by his side. Two of these came from O'Reilly's start, one when he picked up cleverly himself, and the fourth was a most brilliant bit of in-and-out work with Lightfoot. Besides this, his defensive work was very smart and clever. Lightfoot and Harris were, perhaps, the pick of a very useful three-quarter line, though McPhillips' fine try must not be overlooked. Heaney tackled soundly at back, and McEnery, Neary, Dunne and Anketell were prominent in a fine pack.

For North, Bailie, at full-back, kicked usefully. The three-quarters, who had a fair share of the ball, rarely got it out to the wings. Byers had one or two good runs, but not much scope. Atkinson, in the centre, and Watt, the out-half, had some openings to their credit, but the development was generally promptly smothered by the Lansdowne tackling. Payne, Brand and Duff were noticeable in a disappointing pack.

Lansdowne scored three times in the opening half, and changed ends without having had their defence pierced. The first score came from a capital opening by O'Reilly in the visitors' 25, Crowe getting over at the corner for an unconverted try. Crowe also got the second, and McPhillips the third after a great run from half-way. McEnery converted both.

Early in the second half a long kick sent close to the home line where McPhillips was tackled, and the ball rolling over the line, Bailie scored a soft try, but the kick at goal failed. Lansdowne had a good deal the best of the remaining play, and Crowe scored twice, McEnery converted once. Result:—

Lansdowne—3 goals 2 tries (21 points).
North of Ireland—1 try (3 points).

Teams:—
Lansdowne—L. J. Heaney; P. M'Phillips, T. V. Harris, J. J. Fielding, E. J. Lightfoot; T. V. O'Reilly, M. P. Crowe; A. G. Anketell, M. E. Barden, J. T. Cathcart, F. Conroy, J. Dunne, J. D. M'Clelland, J. E. M'Enery, B. Neary.

TRINITY UNLUCKY.

INSTONIANS' LAST MINUTE SCORE.

Trinity were very unlucky to be beaten by Instonians at Ravenhill, the Belfast side scoring in the last minute to win by a single point, the score in their favour being four tries (12 points) to a goal and two tries (11 points). For the greater part of the game the visitors were the superior side, especially forward, but a couple of snap scores by the homesters enabled them to lead at the interval. Up till this period Dublin University had been playing against the wind, and it was not long till they had wiped off a three points' deficit, shortly afterwards taking the lead. It seemed that they would run up a big winning margin, but faulty handling of a greasy ball by the backs, and a certain amount of "stickiness" on the part of the centres, prevented them from reaping the reward of the excellent work of the pack.

About twenty minutes from the end, after some of the players on both sides had been spoken to by the referee, Instonians' pack began to develop some fire, and for the remainder of the game overplayed their opponents in the loose. They kept Trinity penned in their own half, and the visitors' forwards appeared to tire, but it was not until the last minutes that the best movement of the match resulted in a try which gave Instonians victory by a point. While the visitors cannot but be regarded as unfortunate, yet it must be remembered that they had chances in plenty to have won the match before Instonians rallied.

Both teams were guilty of bad lapses in defence, and Neill was allowed to go through for Instonians following a line-out five minutes after the start. In twenty minutes, McClenahan, taking advantage of a breakdown in the Trinity passing, nipped in at the "25," and although he dropped the ball, he dribbled on and picked up to dive between Knott's legs for the line. Ross and Hall failed to convert either try. The University backs were frequently moving, but Hewat held on with a couple of men clear and was brought down. Once Cherry was almost in after a great run, but it was Grealey who eventually burst over from Roantree's pass. Roantree failed.

The second half had only started when Moffett, missing a pass back, allowed the Trinity forwards to dribble over, V. J. Pike touching the ball first for a try, which levelled the scores. The kick went outside. In eight minutes the visitors had a five points' lead, Dee starting a movement which Roantree exploited for Cherry to score at the posts. Roantree goaled. Then came the Instonian assault, and Moffett scored with 15 minutes to go. Ross failed. McGeown finished off a beautiful passing bout with a score just before "no side."

Dublin University—1 goal 2 tries (11 points).

Teams:—
Dublin University—H. E. Knott; J. C. Cherry, J. C. D. Hewat, D. R. Roantree, J. J. Grealy; M. Dee, J. Du Preez; R. B. Pike (captain), H. L. Dixon, J. L. McGuire, V. J. Pike, H. Michael, H. V. Tighe, F. C. Jackson, C. K. Graham.
Instonians—W. S. Campbell; A. C. Douglas, S. K. McGeown, R. R. Price, R. O. McClenahan; W. H. Hall, R. W. Moffett; A. P. Campbell, W. G. Dick (capt.), G. B. Goldsbrough, J. G. N. Kernahan, J. McDowell, J. McF. Neill, W. McC. Ross, T. G. Ward.

MONKSTOWN IMPROVE.

GOAL-KICKING SAVES WANDERERS.

Wanderers have not so far this season been beaten by a local club, but they went very near to losing this record on Saturday, when opposed to Monkstown at Sydney Parade; they just managed to pull the game out of the fire in the closing stages. Wanderers won by two goals (one dropped) and one try (12 points) to three tries (9 points), and while they were deserving of victory by reason of the fact that they had much more of the play, still Monkstown, in a sense, were unlucky to lose. They pierced the Wanderers' defence three times, while Wanderers actually only got over the home line once, as nine of the twelve points were made up of a goal converted from a penalty try and a dropped goal.

It was a fast game, but by no means productive of a good exposition of the code, and at times the play was over strenuous. For their success, Wanderers have chiefly to thank Murray, who played a brilliant game at the base of the scrum. But for his great work there is little doubt that the visitors would have sustained their first Dublin defeat, for there was not another back on the side who could be depended upon to take a hand in attack or to defend with any degree of certainty. The former Blackrock College boy has given many fine displays this season, but that on Saturday was quite his best, and there is no doubt that he will be well in the running for honours when the selectors meet to deliberate on the Irish XV. Collins did some good work at out-half, while Murphy and Peard ran well on their respective wings, but the centres were poor and frequently dropped passes. Kennedy has apparently not quite recovered from his recent injury, and he was not up to his usual form. Clinch was the outstanding forward and led the pack admirably, and next to him came Potterton, Reilly and Anderson.

Monkstown showed much improvement on recent displays, and while Ganly was the outstanding player, Wall was also much in evidence. Ganly's score, obtained after a run nearly three-fourths the length of the field, was very spectacular, and Wall also ran strongly, but more than once spoiled chances by dropping passes. Odbert did well at out-half, and Salmon fielded and kicked well. O'Sullivan played splendidly in the last line of defence, getting his side out of many difficulties. The forwards were honest workers, and none were better than Mulhern, Hooper, Tighe and O'Farrell.

Though Wanderers had the better of the play in the first half, Monkstown led at the interval by 9 points to 5. Hooper was the first to score. Ganly had only been tackled at the corner flag, and from the line-out Hooper, from some scrambling play on the line, got over, but Ganly missed an easy shot at goal. A few minutes later another score came to Monkstown. From an opening by Odbert, Wall put Ganly in possession, and the Irish international running from his own "25" passed several opponents and, side-stepping Kennedy, got over, but the kick at goal was again missed. Wanderers attacked strongly after this, and following some desultory play near the line were awarded a penalty try for Hylton being obstructed. Murray added the extra points, but shortly before the interval Monkstown attacked, and Wall scored a try, which he failed to convert.

Wanderers had all the attack in the second half, and the home line had several narrow escapes. Eventually Hutchinson dropped a goal, making the points equal, and then before the end Harris got the winning score, the culmination of a round of passing. Result:—

Monkstown—3 tries (9 points).

The teams were:—
Monkstown—J. M. Sullivan; E. C. Fitzherbert, J. B. Ganly, T. W. Wall, F. H. Salmon; F. McMullen, A. N. B. Odbert; E. Mulhern, J. J. Hooper, K. O'Farrell, M. O'Reilly, R. Ross-Todd, R. Barrett, M. J. Keating, P. Tighe.
Wanderers—D. E. P. Kennedy; T. V. Murphy, A. P. Harris, S. T. Hutchinson, W. H. Peard; P. Murray, D. Collins; A. M. Anderson, J. D. Clinch, A. J. Fisher, H. J. Hilton, W. J. McCormick, H. N. Potterton, J. K. Reilly, D. T. Young.
Referee—Mr. J. H. Miles.

BECTIVE FORWARDS WIN.

LIGHT NATIONAL PACK OUTPLAYED.

Bective Rangers were not at full strength against University College on Saturday, but the result of the game was never in doubt, the Rangers winning by 3 goals, 1 penalty goal and 3 tries to nil. Though one-sided as far as scoring was concerned, the students' backs kept the game from becoming monotonous by their continuous endeavours to carry play into their opponents' territory, and between Bective's scores in the second half they brought off several enterprising movements, which, against a less solid defence, would have gained some tangible reward.

The immense forward advantage Bective had in every respect precluded from the start the possibility of an even game, and, apart from getting the ball for their backs from the majority of the scrums, they themselves were always making inroads on the "National" defence in the loose. Although the light College pack made plucky efforts to hold them up their high tackling was the least effective means they could have adopted to bring down their much bigger opponents, and they did not get back quick enough. The Bective backs played a serviceable game, being thrustful in attack and convincingly sound in defence, and two newcomers to the side in A. Curtis and H. Lightfoot, who were deputising for J. Wallens and D. O'Connor, respectively, gave promising displays. The former for a long time had difficulty in anticipating and taking Arigho's somewhat erratic passes, but when Arigho struck his game in the second half he opened up the game cleverly, and evidently has a good sense of position. Lightfoot, who is a brother of the Lansdowne man, did not get a surfeit of chances, but got a fine try, the manner of which proved that he has speed above the average and determination to make us of it. D. Moran, at full-back, played one of his best games, and by good kicking, fielding and tackling kept the students always at a respectful distance from his line. Dowd, O'Donnell and Ballagh all did an amount of useful work, and between them there was little to choose. The forwards who caught the eye most were Farrell, Little, Keane and Fitzsimons.

Playing behind beaten forwards, the College backs had anything but an enviable time, but they made several fine efforts to break through. Generally, however, their chances came when they were well within their own half, and the distance to be covered was too big a handicap. The outstanding player was R. Hogan, who, at scrum-half, did a great amount of spoiling and tackling, while he got the ball away neatly and was enterprising individually. Though, of course, limited in chances, Roche did not, perhaps, make as much use of himself in attack as he might have done, but he tackled sturdily all through and kicked well. Dawson and P. Cremin, in the centre, did enough to show that, with adequate chances, they were capable of cutting out openings, and O'Connell got through a difficult task at full-back with credit. Macauley, W. Cremin, MacCarthy and F. O'Driscoll were about the most prominent of the forwards.

Curtis got Bective's opening score, following a burst through by O'Donnell, and Farrell converted. Little obtained the second, which was not converted, and before the interval Farrell placed a penalty goal. In the second half Curtis, Farrell, Arigho and Lightfoot got over for tries, and Carroll converted two of them. Result:—

Bective Rangers—4 goals (1 penalty) and 3 tries (27 points).
University College—Nil.

Teams:—
Bective Rangers—D. Moran; H. Lightfoot, J. A. O'Donnell, T. Dowd, S. V. Ballagh; J. Arigho, A. Curtis; T. J. Little, P. J. Keane, J. L. Farrell, C. Carroll, A. Wade, M. Deering, J. J. Fitzsimons, G. C. Higginbotham.
University College—J. O'Connell; G. Thornton, F. Dawson, P. Cremin, T. J. Morris; P. Roche, R. Hogan; W. Cremin, J. S. Barnard, J. Lalor, R. McCarthy, N. Macauley, F. O. Driscoll, P. O. Driscoll, E. A. Plunkett.

BLACKROCK BEATEN AT LIMERICK.

GARRYOWEN WIN AT ALL POINTS.

Blackrock College met Garryowen at Limerick on Saturday in a friendly contest in fine but cold weather, and before a small attendance. From the beginning it was seen that the home team were the superior side, the Blackrock defence proving of a weak description.

Beaten for possession in the tight scrums, the visitors could not make little headway; still they kept their opponents from scoring until some twenty minutes had elapsed. Then from half-way the brothers Griffin, the Garryowen centres, indulged in in-and-out passing. J. Griffin getting over on the right wing, Walsh goaling. Before half-time J. Griffin picked up a loose ball at the centre, and with a dodging run got the home team's second score; Walsh hit the post in his effort to convert.

The second period saw 'Rock for the greater portion kept on the defensive. Heffernan dribbled through and grounded, when ten minutes' play had elapsed, for a try. Almost immediately afterwards Sullivan sent a smart pass to J Griffin, who scored under the posts, Sullivan failing to goal. Blackrock attacked after a good rush, and Garryowen being penalised, Willis landed a goal. Before the close A. Hearne broke through the opposition and got the final score of the game, which was converted by Walsh. Blackrock put in a last rally and kept Garryowen on the defence, but failed to penetrate. Blackrock were completely dominated, and were it not for wild passing by Garryowen they would have been beaten by a much larger score. The game as a whole was not impressive, although the pitch was good. Result:—

Garryowen—2 goals 3 tries (19 points).
Blackrock College—1 penalty goal (3 pts.).

ENNISCORTHY FIELD WEAK SIDE.

CLONTARF SCORE EASY WIN.

Enniscorthy's first visit to town this season proved an unpropitious one, for they suffered defeat on Saturday at Castle avenue by a goal and four tries to a try. At the time fixed for starting the visitors could only muster nine men, and to make a game of it Clontarf lent them Jewell and Hayes. After half an hour's play the missing players, most of them back-division men, turned up, and it then transpired that a motor mishap had held them up on the road.

Driving rain and a strong wind prevailed at the start, but Clontarf, facing the elements and hill, attacked, and O'Dwyer, cutting through from mid-field, scored behind the posts five minutes after the start for Seymour to add the points. Two minutes later Tyndall got over, but Seymour's kick went wide. Enniscorthy then had a brief spell of attack, but Lawler failed to drop a goal. Clontarf then had the better of matters, and Glass, Lyons, Seymour, and Tyndall were prominent in the attack, but the Enniscorthy spoiling was keen. Langan was very useful, and put in a few smart runs; but the visitors' defence held out till a minute before the interval, when, from an opening by Seymour, T. D. Murphy scored, Seymour's kick failing. The second half was almost altogether in favour of Clontarf, but many promising moves of their back division broke down through slow passing or faulty handling.

Five minutes from the restart O'Dwyer sent Tyndall over at the left, Seymour's kick being just wide, and three minutes later Mahony, Seymour, and O'Dwyer led up to a score by Lyons at the left, but Seymour was again out of luck with the kick. Enniscorthy's only score came midway in the closing period, when P. A. Bolger scored from a rush, but C. J. Left failed to improve. Clontarf pressed at the close, Lyons being almost over, and Browne failing to drop a goal. The game was a very scrappy one, and there was little back play, individualism being mainly the order.

For Clontarf, Langan was sound at back, but inclined to run too much. The three-quarters were good individually, Tyndall and Lyons being best. Seymour and Carty worked hard at half, and Mahony, Mooney, Glass, and Roche were the best of the forwards. Armstrong, at back for the visitors, kicked a good length and defended well. Lawler was the best of the three-quarters, and C. J. Lett was clever at out-half. Bourns, McGinty, P. A. Bolger, and P. R. Bolger were the best of the front division. Enniscorthy played a man short. Result:—

Enniscorthy—1 try (3 points).

Teams:—

INTER-UNIVERSITY MATCH.

LIVERPOOL EASILY DEFEAT CORK.

University College, Cork, were completely outclassed at the Mardyke, Cork, on last Saturday, when they were defeated by Liverpool University by twenty points clear in the concluding game of their Irish tour. The score is, perhaps, flattering to the visitors as a side, as they were rather orthodox in their passing movements, and the danger to the College line came not from the openings created by the centres, but from the speed of the wing men.

This was particularly evident in the first half, when Chadwick short-punted over the opposing full-back's head, and, after regathering the ball in his stride, was able to outstrip at least two of the defence, for the finest score of the afternoon. The College pack is admittedly one of the best in Munster, but seven visiting forwards won their share of the scrums and more than held their own in the loose. It could be truthfully stated that the home team never really looked like scoring, and while individually some of the backs were good the tackling was deplorably weak.

Thewlis, the Liverpool captain, had a roving commission, and he was the outstanding player on the field, both in defence and attack. Van Sacke and Lennon, on the wings, ran with great determination and speed, and Sherman, at the base of the scrum, was much too clever for his vis-a-vis. The outstanding members of the pack were Ross, Jennings and Muscara.

Although overshadowed, O'Connor, the College scrum-half, was plucky and resourceful, and in defence received valuable assistance from Connolly, and Fitzgerald. In the forwards, they were best served by Neville, Coffey and McGovern.

Liverpool scored on three occasions in the last half, Lennon (2) and Chadwick crossing in the first period, while Gale, Cheetham and Shennan each gained a try in the second, one of the scores being converted by Mercer. Result:—

Liverpool University—1 goal 5 tries (20 points).
University College, Cork—Nil.

Teams:—
Liverpool—J. Sankey; H. W. Van Sacke, J. W. Cheetham, T. Lennon, C. Chadwick; T. N. A. Jeffcoate, W. M. Shennan; R. H. Thewlis (capt.), J. T. Ross, G. E. Mercer, A. Muscaro, H. Parkinson, W. P. Jennings, J. H. McGillivray, W. A. Gole.
University College, Cork—E. J. Fitzgerald; J. Cotter, J. Connolly, W. J. Collins, J. W. McCarthy; D. O'Driscoll, T. J. O'Connor; J. McCarthy, J. McGovern (capt.), M. Sheehan, T. A. Neville, M. Kennefick, W. J. Coffey, D. O'C. Keating, N. McCarthy.

BLACKROCK COLLEGE II. V. MALAHIDE.

Blackrock 2nd defeated Malahide at Nutley avenue by 4 goals and 3 tries to nil. Although Malahide had such a big score piled up against them, they had a fair share of the play, but their backs did not combine at all well, so that the passing movements were invariably nipped in the bud.

They have, however, a fine keen side, and a good pack of forwards, while in H. Pembrey they have a full back of great ability, who played a fine game all through, and saved his side on several occasions. Savage, Martin, and Marsh were the most prominent of the other backs, and O'Brien, Walker, and Brangan were always to the fore in a good pack.

The Blackrock team gave an impressive display, their backs combining splendidly, their passing and fielding being clean and accurate. B. Glynn, who was taken out of the scrum to play centre in place of Brady, who hurt his arm, was an outstanding success and gave a surprising all-round display. It may be that Blackrock have a find in this player, who is quite young, and played for the Schools' Cup team last year. Costelloe, Dallaghan, and Maher, among the backs, and Burns, O'Driscoll, and F. O'Reilly, in the front rank, were always conspicuous.

In the first half Blackrock scored only once, Costelloe crossing after a good passing movement, Towers converting. Costelloe (2), Kneafsey, Glynn, McCorry, and Burns added tries in the second period, Towers converting three times. Malahide had hard luck on two occasions, as both Savage and Pembrey struck an upright with drops at goals. Result:—

Blackrock College 2nd—4 goals 3 tries (29 points).
Malahide—Nil.

Teams:—
Blackrock 2nd—F. O'Rourke; H. Costelloe, H. Dallaghan, L. Brady, J. Kneafsey; J. Maher, B. Towers; M. Burns, P. Mullins, T. O'Driscoll, B. Glynn, F. O'Reilly, J. McFeeley, B. O'Reilly, C. McCorry.
Malahide—H. Pembrey; J. Murphy, J. Martin, S. Savage, D. Lowe; D. Marsh, F. Parkes; T. Brennan, D. Dickie, L. Smith, M. O'Brien, E. Craigie, N. Roy, A. Kinnealy, T. Brangan.
Referee—Major M. A. O'Connor.

YOUNG MUNSTERS VISIT GALWAY.

EASY WIN AGAINST LOCAL XV.

Young Munsters, Limerick, fielded a strong team for their friendly game with Galwegians at Galway sports ground, and were deserving winners on the score of three goals, one dropped goal, and one try (22 points) to one goal (5 points). A large crowd witnessed the game, which was played at a fast pace in spite of the slippery nature of the ground. The visitors had the better of matters forward, where they had the advantage in weight, but Galwegians held them well in the first half.

The opening saw Galwegians pressing, but the ball was returned to their 25. Shee, Galwegians' centre three-quarter, got possession, and passed practically all the visiting team before going over for the best try of the game. Creaven, Galwegians' full-back, added the extra points. Young Munsters carried out several forward rushes, but with good tackling by Galwegians and bad handling from Young Munsters' three-quarters, there was no further score for twenty minutes. Rich dropped a great goal for the visitors from thirty yards. Before the interval a clever piece of play by Sheahan at the base of the scrum resulted in a score per O'Dea for Munsters. Garvey added the extra points.

In the second half Munsters had all the better of the play, and although Galwegians defended strongly, Munsters increased their second half score with tries by Flaherty (2) and St. George (1). Garvey added points to two of the tries. Galwegians failed to add to their score, although they pressed hard at the close. Mr. F. Kinneen, Galway, refereed.

MALONE DEFEAT PALMERSTON.

Not a great deal of difficulty was experienced by Malone in defeating Palmerston at Balmoral Show grounds, the Northern side winning by 3 goals (2 dropped, 1 penalty) 4 tries (23 points) to a penalty goal (3 tries). The Malone backs handled the greasy ball with more assurance than the visitors, who, however, did not enjoy much luck with one or two passing bouts which made a lot of ground, but were broken up by stern tackling. The visitors scored first, A. E. Thompson, after Cobbe, Naismith and Russell had handled well, goaling from a penalty. Soon Malone were in the lead, Lyons dropping a clever goal. The next home try was initiated by Harte, who let Lyons off for the centre to outpace the opposition and score near the corner. The same player dropped a goal from nearly half-field before the interval. Only good tackling by the home full-back, Baird, kept Palmerston out on several occasions in the second half, during which the home team scored, per Beatty, Thompson (2) and Harte (penalty goal). The tries were unconverted. Teams:—

Malone—W. E. P. Baird; H. Thompson, W. L. Clements, J. N. Lyons, W. H. Jolley; F. J. Sherry, W. Loughran; C. C. Harte, D. Beatty, G. W. Flatley, J. Fisher, R. P. Gailey, H. G. Lamont, T. B. Mawhinney, V. Smyth.
Palmerston—V. E. Kirwan; J. W. Naismith, R. T. Falkiner, R. A. Russell, R. Cobbe; H. W. Moore, V. Hendrick; C. N. Kirwin, A. E. Thompson, T. A. Thompson, J. N. Thompson, J. R. Y. Wilson, J. Hempenstal, W. Bain, D. D. Hussey.

INJURY TO W. F. BROWNE.

Lieutenant W. F. Browne, the well-known United Services and Irish international Rugby forward, was injured during a forward rush while playing for Devonport Services against Portsmouth Services at Devonport on Saturday. He was removed to hospital, and is believed to be suffering from broken ribs.

PORTORA R.S. V. BELFAST R.A.I.

Belfast Royal Academical Institution 1st XV. met Portora Royal School 1st XV. at Enniskillen on Saturday. The ground was in a bad state after the recent heavy rain, and part of the match was a mud bath. In the first half Portora led by one try to nil, but in the second half "Inst." scored two tries, winning a line and fairly evenly contested game by two tries to one try.

NORTH 2nd v. LANSDOWNE 2nd.—The second fifteen of Lansdowne were opposed by a strong North of Ireland second string at Ormeau, and were beaten by a goal and 3 tries (14 points) to nil. For half an hour there was little between the teams, but at half-time North led by a goal, kicked by T. B. Agnew from his own try. R. J. G. Grainger and J. Bristow (2) scored unconverted tries for North in the second half.

SANDFORD PARK SCHOOL v. C.U.S.—Played at Sandford Park on Saturday. Result—Sandford Park, 1 goal, 1 try (8 pts.); C.U.S., 1 dropped goal, 1 try (7 pts.).

PRIESTS' CUP FINAL.

VICTORY OF ARKLOW.

The final of the Priests' Cup (Schoolboys' Football League) attracted a big attendance at Rathdrum yesterday. Wicklow and Arklow were the finalists, and the team work of the last named turned the game decisively after a close first half. Wicklow scored the first point, but before the interval Arklow took the lead with a goal. The second half was very one-sided. Arklow's pace and combination gave them a big advantage, and they scored 3 goals 4 points to Wicklow's point. Result:—

Arklow—4 goals 4 points.
Wicklow—2 points.

ASSOCIATION.

FREE STATE LEAGUE GAMES.

BOHEMIANS' STRONG FINISH.

AMATEURS' GOOD WIN AT DUNDALK.

BOHEMIANS ... 2 DUNDALK ... 1

Extraordinary interest was taken in the game at Dundalk last Saturday when Bohemians were visitors. Dundalk, who have been dropping points of late, made a strenuous effort to improve their position in the table, and made three changes on the side that was beaten a week before by Shelbourne. Emerson, Silcock and Nolan replaced Smith, Bird and Fagan. Bohemians had their full side.

The game opened briskly. Inside five minutes Dundalk were awarded a penalty; Mason took the kick, which was saved by Cannon, but the Dundalk full drove the ball through from the rebound. Even against the wind the vistors exerted more pressure, but their forwards did not combine well, and two great chances were missed by White. In this half Kavanagh was the outstanding visiting forward, but his inside men made poor use of his centres. Dundalk had good chances, but no further goals were scored.

Even more surprising was the opening of the second half. Inside two minutes Dennis easily beat McKechnie, and shot past Mehaffy from close range for the equaliser. The vistors' forwards were now much better. Injuries to Jordan and Mathieson threw the local team out of gear, but before his injury Mathieson had a fine chance to score, but shot over from ten yards. The game afterwards was in favour of Bohemians. Mehaffy was brilliant in the Dundalk goals, and kept the scoring down for thirty minutes in the second half, when he was beaten from close range with a great ground shot by Horlacher, whose dribble before shooting was delightful.

THE BETTER TEAM LOSE AT SHELBOURNE PARK.

SHELBOURNE ... 1 FORDSONS ... 0

In winning by the only goal scored in their home game with Fordsons last Saturday Shelbourne were decidedly lucky.

All through the Southerners played much the better football in all departments, except forward. Here the finish of the inside men was weak, and nullified the fine play of a good half-back line. The Shelbourne goal had lucky escapes, when Hannon, McVeigh and Davis hit the bar and posts.

Fordsons' half-backs took some time to settle down. O'Sullivan, at centre, was slow to open up the game, but even so Shelbourne's defence was kept busy, and their half-backs were frequently beaten. Byrne and Gilhooley, at full back, defended resolutely and successfully, but had Heinemann and Edwards availed themselves of the clever work of their wing players, the Corkmen would have been in a safe position at the interval.

The want of a scoring forward was badly felt by Fordsons. On the way to goal the visitors displayed smart football, the clean, well-judged passing of O'Sullivan, when he settled down, being a bright feature of a good game.

Shelbourne were handicapped by the loss of Thomas, their left half-back, for the greater part of the opening period. This more or less disorganised the home defence, and it demanded of the fulls an extra effort. A less capable pair could not have held out.

In both periods Fordsons had most of the play, and when a mistake by Baylor, the right full back, let Byrne through to get Shelbourne's goal, the score was against the run of the play. Indeed, Gamblin in the home goal was lucky not to have been beaten several times.

Half-way through the opening period Byrne, taking advantage of a mistake by Baylor, gave Shelbourne the lead. Heinemann and Edwards missed openings to equalise before the interval. Fordsons had the best of the exchanges all through the closing half, and Shelbourne were lucky winners.

Shelbourne—Gamblin; Gilhooley, Byrne; Kinsella, Maguire, Thomas; Robinson, Glavey, Byrne, McMillan, Kendrick.
Fordsons—O'Hagan; Baylor, Collins; McGrogan, O'Sullivan, Barry; Hannon, Heinemann, Edwards, Davis, McVeigh.

WATTERS SCORES FOUR GOALS.

ST. JAMES'S GATE COLLAPSE IN SECOND HALF.

SHAMROCK ROVERS 4, ST. JAMES'S GATE 0.

Shamrock Rovers gained an easy victory over St. James's Gate at Iveagh grounds yesterday by four goals to nil. Shamrock Rovers introduced Watters (Brideville), who has been out of Free State League football this season, and he signalised his appearance by scoring the four goals.

The opening stages did not presage the easy victory which Rovers secured, for until half-time St. James's Gate were just as dangerous, and both goals remained intact. In the second half, however, the losers collapsed, and their defence was over-run.

St. James's Gate might have taken the lead in the opening period, when attractive movements were developed by their forwards, who, however, could not press home their opportunities. Full-back and half-back effectiveness gave the Rovers victory. The St. James's Gate forwards could not make headway against them, their attacks being turned to counter attacks.

Shamrock Rovers' main superiority was at half-back, Marlow, Caulfield and Glenn being a brilliant trio. Sherwin was the pick of the Rovers' front line. He was not allowed to be idle by Fulham and Marlow, and was a continual source of trouble to M'Kay and Murphy. The four goals were the outcome of his work, rounding half-back and full-back, and centring perfectly for Watters.

Fulham and Flood improved on recent displays, and were always prominent in the attacks. Watters, as remarked, was an effective centre forward. Campbell was the weak link in the line, being slow for a winger, and many of his centres went astray.

The St. James's Gate middle line gave a disappointing display. They could not cope with the Rovers' attack once it had settled down, and failed to keep in touch with their own forwards. M'Kay was the pick of the line. Gutteriez forward was an earnest and tireless worker for St. James's Gate. Burke and Kirkland were more reliable full-backs than Clarke and Murphy. Coleman brought off a couple of remarkable saves, but O'Reilly was seldom troubled in the Rovers' goal.

Teams:—
Shamrock Rovers—O'Reilly; Kirkland, Burke; Glenn, Caulfield, Marlow; Campbell, Flood, Watters, Fulham, Sherwin.
St. James's Gate—Coleman; Murphy, Clarke; M'Kay, Mullins, Murray; Jordan, Comerford; Gutteriez, Duncan, Heslin.

WEAK INSIDE FORWARDS.

JACOBS BEATEN BY FOUR GOALS.

DRUMCONDRA ... 5 JACOBS ... 1

The score of five goals to one by which Drumcondra beat Jacobs at Tolka Park yesterday flatters them, as for a considerable period Jacobs had more of the play, and were worth a couple of goals.

That they did not get them, however, was due to good goal-keeping and the listlessness of Smith and Owens. For thirty minutes Jacobs' half-backs were on top, and Kelly's passes to his wings kept his forwards on the move. Smart, clean tackling by Moore and Dunn, a feature of Drumcondra's defence, always neutralised the efforts of the attack.

When Drumcondra got settled, after Murray secured their lead, they were cleverer in their methods, and from that to the interval were masters. Jacobs' backs were inclined to crowd Collins in goal, and were thereby responsible for at least two of Drumcondra's goals. At half-back Jacobs were better served, but their forwards were too light to be effective against the home backs, who tackled and kicked well.

After thirty-two minutes Murray, with a fast shot, scored for Drumcondra, Swann and Simpson adding goals before the interval. Smith reduced the lead early in the second half from a penalty against Dunn. Jacobs fought hard to get on terms, but the home defence was unbeaten. Ronan deflected a shot from Swann into his own goal for Drumcondra's fourth goal, and Simpson scored the fifth.

Drumcondra—O'Callaghan; Dunn, Moore; Coyle, Grace, Maxwell; Simpson, Swann, McCarney, O'Brien, Murray.
Jacobs—Collins; Ronan, Farrell; Corcoran, Kelly, Byrne; Murphy, Heron, Owens, Smith, Hickey.

FINE GOALKEEPING SAVES BRIDEVILLE.

BRAY FORWARDS UNLUCKY.

BRIDEVILLE ... 4 BRAY UNKNOWNS 2

Brideville took the points at Woodbrook last Saturday, beating Bray Unknowns by four goals to two.

The outstanding player was Gilroy, the Brideville goalkeeper, whose clever saves formed a strong feature. The Bray forwards shot from every conceivable angle, and that he was beaten twice was greatly to his credit. The whole Brideville team played a sound, steady game from start to finish. In the forward line Chester and Brookes were the most prominent, but they did not receive the support from the half-backs that they should. Lennox and Birmingham were good in defence, but found it extremely difficult to hold the Bray forward line.

Bray were a curious side. They were on the attack most of the time, and during the first half Sloan, Wilson, and McFarlane sent in shot after shot. But fortune did not favour them, and half-time found them two clear goals in arrear. They had better luck in the second half, although the game was not so fast or scientific. Payne, a new player, scored two clever goals. Wilson played a great game all through, and had hard luck on several occasions. Of the halves, Bishop stood out prominently, but Kane, on the other wing, though he worked hard, did not show his usual form. Gorman and Hoey, in the back line, were steady.

Grouse scored Brideville's third goal, and the fourth went in from the ruck following a corner.

Bray Unknowns—McCabe; Gorman, Hoey; Kane, Charles, Bishop; Wilson, McFarlane, Payne, Sloan, and Rogers.
Brideville—Gilroy; Lennox, Birmingham; J. Robinson, Connolly, Keegan; Blackford, Grouse, Brookes, C. Robinson, and Chester.
Mr. Waine refereed.

THE IRISH LEAGUE.

Belfast Celtic strengthened their position at the top of the Irish League table with a six-nil victory over Glentoran, who up to a week ago were the leaders' closest challengers. The lowly Queen's Island team secured their first victory when they defeated Bangor at Pirrie Park by two goals to one. Linfield sustained defeat at Ballymena, and so two of the sides close up on Celtic dropped points. The other four games were drawn, and with nine games played Celtic have a clear lead of five points over Portadown and six each over Glentoran, Linfield and Ballymena.

POINTS FOR EDENVILLE.

EDENVILLE ... 3 UNIV. COLLEGE ... 2

University College gave a moderate exhibition against Edenville at Terenure, and were defeated by 3 goals to 2. Edenville were the better balanced, and the score hardly does them credit, as they were attacking for the major portion of the game.

Hinch and Doyle were a fine pair of fulls, and the College forwards found them well-night impassable. Their work and that of the halves was, however, rendered comparatively easy by lack of cohesion on the part of the University forwards. Byrne played a polished game for the students at centre-forward, but his work was often negatived by poor support from his inside men. Well supported by their halves, Edenville's forwards combined well and shot rapidly. Lawlor was energetic and clever at centre, and Kavanagh displayed fine speed at outside left. Markey was the best of the halves, and McFall, in goal, was always in the right position. Emanuel and Doherty, who deputised as fulls, for the College, were at times erratic in defence, and their kicking lacked strength. Additional work was, therefore, thrown on the students intermediate line, and McGahon came through a trying time as centre-half with credit.

University College—Creaner; Emanuel, Doherty; Frawley, McGahon, Donaghy; Clyne, Kavanagh, Byrne, Wheatley, Lavan.
Edenville—McFall; Hinch, Doyle; Markey, Smyth, Hill, Davy, Meagher, Lawlor, Ryan, Kavanagh.

BENDIGO'S HEAVY FALL.

BOHEMIANS ... 6 BENDIGO ... 0

Bendigo fell heavily at Dalymount Park, where the Bohemians, playing admirably, distinguished themselves as goal scorers.

In the opening twenty minutes Bohemians placed the issue beyond doubt. Matthews opened the scoring, and goals by Andrews, Matthews, and Graham quickly followed. Although taking matters easily in the second half, Bohemians were masters of the situation, and Matthews and Graham added to the visitors' discomfiture. Bendigo failed completely to make an effective response, their forward play lacking in purpose and their finishing being feeble. Daly, in goal, was blameless; but for his fine saving the score must have reached larger proportions. Sutherland was the best back, but the half-backs were slow and were overrun. In the attack Rollo and Timmins were best.

The Dalymount Park side combined determination and dash. Their defenders were seldom in difficulties, so well did their half backs comport themselves. O'Connor did not get a serious shot to deal with. Lacey and McEvoy tackled well. All three half-backs displayed skill. In the attack Matthews, Graham and Giles were outstanding. The line moved with splendid cohesion, and their shooting was deadly. Giles was a marked success, and was more a worry to the visitors' defence than anything else with which they had to contend.

Bohemians—O'Connor; Lacey, McEvoy; O'Kane, Andrews, Maguire; McLoughlin, Matthews, Graham, Giles, Redmond.
Bendigo—Daly; Haddock, Sutherland; Molloy, McLoughlin, Gibbons; Fannin, Timmons, Rollo, Kelly, Slevin.

DRAWN MATCH AT FINGLAS.

Strandville ... 1 Glasnevin ... 1

Strandville were visitors to Finglas last Saturday and held Glasnevin to a one-goal draw.

Glasnevin were the better team, for they played with more method, and were rather unlucky. They broke through the Strandville defence on three occasions and beat Burke, but two of the goals were disallowed. Kelly, in the home goal, was well supported by a hardworking pair of fulls. The halves were more effective in defence, and the forwards combined nicely, but at times finished badly.

Strandville, a much lighter side, are fortunate in possessing such a clever goalkeeper as Burke, who saved them a beating. Bryan and Stool were stout defenders. The halves made nice openings, but these were not availed of. The best of a weak lot of forwards were Doyle and Byrne.

The opening period was all in favour of Glasnevin, and success attended their efforts when McEvoy, who appeared to be off-side, accepted a pass of Buckley's and had little difficulty in opening the score.

The opening exchanges in the concluding half favoured Strandville. They extended the home defence, and were unlucky. After dealing effectively with splendid efforts by Crawford and Byrne, Kelly was beaten by Doyle. The visitors deserved this score, and had they kept up the pressure would have added to it, but failure of the forwards to keep in position lost many chances.

Glasnevin—Kelly; Sprague, Govan; Carolan, Buckley, Kerr; Lumley, Cotter, Mulhall, McEvoy, Whelan.
Strandville—Burke; Bryan, Stool; Banks, McQuaid, Mulvaney; Ennis, Graham, Crawford, Doyle, Byrne.

RICHMOND ROVERS SCORE FREELY.

Richmond Rovers ... 8 Frankfort ... 2

Richmond Rovers experienced little difficulty in disposing of Frankfort by eight goals to two at Richmond road.

The score reflects the winners' superiority. Combining well they were always dangerous around the visitors' goal. The home defence was strong throughout, but the visitors' front line was disjointed and lacked cohesion, while the attack was half-hearted. The game was a poor one, the football being anything but attractive.

After ten minutes' play Ledwidge opened the scoring for the Rovers, to be shortly followed by the second from King. The latter added the third and Moore the fourth. Before the interval Quinn reduced the lead. The play continued decidedly one-sided. Rovers monopolising it. King increased their lead, and Moore, Ledwidge and Wallace added to the total. Near the end Bernard scored Frankfort's second.

Richmond Rovers—Pidgeon; Kenny, Kavanagh; Fitzhenry, Thomas, Kavanagh; Healy, Moore, Ledwidge, King, Walsh.
Frankfort—Whelan; Devine, Lynch; Behan, Cashin, Chadwick; O'Reilly, Durwin, Bernard, Quinn.

POINTS DIVIDED AT TOLKA PARK.

DRUMCONDRA, 2; RICHMOND UNITED, 2.

A drawn game (2-2) was the result at Tolka Park last Saturday.

The home team took a long time to settle down. Had the visitors made full use of their opportunities the score would have been different. They were lucky to take away a point by a goal scored in the last minute. Willits is having trouble with his left leg, and he was more or less of a passenger. It was at half-back, however, that most weakness was displayed in the Drumcondra team. Massey kept a good goal for them, however. Richmond United were much superior on the play. They have a sound defence and a half line that knows how to distribute the play with accuracy.

A penalty was awarded to Drumcondra, but Tucker hit the left post with a strong shot. This was followed by Devereux opening the scoring for the visitors with a cross shot. Play continued fast and interesting to the interval without further scoring. In a break-away Drumcondra took a corner, and Tucker headed in the equaliser, to follow up later by giving his side the lead. Drumcondra finished the stronger, and had more of the play, but a last-minute rally enabled Redmond to make the score again level for the United.

Drumcondra B—Massey; Hurley, Ward; Kavanagh, O'Boyle, Casey; Wayte, Fleming, McGorlick, Tucker, Willits.
Richmond United—Hanlon; Lally, Moore; Fennell, Woods, Banks; Devereux, Fegan, Redmond, Leslie, Lynam.

ST. MARY'S OUTPLAYED BY ST. JAMES'S GATE.

ST. JAMES'S GATE "B," 5; ST. MARY'S UNITED, 1.

St. James's Gate defeated St. Mary's United at Iveagh Grounds, Crumlin, last Saturday by 5 goals to 1.

It was not until the second half that the winners asserted their superiority and obtained their scores, the goals being the result of the splendid opportunism of Devoy and Whelan, the latter bringing off the "hat trick."

The first half was uninteresting, mainly owing to the greasy ball and mis-kicking resulting from the condition of the ground brought on by heavy rain. Good footbal was, indeed, almost impossible. However, the visitors were best in this period. They adapted themselves to the heavy going, and should have made better use of their chances. The defeat of the home side was solid, and generally subdued the attacks of the visitors, who were well held in the second period.

Heaney, as centre-half, played well for the winners. Devoy, Ennis and Whelan were the pick of the front line. C. Hand and Tracey played well for St. Mary's, and frequently saved the situation. J. Hand and Howe were good in the opening period, but the whole front line became disjointed in the closing stages.

J. Hand beat Ronan for the opening score for the United. The home side tried hard for the equaliser, but failed to score before the interval. St. James's Gate, infusing more life into their methods, completely over-ran the visitors, and after Whelan had levelled the scores Devoy added two more goals in succession, while Whelan netted twice.

St. James's Gate—Ronan; Byrne, O'Leary; Tynan, Henney, Corcoran; Cahill, Devoy, Whelan, Foley and Ennis.
St. Mary's United—Brierly; C. Hand, Darcy; Farrell, Kelly, Tracey; Corr, Morgan, Howe, Matthews and J. Hand.

GAELIC GAMES.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE.

DUBLIN DEFEAT LEIX.

(BY PAT'O.)

National League competitions in hurling are of a different status to championships. Teams beaten in the early stages of a league competition frequently come up with a run of points near the end to oust earlier favourites. Kildare notched points against Dublin a week ago, and Dublin hurlers pulled the points at the end of a good game yesterday at Croke Park.

Leix sent up a team weak in front. Their whole forward line had to be replaced. Seven overs early in the second half proved strength behind without efficient finishers. Dublin's steady work in the second half brought useful scores, and Captain Gill had a useful finishing trio in Power, Griffin and Barry.

The difference between the respective scoring lines decided this important game. The winners will have an easy passage to the final stage of the National League in Kilkenny's absence, and my prediction here on Saturday of a meeting between Dublin and the Munster winners in the final is more assured.

Dublin were without Howard and Hayes. Leix played substitutes for Delaney, O'Neill and Murphy.

Leix, aided by wind and sun, raced away on opening, and from Doran's pass Cushion goaled. From half-way Fitzpatrick hit a great ball for a Leix point, and the Midland side had very much the better of the game for a period. A determined Leix attack was beaten off by McEnerney, and a ball past the line was slowly respected by the umpires. As a result the ball was in the Dublin net just as referee Hawe blew the whistle. The score was disallowed to Leix.

In subsequent Dublin attacks Leeson figured. M. Power hit a hard, low ball from Leeson, and Griffin goaled for Dublin. Hurling was even and fast. John Power saved well in Leix goal. Long drives by Fitzpatrick and P. Kelly led up to a Leix attack, and from a placed ball twenty-five yards out T. Kelly found the Dublin net. Gill's great free fell in the Leix square. Power saved, but Barry and Griffin, with low balls, set Dublin in close position at half-time. Score:—

Leix—2 goals 1 point (7).
Dublin—1 goal 2 points (5).

The trying sun of the first half sank in cloud during the second session. The Leix team were younger and faster. They attacked with force, but lacked precision. They sent seven overs across the Dublin line in ten minutes; credit must be given to very clever covering tactics by Michael Murphy, McEnerney, Walsh, Ryan and O'Meara.

We saw some good hurling in this second half. A fast young team were playing well against a steady, seasoned group of hurlers. Tobin, Conroy, Byrne and Phelan stood up to a very capable Dublin attack, and J. Power was good in the Leix goal. He saved from Leeson repeatedly, but his clearances found Matt Power and Griffin on the mark.

Finn and Gill had a good pair in opposition at midfield. P. Kelly is well-known, but the discovery of yesterday's game is a young boy called Doran, who has won half-a-dozen races in this year's athletic meetings. He was a big force for Leix yesterday, and will be heard of in future hurling. He hits a fast, low ball of great speed and power. He made the game interesting to the end.

Leix were scoreless for twenty minutes of the second half. Burke, Barry, Gill (twice), and Griffin added to Dublin's score. The Kilkenny M. Power was an opportunist on the mark from J. Power's clearances. A great rush by Leix led up to a good goal, which Cushion scored from Drennan's centre. Result:—

Leix—3 goals 1 point (10).

Teams:—
Dublin—Gill (capt.), Ryan (goal), McEnerney, Ryan, O'Meara, Meagher, Murphy, Dunphy, Walsh, Leeson, Finn, Burke, Power, Griffin, Barry.
Leix—Power (goal), Tobin, Phelan, Conroy, Byrne, Fitzgerald, Fitzpatrick, Cashin, Doran, Kelly (2), Bergin, Dunne, Cushion, Drennan.

TIPPERARY'S EASY WIN.

Tipperary and Galway met at Loughrea yesterday in the first round of the National Hurling League, South-West Division, in wretched weather conditions. Neither county fielded their best team, relying on new blood. Tipperary won the toss, and, playing with the wind, over-ran their opponents during the first twenty minutes, and at half-time the score stood Tipperary 7 goals 1 point, Galway nil.

On resuming Galway played with more determination, and the game was better balanced. However, Tipperary continued to hold the upper hand, and were well worth their win. Score:—

Tipperary—11 goals 3 points.
Galway—3 goals 1 point.

DUBLIN SENIOR LEAGUE.

Kickhams had the better of the Dublin Senior League game against Dolphins. Apart from Kickhams' late recovery, where Goveran and Hunt featured, the football was poor. Result:—

Kickhams—1 goal 3 points.
Dolphins—1 point.

THE MacRORY CUP.

St. Malachy's College, Belfast, met and defeated St. Patrick's College, Armagh, on the grounds of the latter, on Saturday in the first round of the MacRory Cup competition. Score:—

St. Malachy's—1 goal 3 points.
St. Patrick's—4 points.

MONAGHAN V. ARMAGH.

County teams, representing Monaghan and Armagh, met in a challenge match at Clones yesterday for a set of gold medals presented by Mr. C. Murray (Bombay), winner of the Calcutta Sweep. Monaghan won by 2 goals 6 points to Armagh's 6 points.

In last Saturday's market in Armagh perennial grass-seed sold at 14s. per cwt.
